NEWSPRINT MAKERS TRY FOR PRICE AGREEMENT

BY JAMES COPE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—Machinery to control imports that might be endangering codified American industry was given to NRA today by President Roosevelt in an executive order formally authorizing the recovery unit to investigate complaints against cheap foreign imports.

Embargoes, quotas and higher tariffs all are at the command of the administration if thorough investigation finds pleas of American producers for aid justified. NRA may make only preliminary investigation. If it found a basis for action, the president would turn the question over to the tariff commission for thorough sifting. Upon its findings, he would act to control foreign competition.

Can't Make Profit

The order was issued as American newsprint paper producers met with Canadian and European paper men to attempt to work out a voluntary price agreement which would safeguard the Americans in assuming the higher costs imposed by code terms. A tariff was virtually out of the question on newsprint, Administrator Hugh S. Johnson pointed out to reporters because two-thirds of the pulp consumed by American newspapers comes from the Canadian forests. The objective, he said, would be to keep the present price structure intact. Paper men, however, talked of raising prices to end what they termed the present profitless base.

While the import question came to the fore, Johnson was telling newsmen that the price control provisions of the retail code, newly approved by the president, had been misinterpreted, and that it would almost certainly result in establishing a cost plus ten percent minimum for all stores.

This statement followed close upon appointment of the trade authority of three members which will assist the NRA executive to fix the amount of markup, left open by the code. Named were Louis Kirstein, Boston merchant and member of the NRA industrial advisory board; Dr. Leo Wolman and Mrs. Mary H. Rumsey, chairmen of the labor and consumer boards. Mrs. Rumsey had opposed inclusion of the ten percent provision in the code.

However, Johnson said, the retail men had made "so complete and well documented a case" that the administration had shoved aside the compromise he himself had worked out to meet farm and consumer opposition, and had ended up by giving the storekeepers substantially what they had asked for, rephrased.

Other NRA developments today included:

President Roosevelt signed an executive order exempting farm cooperatives from all fair practice provisions in codes which forbid rebates to purchasers, allowing the farm units to continue their

Allegan Nude Cult Manager Convicted

Allegan, Mich., Oct. 24. (AP)—Conviction of Fred T. Ring, nudist colony proprietor, on a charge of indecent exposure today by a jury of elderly men brought to a sudden end Michigan's first court case involving nudism.

The charge bears a maximum penalty of $500 fine and one year imprisonment, but Ring was not sentenced today. At his request, his personal bond of $100 was continued, and he said he planned an immediate appeal.

Prevented by a ruling of Circuit Judge Fred T. Miles from offering testimony concerning the physical and mental benefits of nudism on which they had hoped to base their case—counsel for Ring brought their defense to an abrupt close today, and Judge Miles instructed the jury of gray-haired men, mostly farmers, to find Ring guilty if they determined he had "exposed himself naked to persons other than his wife." They returned a guilty verdict in 50 minutes.

Ring, with his attractive wife, operated the Sunshine Sports club, eight miles from here in a wooded area, and was arrested on Labor Day in a raid conducted by the Allegan county sheriff's office. Charged with indecent exposure after witnesses had testified they saw "men and women walking around naked," he declared he would "fight to a finish" the charges. Mrs. Ring also was charged with the same offense but has not been brought to trial.

Counsel from the International Nudist Conference and nudist leaders throughout the country came to his aid, and K. K. Krippene, Chicago attorney representing the conference, said an appeal would be asked immediately. Ring made no statement, and received the verdict calmly. He did not testify in the case.

LIQUOR CONTROL BILL IN MAKING

Governor Comstock All Ready for Special Session

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—Governor Comstock is awaiting only the completion of a liquor control bill by the state legislative council before ordering a special session of the legislature, he said today.

The governor declared the complete program he will submit to the extra session is about ready.

Receipt of a telegram from Washington tentatively accepting the proposal to enact a law giving the administrative board power to negotiate federal loans for the $25,000,000 state building program, ended conjecture in that direction. The governor has made up his mind what banking legislation is needed. All that is lacking is a liquor control measure that will be workable after the eighteenth amendment is repealed.

"There is no use in holding a special session for any one of these subjects. I want to put them all together," the governor said.

Whether the extra session will be held early in November or around the first of December depends upon developments in connection with the liquor control measure. A sub-committee of the legislative council is to meet here this week and hopes to reach agreement on a control draft by Friday or Saturday. Next week the council will convene to listen to the recommendations of the sub-committee. How long it will take the council to decide upon what sort of a bill should be submitted no one was able to state.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Joseph V. McKee set himself up definitely as the "Roosevelt" candidate in the New York city mayoral campaign tonight

He declared at the close of his speech: "A vote for LaGuardia is a vote against Roosevelt—a vote for McKee is a vote for Roosevelt."

In an earlier speech, McKee said he was "thrown into the ash can" by Tammany leaders last year because he was "independent and acted for the good of the city and not for the good of the political bosses."

Nebraska City, Nebr., Oct. 24 (AP)—A band of five heavily armed gunmen today robbed the Merchants National Bank here of about $5,000 in cash, abducted two employes and a customer, the only persons in the office, and escaped.

Two of the three hostages, Dr. J. P. Gilligan and Elmo Shuey, were carried on the running board of the robbers' car for 13 blocks and the raid was not reported until they dropped off and notified the sheriff. William G. Eisenmann, assistant cashier, was released later four miles north of here.

Giant Ship Cruises All Night Over Akron, Lands Today

BY DEVON FRANCIS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Akron, O., Oct. 24 (AP)—Buffeted about by gusty winds and rain squalls, the giant Graf Zeppelin, winner of many battles with the elements, cruised about the Akron air dock tonight, its scheduled landing postponed until morning.

Enroute to the Chicago World Fair on a mission of good will, the Graf which left Miami, Fla., to Miami, Fla., at 9:45 p. m. Monday night, appeared out of the south at 7:15 p. m. and circled about the field waiting for a change in the weather.

Late tonight, Radiomarine corporation's station in New York picked up a wireless message from the Gray saying she would remain aloft until tomrrow morning.

The message said: "11:30 p. m. —Circling over Akron since hours. Landing tomorrow morning."

Winds which rose and fell in velocity, swept sheets of rain across the vast field and landing conditions were anything but favorable.

However, there was no word that the craft or any of its 21 passengers and crew of 47 had suffered any ill effects in the adverse weather. The passenger list included three children, one a baby of 11 months.

LINDBERGH CASE CLUES IN DOUBT

Alleged Swindler May Not Be Involved In Kidnaping

Boston, Oct. 24 (AP)—The status of John Gorch, 37, alleged swindler, as an aid in the solution of the Lindbergh kidnaping, tonight was clouded in police taciturnity and variance of opinion.

Gorch, a former resident of Hopewell, N. J., was visited in the Charles street jail today by agents of the United States department of justice and New Jersey state, New York City and Boston police.

Lieut. James Finn, of New York, former bodyguard of Col. Charles Lindbergh, emerged from the questioning saying progress had been made in the attempt to solve the kidnaping mystery. He was quoted as saying a "clue" had been garnered from the conversation.

Later, however, a high New York police official said that in a telephone conversation with Finn, he had been informed that the lieutenant in no way connected Gorch with the kidnaping and slaying of the Lindbergh child and that Finn would return to New York immediately.

Sill later, Finn said he probably would return to New York late tomorrow.

Boston police and department of justice officials said they still were operating upon the possibility that Gorch may have been involved in the kidnaping and that probably they would question the suspect further tomorrow.

Bank Bandits Find Mountain Refuge

Allentown, Pa., Oct. 24 (AP)—Three men robbed the Schnecksville State Bank of $6,500 today and sped away in a small car into the mountains.

Two of the men, wearing sunglasses and carrying sawed-off shotguns, held the cashier and two women in the directors' room, while a third gathered the cash into a small suitcase.

OFFICIAL PROMOTED

Michigan Requires Clothes

Fred T. King, shown above with his wife and two daughters, was convicted on a charge of indecent exposure yesterday in Michigan's first court case involving nudism. He operated a nudist colony about eight miles from Allegan. An executive of the nudist conference said the Michigan conviction was the first in the score of cases held throughout the country, and that a high court decision would be sought.

HEAVY WHISKY REVENUE SEEN

Make it Good and Sell It Cheaply, Says Frank Picard

Detroit, Oct. 24 (AP)—A profit to the state of Michigan through the sale of whisky in state operated stores that will aggregate about $10,000,000 a year was predicted today by Frank A. Picard, of Saginaw, chairman of the state liquor control commission. The prediction was made in an address before the Detroit Kiwanis club today.

Picard expressed opposition to any legislation that would permit the sale of whisky by the glass. He indicated he would not oppose a plan which would permit the sale of bottled highballs and cocktails containing a maximum of 23 percent alcohol, by hotels and restaurants.

Picard advocated the sale of liquor only in state owned stores, but made it clear he was expressing only his personal opinion.

"The only way to get rid of the bootlegger is to make whisky good and sell it cheaply," the commission chairman said. "Through sale by the state you will eliminate the wholesaler's profit, the warehouse profit and the state tax. The retail profit will go to the state in lieu of a tax."

Picard, stating that he was "a wet," declared he believed "the people of Michigan who remain dry deserve some consideration."

"Let me tell you that we are not so far from prohibition in this state yet," he said. "Last November 284,000 persons voted against changing the constitution, and many of the 354,000 who voted wet did so because of the depression, because they were discouraged and disgusted and ready to try anything that was a change."

WANT LONGER HOURS

Detroit, Oct. 24. (AP)—The Detroit NRA compliance board is considering a petition from 360 workers in a Detroit factory, asking that they be permitted to work longer than the maximum hours under the president's reemployment agreement in order to keep their pay checks at the present level.

The couple, John Stone, 63, and Donieeles Dailicias, 62, explained that when they got their license four years ago they thought they had complied with all the marriage laws and went to housekeeping.

Yesterday they learned they were not legally married.

A few months ago the deficit was nearly $19,000,000. It has been whittled down below $14,000,000 by the receipt of taxes and sales tax revenues.

FIVE ARE HURT IN US-2 CRASH

Perkins and Gladstone Cars Meet Head-On; Boy May Die

Occupants of two automobiles received serious injuries at 5:30 p. m. Tuesday in a head-on collision on US 2-41 in the Escanaba city limits near the railroad underpass and the Cyr gas station. Five were taken to St. Francis hospital after the mishap, and it is feared that injuries may prove fatal for one of the victims.

Oliver Miljour, Perkins, cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Felix Miljour, fracture of right leg and right arm, with possible skull fracture.

Bailey's Wisconsin Farm Is Foreclosed

Leavenworth, Kas., Oct. 24 (AP)—Harvey Bailey, southwestern outlaw serving a life sentence here for the kidnaping of Charles F. Urschel, Oklahoma City oil man, was served with a summons and complaint today in a $14,400 farm foreclosure suit brought him in Wisconsin by Mary K. Peterson.

Wife Slayer Given Life in Marquette

Detroit, Oct. 24 (AP)—Trembling, incoherent, and avowedly anxious to "get it over with," 53-year-old Edward J. McCann—for 48 days the object of a nation-wide manhunt—stood in a courtroom here today and sighed with relief when he was given a sentence to life imprisonment at hard labor for slaying his wife and dismembering her body.

"I feel better," said McCann after Recorder's Judge Christopher E. Stein had pronounced the maximum sentence possible under Michigan law.

The sentencing of McCann came less than 24 hours after he had been returned from Chicago where he was captured just 48 days after parts of his wife's body had been found in widely separated places in the outskirts of Detroit.

The arrest was brought about through the persistence of a sister of the slain woman, who saw him in Chicago and notified the police. To Chicago authorities McCann confessed he had choked his wife to death during a quarrel in their beer flat. He became enraged, he said, when she threw a glass of whiskey in his face.

He told how he had hacked up the body, thrown the head into a garbage wagon and then taken the limbs to a sparsely populated section of the county and dropped them in a field.

It was a crowded courtroom that saw the sentencing today of McCann. Brought before Judge Stein, the prisoner stood with his hands folded at his waist.

"How do you plead, Mr. McCann?" asked Judge Stein.

"Guilty," said McCann in a loud voice.

He declined an attorney and said that he had been subjected to no coercion, physical or otherwise, by the police.

"They treated me fine," he said.

"Your crime," said Judge Stein, "is such a horrible deed as to stagger the minds of men. There is only one form of punishment for it. I sentence you for the rest of your natural life to hard labor and solitary confinement at the Marquette branch prison."

McCann appeared more perturbed about the possible fate of two mongrel dogs he owns than he was about himself.

"I love my dogs," he said.

Immediately after the sentencing McCann was returned to police headquarters to await removal later to the northern Michigan prison.

WARRANTS OUT FOR DRY CHIEF

Gladstone. Warrants for the arrest of Oscar Rummler, Marquette, chief of the U. S. prohibition forces in the upper peninsula, on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and felonious assault were issued here yesterday in the court of Justice A. D. Algiure.

According to the story told local authorities, Rummler ran into Johnson's auto parked near the corner of Superior and Central avenues shortly before midnight Monday, while Johnson, engaged as call man for the Soo Line was in a nearby house ordering a railroader to report for work. Johnson returned and was about to get into his car, Rummler accosted and accused him of running into his (Rummler's) auto. Johnson explained that this was impossible as the auto was parked and that he had but returned to it at that moment.

At Rummler's suggestion that they get a local police officer to decide who was in the wrong, Johnson stated, they drove downtown in search of a patrolman. Unable to locate one, Johnson said he would go into Renard's restaurant on Delta avenue and phone the police station. Rummler demurred at this, asking Johnson, "Do you know who I am?"

Knowledge of the man's identity failed to impress Johnson and when he persisted in going into the restaurant to phone, Rummler, it is alleged, grabbed him and drew his gun, saying, "You'll do as I tell you."

Johnson broke away and went into the restaurant and to the phone. Rummler followed, gun in hand, and standing inside the door shouted threateningly at Johnson, "Go ahead and phone, go ahead."

Mrs. Alex Renard, wife of the proprietor, who had gone to the window upon hearing the commotion on the front walk, saw the weapon in Rummler's hand and fearing some harm would come to Johnson, grabbed Rummler's gun arm and stood between the two men while Johnson phoned. Rummler then put the gun away. Another man, Ray Hill, U. S. deputy marshal, also of Marquette, a passenger in Rummler's auto, then came into the place and the men waited until Officer Alfred May appeared on the scene, in answer to the call, and accompanied him to the police station.

They were later released and yesterday morning complaints in the case were made by Johnson and the warrants issued.

Duluth Blanketed With Foot Of Snow

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 24 (AP)—Duluth was covered with 12 inches of snow today, the first heavy fall of the season, while other sections of the state reported a fall varying from a trace to several inches.

The heavy snow failed to hamper lake traffic, but northwest storm warnings were ordered posted today on the upper lakes, with strong northwest winds reaching gale force on Lake Superior forecast for the next 24 hours.

The snow fall was the heaviest for October in 47 years.

DIES IN COLLISION

Calumet, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—George W. L. Oakes, Traverse City, died today following a collision of his auto with one driven by Joseph LaMoore, of Green Bay, Wis., on US-41, 16 miles east of Lane. The vision of both drivers apparently was obscured by a blinding snowstorm.

HIGHER PRICES ARE PROMISED TO PRODUCERS

INCREASED PROFITS AND MORE JOBS, OBJECTIVE

BY RICHARD L. TURNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—The reconstruction corporation will make its first purchase of gold at a fixed price tomorrow and officially set in motion the economic mechanism by which President Roosevelt hopes to achieve a managed currency and higher prices.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the corporation, and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., acting as spokesmen for President Roosevelt, will call at the treasury at 9:30 and with acting Secretary Acheson decide how much of the newly mined metal is to be bought and what price is to be paid for it.

Buy Above Market

They will be supplied with gold quotations from London, Paris and other foreign centers. The price they agree upon is to be slightly higher than the foreign figures.

With President Roosevelt confined to the executive mansion by a cold, officials of the agencies involved were busy today making preparations for the transaction. Numerous details had to be arranged and a system devised for assaying, delivering and storing the metal.

These officials, nevertheless, found time to scan reports of second day market reactions to the president's plan announced in his address of Sunday night. They were pleased to note an upward trend in wheat which carried quotations to the highest point of the current movement, even though the gain was later erased by profit taking. A steady cotton market also brought encouragement.

Taken as Inflation

The dollar slid downward, but this brought no expressions of concern. In fact, it has been intimated that one aim of Mr. Roosevelt's currency program was to encourage such a trend as a means of helping domestic prices.

The stock exchange after puzzling for two days over the effect of the Roosevelt plan on the general economic structure decided late in the day that the move was inflationary in nature and a strong rally ensued. As yesterday, gold stocks were particularly buoyant.

As with virtually all of Mr. Roosevelt's recovery projects, the prime purpose of the gold-buying plan was to increase the prices of the things the farmer and manufacturer produce to a level that would give them a profit and thereby increase business activity and, consequently, employment.

Hope for Results

Gold, it was pointed out, was still the basis of commodity prices despite that they were measured in dollars and that, since the abandonment of the gold standard, dollars could no longer be exchanged for the yellow metal.

Regardless of these factors, government economists said, the currency still had a gold backing. By artificially increasing the number of dollars represented in

CHEESE PLANT MILK DUMPED

Many Factories Close In Wisconsin Farm Strike Drive

(By The Associated Press)

Midwestern market centers reported receipts yesterday continued near normal.

One hundred cheese factories and creameries closed in central Wisconsin; picketeers active in a half dozen counties; southern and eastern Wisconsin unaffected.

Iowa pickets near Omaha and Sioux City withdrew but in several western Iowa counties holiday leaders were reported active in requesting dealers and business men to stop buying farm products.

No activity was reported in other states.

Chicken Dinners May Cut Surplus

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—A couple of chicken dinners for the approximately 3,000,000 families dependent upon charity would, in the opinion of farm experts, do a good bit toward getting rid of a surplus that is keeping prices down.

Consequently, the farm administration may suggest to the federal relief administration that it buy chickens for distribution on Thanksgiving and on Christmas Day.

If a fowl averaging five pounds were served to the families on relief rolls on Thanksgiving and Christmas Day, around 30,000,000 pounds of chicken would be taken off the market.

Belgian Exhibits Beat Paris Show

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP)—Wooden shoes on cobblestones have more appeal for John Q. Public than fan dancers and artists' models.

The Belgian Village at a Century of Progress, with its medieval towers and quaint streets and Flemish peasant dancers, tops all concessions in paid admissions.

More than 2,500,000 persons have seen "Belginm" and paid gate fees totaling more than $604,000, the department of concessions announced today.

Vessels Collide In Fog; Two Dead On U. S. Cruiser

San Francisco, Oct. 24 (AP)—The cruiser Chicago, a new American fighting ship, was badly damaged, two members of her crew died of injuries, another was seriously hurt and a fourth was missing after a collision today with the British freighter Silver Palm.

A great hole was torn in the port side of the Chicago. The bow of the Silver Palm struck her on the port side just forward of the number 1 turret, penetrated the armor plate and bored in until it reached almost to midship.

The Chicago's forward compartment below the water line filled. She began plowing her way toward Mare Island in San Francisco bay for a survey of the damage and for repairs. The Silver Palm, also badly damaged, turned back to San Francisco.

Chief Pay Clerk John W. Troy, Newport, R. I., was killed outright and Lieut. P. S. Chappelle, marine corps, Waterloo, N. Y., died late today of injuries received in the crash. Machinist Joseph A. Ohlers, Camden, N. J., was injured seriously and Lieut. H. A. MacFarlane, Haverhill, Mass., was missing, possibly in the mangled section of the ship.

BY DEVON FRANCIS
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Akron, O., Oct. 24 (AP)—Buffeted about by gusty winds and rain squalls, the giant Graf Zeppelin, winner of many battles with the elements, cruised about the Akron air dock tonight, its scheduled landing postponed until morning.

Enroute to the Chicago World Fair on a mission of good will, the Graf which left Miami, Fla., to Miami, Fla., at 9:45 p. m. Monday night, appeared out of the south at 7:15 p. m. and circled about the field waiting for a change in the weather.

Late tonight, Radiomarine corporation's station in New York picked up a wireless message from the Gray saying she would remain aloft until tomrrow morning.

The message said: "11:30 p. m. —Circling over Akron since hours. Landing tomorrow morning."

Winds which rose and fell in velocity, swept sheets of rain across the vast field and landing conditions were anything but favorable.

However, there was no word that the craft or any of its 21 passengers and crew of 47 had suffered any ill effects in the adverse weather. The passenger list included three children, one a baby of 11 months.

LINDBERGH CASE CLUES IN DOUBT

Alleged Swindler May Not Be Involved In Kidnaping

Boston, Oct. 24 (AP)—The status of John Gorch, 37, alleged swindler, as an aid in the solution of the Lindbergh kidnaping, tonight was clouded in police taciturnity and variance of opinion.

Gorch, a former resident of Hopewell, N. J., was visited in the Charles street jail today by agents of the United States department of justice and New Jersey state, New York City and Boston police.

Lieut. James Finn, of New York, former bodyguard of Col. Charles Lindbergh, emerged from the questioning saying progress had been made in the attempt to solve the kidnaping mystery. He was quoted as saying a "clue" had been garnered from the conversation.

Later, however, a high New York police official said that in a telephone conversation with Finn, he had been informed that the lieutenant in no way connected Gorch with the kidnaping and slaying of the Lindbergh child and that Finn would return to New York immediately.

Sill later, Finn said he probably would return to New York late tomorrow.

Boston police and department of justice officials said they still were operating upon the possibility that Gorch may have been involved in the kidnaping and that probably they would question the suspect further tomorrow.

HEAVY WHISKY REVENUE SEEN

Make it Good and Sell It Cheaply, Says Frank Picard

Detroit, Oct. 24 (AP)—A profit to the state of Michigan through the sale of whisky in state operated stores that will aggregate about $10,000,000 a year was predicted today by Frank A. Picard, of Saginaw, chairman of the state liquor control commission. The prediction was made in an address before the Detroit Kiwanis club today.

Picard expressed opposition to any legislation that would permit the sale of whisky by the glass. He indicated he would not oppose a plan which would permit the sale of bottled highballs and cocktails containing a maximum of 23 percent alcohol, by hotels and restaurants.

Picard advocated the sale of liquor only in state owned stores, but made it clear he was expressing only his personal opinion.

"The only way to get rid of the bootlegger is to make whisky good and sell it cheaply," the commission chairman said. "Through sale by the state you will eliminate the wholesaler's profit, the warehouse profit and the state tax. The retail profit will go to the state in lieu of a tax."

Picard, stating that he was "a wet," declared he believed "the people of Michigan who remain dry deserve some consideration."

"Let me tell you that we are not so far from prohibition in this state yet," he said. "Last November 284,000 persons voted against changing the constitution, and many of the 354,000 who voted wet did so because of the depression, because they were discouraged and disgusted and ready to try anything that was a change."

Yesterday they learned they were not legally married.

Wife Slayer Given Life in Marquette

Detroit, Oct. 24 (AP)—Trembling, incoherent, and avowedly anxious to "get it over with," 53-year-old Edward J. McCann—for 48 days the object of a nation-wide manhunt—stood in a courtroom here today and sighed with relief when he was given a sentence to life imprisonment at hard labor for slaying his wife and dismembering her body.

"I feel better," said McCann after Recorder's Judge Christopher E. Stein had pronounced the maximum sentence possible under Michigan law.

The sentencing of McCann came less than 24 hours after he had been returned from Chicago where he was captured just 48 days after parts of his wife's body had been found in widely separated places in the outskirts of Detroit.

The arrest was brought about through the persistence of a sister of the slain woman, who saw him in Chicago and notified the police. To Chicago authorities McCann confessed he had choked his wife to death during a quarrel in their beer flat. He became enraged, he said, when she threw a glass of whiskey in his face.

He told how he had hacked up the body, thrown the head into a garbage wagon and then taken the limbs to a sparsely populated section of the county and dropped them in a field.

It was a crowded courtroom that saw the sentencing today of McCann. Brought before Judge Stein, the prisoner stood with his hands folded at his waist.

"How do you plead, Mr. McCann?" asked Judge Stein.

"Guilty," said McCann in a loud voice.

He declined an attorney and said that he had been subjected to no coercion, physical or otherwise, by the police.

"They treated me fine," he said.

"Your crime," said Judge Stein, 'is such a horrible deed as to stagger the minds of men. There is only one form of punishment for it. I sentence you for the rest of your natural life to hard labor and solitary confinement at the Marquette branch prison."

McCann appeared more perturbed about the possible fate of two mongrel dogs he owns than he was about himself.

"I love my dogs," he said.

Immediately after the sentencing McCann was returned to police headquarters to await removal later to the northern Michigan prison.

WARRANTS OUT FOR DRY CHIEF

Gladstone.—Warrants for the arrest of Oscar Rummler, Marquette, chief of the U. S. prohibition forces in the upper peninsula, on charges of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor and felonious assault were issued here yesterday in the court of Justice A. D. Alguire.

According to the story told local authorities, Rummler ran into Johnson's auto parked near the corner of Superior and Central avenues shortly before midnight Monday, while Johnson, engaged as call man for the Soo Line was in a nearby house ordering a railroader to report for work. As Johnson returned and was about to get into his car, Rummler accosted and accused him of running into his (Rummler's) auto. Johnson explained that this was impossible as the auto was parked and that he had but returned to it at that moment.

At Rummler's suggestion that they get a local police officer to decide who was in the wrong, Johnson stated, they drove downtown in search of a patrolman. Unable to locate one, Johnson said he would go into Renard's restaurant on Delta avenue and phone the police station. Rummler demurred at this, asking Johnson, "Do you know who I am?"

Knowledge of the man's identity failed to impress Johnson and when he persisted in going into the restaurant to phone, Rummler, it is alleged, grabbed him and drew his gun, saying, "You'll do as I tell you."

Johnson broke away and went into the restaurant and to the phone. Rummler followed, gun in hand, and standing inside the door shouted threateningly at Johnson, "Go ahead and phone, go ahead."

Mrs. Alex Renard, wife of the proprietor, who had gone to the window upon hearing the commotion on the front walk, saw the weapon in Rummler's hand and fearing some harm would come to Johnson, grabbed Rummler's gun arm and stood between the two men while Johnson phoned. Rummler then put the gun away. Another man, Ray Hill, U. S. deputy marshal, also of Marquette, a passenger in Rummler's auto, then came into the place and the men waited until Officer Alfred May appeared on the scene, in answer to the call, and accompanied him to the police station.

They were later released and yesterday morning complaints in the case were made by Johnson and the warrants issued.

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 24 (AP)—Duluth was covered with 12 inches of snow today, the first heavy fall of the season, while other sections of the state reported a fall varying from a trace to several inches.

HIGHER PRICES ARE PROMISED TO PRODUCERS

INCREASED PROFITS AND MORE JOBS, OBJECTIVE

BY RICHARD L. TURNER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—The reconstruction corporation will make its first purchase of gold at a fixed price tomorrow and officially set in motion the economic mechanism by which President Roosevelt hopes to achieve a managed currency and higher prices.

Jesse Jones, chairman of the corporation, and Henry Morgenthau, Jr., acting as spokesmen for President Roosevelt, will call at the treasury at 9:30 and with acting Secretary Acheson decide how much of the newly mined metal is to be bought and what price is to be paid for it.

Buy Above Market

They will be supplied with gold quotations from London, Paris and other foreign centers. The price they agree upon is to be slightly higher than the foreign figures.

With President Roosevelt confined to the executive mansion by a cold, officials of the agencies involved were busy today making preparations for the transaction. Numerous details had to be arranged and a system devised for assaying, delivering and storing the metal.

These officials, nevertheless, found time to scan reports of second day market reactions to the president's plan announced in his address of Sunday night. They were pleased to note an upward trend in wheat which carried quotations to the highest point of the current movement, even though the gain was later erased by profit taking. A steady cotton market also brought encouragement.

Taken as Inflation

The dollar slid downward, but this brought no expressions of concern. In fact, it has been intimated that one aim of Mr. Roosevelt's currency program was to encourage such a trend as a means of helping domestic prices.

The stock exchange after puzzling for two days over the effect of the Roosevelt plan on the general economic structure decided late in the day that the move was inflationary in nature and a strong rally ensued. As yesterday, gold stocks were particularly buoyant.

As with virtually all of Mr. Roosevelt's recovery projects, the prime purpose of the gold-buying plan was to increase the prices of the things the farmer and manufacturer produce to a level that would give them a profit and thereby increase business activity and, consequently, employment.

Hope for Results

Gold, it was pointed out, was still the basis of commodity prices despite that they were measured in dollars and that, since the abandonment of the gold standard, dollars could no longer be exchanged for the yellow metal.

Regardless of these factors, government economists said, the currency still had a gold backing. By artificially increasing the number of dollars represented in

CHEESE PLANT MILK DUMPED

(By The Associated Press)

Midwestern market centers reported receipts yesterday continued near normal.

One hundred cheese factories and creameries closed in central wisconsin; picketeers active in a half dozen counties; southern and easern Wisconsin unaffected.

Iowa pickets near Omaha and Sioux City withdrew but in several western Iowa counties holiday leaders were reported active in requesting dealers and business men to stop buying farm products.

No activity was reported in other states.

Chicken Dinners May Cut Surplus

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—A couple of chicken dinners for the approximately 3,000,000 families dependent upon charity would, in the opinion of farm experts, do a good bit toward getting rid of a surplus that is keeping prices down.

Consequently, the farm administration may suggest to the federal relief administration that it buy chickens for distribution on Thanksgiving and on Christmas Day.

If a fowl averaging five pounds were served to the families on relief rolls on Thanksgiving and Christmas Day, around 30,000,000 pounds of chicken would be taken off the market.

Belgian Exhibits Beat Paris Show

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP)—Wooden shoes on cobblestones have more appeal for John Q. Public than fan dancers and artists' models.

The Belgian Village at a Century of Progress, with its medieval towers and quaint streets and Flemish peasant dancers, tops all concessions in paid admissions.

More than 2,500,000 persons have seen 'Belgium" and paid gate fees totaling more than $604,000, the department of concessions announced today.

Vessels Collide In Fog; Two Dead On U. S. Cruiser

San Francisco, Oct. 24 (AP)—The cruiser Chicago, a new American fighting ship, was badly damaged, two members of her crew died of injuries, another was seriously hurt and a fourth was missing after a collision today with the British freighter Silver Palm.

A great hole was torn in the port side of the Chicago. The bow of the Silver Palm struck her on the port side just forward of the number 1 turret, penetrated the armor plate and bored in until it reached almost to midship.

The Chicago's forward compartment below the water line filled. She began plowing her way toward Mare Island in San Francisco bay for a survey of the damage and for repairs. The Silver Palm, also badly damaged, turned back to San Francisco.

Chief Pay Clerk John W. Troy, Newport, R. I., was killed outright and Lieut. F. S. Chappelle, marine corps, Waterloo, N. Y., died late today of injuries received in the crash. Machinist Joseph A. Ohlers, Camden, N. J., was injured seriously and Lieut. H. A. MacFarlane, Haverhill, Mass., was missing, possibly in the mangled section of the ship.

HULL PLANNING SOUTHERN TRIP

BY JOHN F. CHESTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Simultaneous trade expansion drives along both the Russian and South American front appeared the goal of the United States today with the disclosure by Secretary Hull of plans for a good-will tour below the Equator during the Soviet recognition discussions here.

The secretary said he hoped to sail by the end of next week on a trip that would take him down the west coast of South America to Santiago, Chile. He would then cross by train to Buenos Aires and head the American delegation at the Pan American conference at Montevideo, Uruguay.

Expand Trade Ties

Just as the recognition conversations between President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, will lean heavily upon trade and credit matters between the two countries, so Hull will seek to cement relationships prior to the Montevideo meeting in December.

At the Uruguay conference, the administration hopes to expand trade ties between the two continents. Privately the officials most concerned here have disclosed a desire to build up into a complete structure the materials now being fashioned in the bilateral tariff and trade discussions with the South American powers. The larger aim is to rival the agreements reached at Ottawa between Great Britain and her dominions.

Although Hull said today the state department had not yet been informed when Litvinoff would reach Washington, it appeared likely he would arrive just about the time Hull plans to sail.

The secretary today designated R. Walton Moore, recently appointed assistant secretary of state, and William C. Bullitt, special assistant to the secretary of state, to handle the preparatory work for the Roosevelt-Litvinoff conversations.

CHEAP GOODS FROM ABROAD MENACE NIRA

Three more minor codes, bringing the total to 62, were promulgated by the chief executive. They covered the plumbago crucible, steel tubular and fire box boiler industries, and the industrial supplies and distributors trade.

Answers Critics

Johnson reported that the buying campaign was progressing very well. "I don't want it to go too fast" and that he expected much from it when the release of bank funds and other aid measures now getting under way became fully felt.

The farm opposition, he started by saying, was not responsible for pulling the industrial control program out of the small towns. Actually the step had been decided upon two weeks ago and it was coincidence that some farm spokesmen made demands which were in line with the plan. The reason for pulling out, he said, was that 90 percent of the enforcement difficulties came from the small towns where merchants could not pay the code wages. Retail trade heads, themselves, he argued, had wanted this step taken.

As for criticism of NRA from the farm lands, said Johnson, "when we got through analyzing it I had a clean bill of health."

The gist of the complaints, he said, was that public works money was being spent to slowly, that benefits from the farm program were small, both things outside his unit. He added that he would not modify the NRA pace.

Not a "Fizzle"

The complaint that NRA had moved too fast, and that the Blue Eagle program had proved a fizzle evoked frequently of late, was especially challenged by the administration. It would not have been possible to move slowly, he argued. If one industry were put under a code months ahead of a competitive line, the first comer would have been injured irreparably. So it had to move forward in one wave under the Blue Eagle.

Likewise, he said, except for the Blue Eagle campaign and popular sentiment, NRA would have reached only business of definite interstate character and the program would have failed. Now intrastate trade has been swung in.

Sixteen states, he added, already have adopted statutes to parallel NRA's program so as to furnish enforcement for trade that is not interstate, "and a lot more states will follow."

As for specific re-employment achieved, he said the Blue Eagle agreements positively had made more than two million and less than four million new jobs—the exact figure will be known soon from the count being made by the census bureau.

The retail trade authority set up today will have not only to determine the markup, defined by the code as "allowance for actual wages of store labor" which is to be included in the selling price of merchandise, but its personnel will be members without vote of the retail trade council set up by the trades themselves to administer the code. Johnson, for the time being, will take personal charge of the work.

VANDENBERG TALKS

Big Rapids, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg declared in an address here tonight that the NRA must not be permitted to create "a high cost of living crisis."

The Republican United States senator from Michigan addressed a revival of the old time Republican rally, the Austin Blair banquet in honor of Michigan's Civil war time governor. He prefaced his remarks with the assertion that "I have no sympathy for Republicanism that assails the Democratic program for the mere sake of partisan strategy. The Democrats themselves did entirely too much of that under President Hoover."

"But neither have I any sympathy with Republicanism which thinks that national co-operation requires party paresis and party paralysis," he added.

Pleading for a close watch on the "gigantic and unprecedented experiments upon which we are so bravely launched," Vandenberg asserted that the NRA "must not be permitted to drive small business to the wall and deliver us to the monopolies; it must not put prices up faster than wages and faster than agriculture gets relief and stabilization; it must not precipitate a high cost of living crisis."

The senator pointed to what he termed the centralization of all authority in Washington bureaucrats and which he said "is threatening progress both in public works and the reopening of banks and the release of impounded deposits." He urged a prompt decentralization of this authority and said that "we must take pains not to be permanently saddled with this new and gigantic bureaucracy."

The new Roosevelt drive to reopen the banks, announced this month, Vandenberg said, is "emphatically different from the formula which closed most of the banks last March," and "proves that this administration responds to constructive criticism."

Vandenberg said of General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, after first complimenting some of his work: "When he starts to ostracize newspaper writers for not writing just what he wants written he is entirely too much like Dr. Goebbels who put Hitler's yoke on a free press in Germany the same week and in much the same way."

Vandenberg concluded his address with the prediction that "if the Republican party does its full patriotic duty under Roosevelt as it did under Wilson, the elections in 1934 and 1936 will take care of themselves precisely as they did in 1918 and 1920, as such shall prove to be our destiny."

Actor Mantell, 21, Suicide At Mirror

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 24 (AP)—Robert Mantell, Jr., 21 years old, son of the distinguished Shakespearian actor, faced a mirror in his home here early today and fired a pistol bullet into his head.

He was dead a moment later when his mother, having heard the shot rushed to the room. She is Genevieve Hamper, the favorite in Shakespearian roles and widow of the eminent tragedian.

The "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" were too much for the young man.

Mother and son had visited Garmel from a rehearsal of "The Merchant of Venice." Mr. Mantell was seeking a return to the stage in the role of Portia, filled for tomorrow night. Her son had brooded over failure to find success on the stage.

Pre-Primary Again Up To Legislature

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—The legislature in its coming special session will be given another chance to make pre-primary political conventions compulsory. A subcommittee of the legislative council, meeting here today, agreed to draft a bill to that effect.

Governor Comstock favors the pre-primary system, which has been employed by the Democratic Governor Howard C. Luce, chairman of the Republican state central committee and member of the subcommittee of which he is chairman, is heartily in favor of the project.

The committee also proposes to recommend that county political committees be elected rather than appointed by party candidates. Luce believed such a law would go some way toward party discipline.

State Accounting All In Hands Of Auditor General

Lansing, Oct. 24. (AP) The state administrative board voted today to wipe out the centralized accounting system established by former Governor Alex J. Groesbeck 12 years ago and place all accounting in the hands of the auditor general.

The central accounting division, which has been under the control of the state administrative board secretary, probably will be maintained in its present quarters but it will be merged with the auditor general's department.

The board's action today was taken on motion by John K. Stack Jr., auditor general. He declared two accounting systems cause confusion.

"There is no way of getting a true picture of the state's financial condition under the dual accounting system," he said. "The central accounting division has one report and the auditor general another. If the state were called upon to give the exact status of any of its accounts it would take several hours to compile the facts."

German Agitator May Be Deported

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—A protest meeting before Mayor John P. O'Brien over his cancellation of a German patriotic celebration today brought announcement from the house immigration committee's chairman that he would seek deportation of a member of the "Steel Helmets."

It also brought the mayor promise of a public hearing tomorrow on his ban.

Rep. Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the house immigration committee, said he would urge immediately that the department of labor deport Boing Spark, leader a member of the German "Steel Helmets" and a delegate to the protest meeting.

"It is agitators of the sort of the Spark should," Dickstein said, "that we are going to get rid of and about 40 others like him."

Deadline On 1932 Taxes November 1

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP) The deadline for paying 1932 taxes in only a week away, officials of the auditor general's department warned today.

The last legislature decreed that last years taxes may be paid without penalties or interest up to November 1. Failure to meet the obligation means that 10% per cent immediately will be added to tax bills, superseding a four per cent penalty for delinquency, plus a charge of three fourths of one per cent a month since last March, the time when taxes normally became due.

ROBBERIES LAID TO FELON GANG

Indiana Welcomes Help to Round Up Escaped Convicts

Indianapolis, Oct. 24 (AP)—Indiana authorities, agitated over a series of depredations attributed to the gang of convicts that escaped Sept. 26 from the Michigan City state prison, today welcomed an offer of aid from the federal government in rounding up the felons.

Capt. Matt Leach of the state police this afternoon conferred with agents of the justice department's bureau of investigation who tendered their assistance at the direction of Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau.

The offer of federal aid came as an aftermath of two bank robberies, one at Greencastle yesterday in which approximately $75,000 in currency and bonds was stolen, and another today at South Bend where the robbers obtained $1,500 in cash and $1,000 worth of bonds.

Men Identified

Officers said the men who participated in the Greencastle holdup had been definitely identified as members of the Dillinger-Pierpont gang, headed by Harry Pierpont, one of the escaped convicts, and John Dillinger, alleged bank robber who was released from the Lima, O., jail recently by three men who shot and killed Sheriff Jess Sarber.

William Schaeffer, living near New Haven in the northeastern portion of the state, reported yesterday that he was held up and robbed near his home by two men, one of whom resembled Joseph Burns, a member of the band that broke prison.

Frank Grube, Chicago White Sox catcher, motoring across northern Indiana, reported being robbed last night near Laporte by two bandits traveling in a car bearing an Illinois license plates. The ball player said he was robbed of $100.

Crimes attributed by police to the Dillinger Pierpont gang in addition to the slaying of the Lima, O., sheriff include the $12,000 holdup of a bank at St Mary's, O., on Oct. 6; the holdup of a bank messenger at Gas City, Ind., on Oct. 6; the looting of a police station at Auburn, Ind., Oct. 14 when several machine guns, rifles and pistols were taken, and a similar raid on the police station at Peru, Ind., Oct. 21.

Ironwood Pioneer Dies

Ironwood—John W. Mullen, 83, retired merchant, died at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home at 514 North Lowell street. Death was caused by infirmities of old age. He had been ailing for two months.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning, with services at St. Ambrose church at 10:30 o'clock. The Rev. J. B. Moriarty will officiate. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

Mr. Mullen was one of the early settlers of Ironwood, coming here in 1886 and retiring from business in 1918. For many years he and his brother, Pat, were in business under the firm name of Mullen Brothers.

If, theoretically, an ounce of gold were the equivalent in value of a certain quantity of wheat and the number of dollars that gold represented were increased, there would be, it was argued, an increase in the number of dollars that particular quantity of wheat would command in the markets.

While dissenting views have been expressed, Mr. Roosevelt and his advisors evidenced belief that the results would be what they were hoping for.

Expansion Urged

Thus far, there had been no announcement of plans for direct operations by the RFC in the world's gold markets. Such activities were announced by Mr. Roosevelt as a part of his monetary plan and presumably might be expected later. Buying gold abroad, it has been suggested, might be the tool with which he would keep the dollar depressed in terms of foreign currencies, for, it was contended in some quarters, there is still difference between foreign gold with dollars and selling dollars for foreign exchange.

While Washington continued to argue over just how inflationary the Roosevelt move might be expected to be, a group of inflationists, including members of congress, farm organization and industrial leaders adopted a resolution urging the president to expand the currency immediately.

The measure also urged government control of all monetary gold, payments to depositors in closed banks by January 1 and the widest practicable use of silver in currency expansion. It asserted that the "substitution of credits or debts for currency cannot restore prosperity."

Silver Wants Help

The group that approved the resolution included Senator Thomas (D. Okla.) a leader of the inflation bloc, who previously had expressed himself as well pleased with the Roosevelt monetary move. Others who participated were John F. Hylan, former mayor of New York, James H. Rand, Jr., chairman of the committee for the nation, E. E. Kennedy of Kankakee, Ill., of the National Farmers Union, and former Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma.

With the gold program underway, some congressional exponents of silver monetization said they expected Mr. Roosevelt to direct his attention to some means of helping the producers of the white metal. Senator Pittman, (D. Nev.), said the gold plan would further depress the price of silver unless some action to avoid this result were taken.

Snowfall Heralds Arrival Of Winter In Upper Peninsula

Petoskey, Mich., Oct. 24. (AP)—Snow fell in many sections of Michigan today, the first of the season, and the weatherman looked into overcast skies to predict more of the white flakes as advance guard for the approach of winter.

At Petoskey a white blanket covered the city and surrounding sections, before the snowfall turned to a light rain. The temperature was 35 above zero. Cheboygan, Big Rapids, and other cities of the northern part of the lower peninsula, also reported snow.

In upper Michigan, where winter arrives at an earlier date and stays longer, snowplows were used in some sections as a heavy wind drifted snow across highways. From Copper Harbor to Houghton snow was reported in varying quantities, along with chilly weather.

In lower Michigan, the weatherman predicted colder weather tonight with snow possible in many sections as skies remained overcast.

Bones Of Woman Sought In Ruins Of Jackson Fire

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—Sheriff's deputies tonight were examining charred bones found in the ruins of the basement of 76-year-old Joe Tasker's home northwest of here, trying to determine whether they were part of the remains of Evelyn Morris, 50 believed to have been in the home when it burned Monday.

Tasker is in a hospital here suffering from critical burns, in too serious a condition to be interviewed. The fact that he has a head wound, however, has led to an official investigation to determine the circumstances of the fire.

The officials said that Miss Morris, a housekeeper for James Gibbons of Jackson, was taken to Tasker's home Sunday night by a friend. The fire occurred early Monday, and after Tasker was brought to the hospital, semi conscious, he inquired anxiously if the woman "got out all right." A search of the debris was begun at once.

Corn Processing Tax Fixed At 28 Cents Per Bushel

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—A processing tax of 28 cents per bushel on corn was fixed today by Secretary Wallace with the approval of President Roosevelt.

The fifth to be levied on one of the seven basic commodities defined by the farm adjustment act, it becomes effective November 5, the same date that the hog processing levy applies.

The tax on corn and hogs is depended upon to finance the production control program for corn and hogs at a maximum cost of approximately $350,000,000.

In making the announcement, Wallace said the rate of 28 cents per bushel of 56 pounds was the difference between the average farm price for field corn and "the fair exchange value of field corn."

The fair exchange value is the amount which corn must bring to have the purchasing power it had in the period from 1909 to 1914.

Corn products which will be taxed as "floor stocks" include corn meal, corn flakes (breakfast food type), peal or table hominy, cornstarch, dextrines, glucose syrups and sugars, corn oil, corn gluten feed and corn gluten meal.

Oakland County Delegation Asks For School Help

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—The state again was asked to guarantee school aid when a delegation of more than 100 persons from Oakland county appeared before the administrative board today. Petitions urging action in this direction in the forthcoming special session of the legislature were left with Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, who presided over the board in the absence of Governor Comstock.

John K. Stack, auditor general, told the delegation he was certain the sales tax will produce $45,000,000 a year. This would leave $14,000,000 for the schools, he said. School leaders have insisted $15,000,000 is the least they can get along with. So far the sales tax has netted less than $3,000,000 a month.

Thieves Start Fire

Iron Mountain—Two cars, owned respectively by William D. Cochran and Arthur Koehler, of this city, were badly damaged by fire Saturday evening when gasoline in the tank of one car was ignited by a match used by thieves who were attempting to steal some of the fuel.

About 6,248,800 George Washington quarters were issued by the United States government in 1932.

Reason For Stack Economy Revealed

The reason Auditor General Stack pays out state money with such reluctance has become known, according to Guy H. Jenkins, Lansing correspondent of the Grand Rapids Press.

Jenkins tells the following story about the auditor general:

In his younger days John was working in a western state. The outgo was more rapid than the income. He got behind in his room and board bill. Finally he wrote his father seeking a loan to get himself out of his financial difficulties.

The father replied with good advice but the requested check of $50 was not forthcoming. In substance, the elder Stack wrote the present auditor general:

"Do your own laundry. Move into a cheaper room and then live within your income.

"Affectionately,
"Your Father."

Mayer To Address Scout Troop '60'

Howard Mayer, formerly deputy commissioner of the Boy Scout Council of Detroit, will deliver a talk on Scouting at the meeting of Troop 60 at the St. Patrick's parish hall Thursday evening.

The Scouts will also hold a Beano party at the meeting.

The council with which Mr. Mayer was affiliated in Detroit had a membership of 1600 Boy Scouts. He is now associated with the Fair Store here.

All members of the troop and other boys who wish to join are urged to attend.

BY JOHN F. CHESTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Simultaneous trade expansion drives along both the Russian and South American front appeared the goal of the United States today with the disclosure by Secretary Hull of plans for a good-will tour below the Equator during the Soviet recognition discussions here.

The secretary said he hoped to sail by the end of next week on a trip that would take him down the west coast of South America to Santiago, Chile. He would then cross by train to Buenos Aires and head the American delegation at the Pan American conference at Montevideo, Uruguay.

Expand Trade Ties

Just as the recognition conversations between President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, will lean heavily upon trade and credit matters between the two countries, so Hull will seek to cement relationships prior to the Montevideo meeting in December.

At the Uruguay conference, the administration hopes to expand trade ties between the two continents. Privately the officials most concerned here have disclosed a desire to build up into a complete structure the materials now being fashioned in the bilateral tariff and trade discussions with the South American powers. The larger aim is to rival the agreements reached at Ottawa between Great Britain and her dominions.

Although Hull said today the state department had not yet been informed when Litvinoff would reach Washington, it appeared likely he would arrive just about the time Hull plans to sail.

The secretary today designated R. Walton Moore, recently appointed assistant secretary of state, and William C. Bullitt, special assistant to the secretary of state, to handle the preparatory work for the Roosevelt-Litvinoff conversations.

Three more minor codes, bringing the total to 62, were promulgated by the chief executive. They covered the plumbago crucible, steel tubular and fire box boiler industries, and the industrial supplies and distributors trade.

Answers Critics

Johnson reported that the buying campaign was progressing very well—"I don't want it to go too fast"—and that he expected much from it when the release of bank funds and other aid measures now getting under way became fully felt.

The NRA director, at a press conference cut loose with a vigorous answer to critics of his unit and his administration.

The farm opposition, he started by saying, was not responsible for pulling the industrial control program out of the small towns. Actually the step had been decided upon two weeks ago and it was coincidence that some farm spokesmen made demands which were in line with the plan. The reason for pulling out, he said, was that 90 percent of the enforcement difficulties came from the small towns where merchants could not pay the code wages. Retail trade heads, themselves, he argued, had wanted this step taken.

As for criticism of NRA from the farm lands, said Johnson, "when we got through analyzing it I had a clean bill of health."

The gist of the complaints, he said, was that public works money was being spent to slowly, that benefits from the farm program were small, both things outside his unit. He added that he would not modify the NRA pace:

Not a "Fizzle"

The complaint that NRA had moved too fast, and that the Blue Eagle program had proved a fizzle—voiced frequently of late—was especially challenged by the administration. It would not have been possible to move slowly, he argued. If one industry were put under a code months ahead of a competitive line, the first comer would have been injured irreparably. So it had to move forward in one wave under the Blue Eagle.

Likewise, he said, except for the Blue Eagle campaign and popular sentiment, NRA would have reached only business of definite interstate character and the program would have failed. Now intrastate trade has been swung in.

Sixteen states, he added, already have adopted statutes to parallel NRA's program so as to furnish enforcement for trade that is not interstate, "and a lot more states will follow."

As for specific re-employment achieved, he said the Blue Eagle agreements positively had made more than two million and less than four million new jobs—the exact figure will be known soon from the count being made by the census bureau.

The retail trade authority set up today will have not only to determine the markup, defined by the code as "allowance for actual wages of store labor" which is to be included in the selling price of merchandise, but its personnel will be members without vote of the retail trade council set up by the trades themselves to administer the code. Johnson, for the time being, will take personal charge of the work.

VANDENBERG TALKS

Big Rapids, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg declared in an address here tonight that the NRA must not be permitted to create "a high cost of living crisis."

The Republican United States senator from Michigan addressed a revival of the old time Republican rally, the Austin Blair banquet in honor of Michigan's Civil war time governor. He prefaced his remarks with the assertion that "I have no sympathy for Republicanism that assails the Democratic program for the mere sake of partisan strategy. The Democrats themselves did entirely too much of that under President Hoover."

"But neither have I any sympathy with Republicanism which thinks that national co-operation requires party paresis and party paralysis," he added.

Pleading for a close watch on the "gigantic and unprecedented experiments upon which we are so bravely launched," Vandenberg asserted that the NRA "must not be permitted to drive small business to the wall and deliver us to the monopolies; it must not put prices up faster than wages and faster than agriculture gets relief and stabilization; it must not precipitate a high cost of living crisis."

The senator pointed to what he termed the centralization of all authority in Washington bureaucrats and which he said "is threatening progress both in public works and the reopening of banks and the release of impounded deposits." He urged a prompt decentralization of this authority and said that "we must take pains not to be permanently saddled with this new and gigantic bureaucracy."

The new Roosevelt drive to reopen the banks, announced this month, Vandenberg said, is "emphatically different from the formula which closed most of the banks last March," and "proves that this administration responds to constructive criticism."

Vandenberg said of General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, after first complimenting some of his work: "When he starts to ostracize newspaper writers for not writing just what he wants written he is entirely too much like Dr. Goebbels who put Hitler's yoke on a free press in Germany the same week and in much the same way."

Vandenberg concluded his address with the prediction that "if the Republican party does its full patriotic duty under Roosevelt as it did under Wilson, the elections in 1934 and 1936 will take care of themselves precisely as they did in 1918 and 1920, if such shall prove to be our deserts."

Actor Mantell, 21, Suicide At Mirror

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 24 (AP)—Robert Mantell, Jr., 21-year-old son of the distinguished Shakespearian actor, faced a mirror in his home here early today and fired a pistol bullet into his head.

He was dead a moment later when his mother having heard the shot rushed to the room. She is Genevieve Hamper, one time favorite in Shakespearean roles and widow of the eminent tragedian.

The "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" were too much for the young man.

Mother and son had just returned from a rehearsal of "The Merchant of Venice." Mrs. Mantell was seeking a return to the stage in the role of Portia, billed for tomorrow night. Her son had brooded over failure to find success on the stage.

Pre-Primary Again Up To Legislature

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—The legislature, in its coming special session, will be given another chance to make pre-primary political conventions compulsory. A sub-committee of the legislative council, meeting here today, agreed to draft a bill to that effect.

Governor Comstock favors the pre-primary system, which has been employed by the Democrats for several years. Howard C. Lawrence, chairman of the Republican state central committee and a member of the sub-committee, also declared he is "heartily in favor of the proposal."

The committee also probably will recommend that county political committees be elected rather than chosen by party candidates. Lawrence believed such a law would promote party discipline.

State Accounting All In Hands Of Auditor General

Lansing, Oct. 24. (AP)—The state administrative board voted today to wipe out the centralized accounting system established by former Governor Alex J. Groesbeck 12 years ago and place all accounting in the hands of the auditor general.

The central accounting division, which has been under the control of the state administrative board secretary, probably will be maintained in its present quarters but it will be merged with the auditor general's department.

The board's action today was taken on motion by John K. Stack Jr., auditor general. He declared two accounting systems cause confusion.

"There is no way of getting a true picture of the state's financial condition under the dual accounting system," he said. "The central accounting division has one report and the auditor general another. If the state were called upon to give the exact status of any of its accounts it would take several hours to compile the facts."

German Agitator May Be Deported

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—A protest meeting before Mayor John P. O'Brien over his cancellation of a German patriotic celebration today brought announcement from the house immigration committee's chairman that he would seek deportation of a member of the "Steel Helmets."

It also brought the mayor's promise of a public hearing tomorrow on his ban.

Rep. Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the house immigration committee, said he would urge immediately that the department of labor deport Heinz Spanknoebel, a member of the German "Steel Helmets" and a delegate to the protest meeting.

"It is agitators of the sort of this Spanknoebel," Dickstein said, "that we are going to get rid of—and about 40 others like him."

Deadline On 1932 Taxes November 1

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—The deadline for paying 1932 taxes in only a week away, officials of the auditor general's department warned today.

The last legislature decreed that last year's taxes may be paid without penalties or interest up to November 1. Failure to meet the obligation means that 10¾ per cent immediately will be addd to tax bills, representing a four per cent penalty for delinquency plus a charge of three-fourths of one per cent a month since last March, the time when taxes normally became due.

Debo said that Sachse's minimum term, less good time, expires on that date.

ROBBERIES LAID TO FELON GANG

Indianapolis, Oct. 24 (AP)—Indiana authorities, agitated over a series of depredations attributed to the gang of convicts that escaped Sept. 26 from the Michigan City state prison, today welcomed an offer of aid from the federal government in rounding up the felons.

Capt. Matt Leach of the state police this afternoon conferred with agents of the justice department's bureau of investigation who tendered their assistance at the direction of Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau.

The offer of federal aid came as an aftermath of two bank robberies, one at Greencastle yesterday in which approximately $75,000 in currency and bonds was stolen, and another today at South Bend where the robbers obtained $1,500 in cash and $1,000 worth of bonds.

Men Identified

Officers said the men who participated in the Greencastle holdup had been definitely identified as members of the Dillinger-Pierpont gang, headed by Harry Pierpont, one of the escaped convicts, and John Dillinger, alleged bank robber who was released from the Lima, O., jail recently by three men who shot and killed Sheriff Jess Sarber.

William Schaeffer, living near New Haven in the northeastern portion of the state, reported yesterday that he was held up and robbed near his home by two men, one of whom resembled Joseph Burns, a member of the band that broke prison.

Frank Grube, Chicago White Sox catcher, motoring across northern Indiana, reported being robbed last night near Laporte by two bandits traveling in a car bearing an Illinois license plates. The ball player said he was robbed of $100.

Crimes attributed by police to the Dillinger-Pierpont gang in addition to the slaying of the Lima, O., sheriff include the $12,000 holdup of a bank at St. Mary's, O., on Oct. 6; the holdup of a bank mesenger at Gas City, Ind., on Oct. 6; the looting of a police station at Auburn, Ind., Oct. 14 when several machine guns, rifles and pistols were taken; and a similar raid on the police station at Peru, Ind., Oct. 21.

Corn Processing Tax Fixed At 28 Cents Per Bushel

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—A processing tax of 28 cents per bushel on corn was fixed today by Secretary Wallace with the approval of President Roosevelt.

The fifth to be levied on one of the seven basic commodities defined by the farm adjustment act, it becomes effective November 5, the same date that the hog processing levy applies.

The tax on corn and hogs is depended upon to finance the production control program for corn and hogs at a maximum cost of approximately $350,000,000.

In making the announcement, Wallace said the rate of 28 cents per bushel of 56 pounds was the difference between the average farm price for field corn and "the fair exchange value of field corn."

The fair exchange value is the amount which corn must bring to have the purchasing power it had in the period from 1909 to 1914.

Corn products which will be taxed as "floor stocks" include corn meal, corn flakes (breakfast food type), peal or table hominy, cornstarch, dextrines, glucose syrups and sugars, corn oil, corn glutten feed and corn glutten meal.

Oakland County Delegation Asks For School Help

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—The state again was asked to guaranteed school aid when a delegation of more than 100 persons from Oakland county appeared before the administrative board today. Petitions urging action in this direction in the forthcoming special session of the legislature were left with Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, who presided over the board in the absence of Governor Comstock.

John K. Stack, auditor general, told the delegation he was certain the sales tax will produce $45,000,000 a year. This would leave $14,000,000 for the schools, he said. School leaders have insisted $15,000,000 is the least they can get alng with. So far the sales tax has netted less than $3,000,000 a month.

Thieves Start Fire

Iron Mountain — Two cars, owned respectively by William D. Cochran and Arthur Koehler, of this city, were badly damaged by fire Saturday evening when gasoline in the tank of one car was ignited by a match used by thieves who were attempting to steal some of the fuel.

About 6,248,800 George Washington quarters were issued by the United States government in 1932.

Reason For Stack Economy Revealed

The reason Auditor General Stack pays out state money with such reluctance has become known, according to Guy H. Jenkins, Lansing correspondent of the Grand Rapids Press.

Jenkins tells the following story about the aditor general:

In his younger days John was working in a western state. The outgo was more rapid than the income. He got behind in his room and board bill. Finally he wrote his father seeking a loan to get himself out of his financial difficulties.

The father replied with good advice but the requested check of $50 was not forthcoming. In substance, the elder Stack wrote the present auditor general:

"Do your own laundry. Move into a cheaper room and then live within your income.

"Affectionately,
"Your Father."

STACK DEVISES NEW TAX PLAN

Hopes to Save $175,000 in Reporting Delinquent Returns

A proposal for a change in the manner of reporting delinquent tax returns to the state which he estimates would save $175,000 a year has been forwarded today to county treasurers of Michigan by Auditor General John K. Stack, Jr.

In a letter to the county officials, Mr. Stack points out that the methods followed in reporting delinquent taxes for the past have necessitated an immense amount of extra work for which extra employes had been engaged by the state to transcribe items running up to a million and a half in number in setting up "tax books." These books have been the basis upon which delinquent tax lists had been prepared for action by the state in connection with collection efforts and tax sales in the past.

The auditor general has suggested a method of compiling the return of delinquent taxes differing from the methods used in the past which would greatly simplify the returns, and reduce to a small fraction the amount of work necessary in handling them in the state offices. It involves instructions by county treasurers to township and city officials making returns so that a uniform policy would be followed. In order to effect this, he has suggested that each county treasurer call a meeting of the various collecting officers of the county before the next delinquent returns are made. He suggests this meeting be held in February.

Alphabet System Abandoned

The basic difference proposed is that the alphabetical system of listing returns be abandoned, and that listings be in accordance with geographical location within sections.

"If the state retains the sales tax law" said Auditor General Stack, in his letter, "there is, of course, a probability that within the next year or two no state tax will be levied and, if so, then the state would not be so vitally interested in delinquent taxes, and the legislature might adopt a new tax law leaving the enforcement of the nature of collection of delinquent taxes to the various counties. If so, they would, of course, be faced with the necessity of keeping a record of the delinquent taxes in the manner suggested above."

Perfection of apparatus to eliminate static completely from two-way radio telephonic conversations, is announced. The Navy will equip all airports with the device which operate on an ultra-short wave.

School Children Plan to Observe Event Appropriately

Friday, Oct. 27, the 158th anniversary of the establishment of the American navy, will be observed as Navy day here with appropriate exercises, Marvin L. Coon, local chairman of the Michigan Navy Day observance committee, announces.

"The purpose of the observance," Mr. Coon says, "is to commemorate the fine achievements and traditions, in both war and peace, of the American Navy and its personnel, and to bring them to the attention of the general public; to inspire pride in and regard for the Navy, our first line of defense in case of aggression by a foreign power; to impress upon our minds the necessity for always commanding world-wide respect for our flag, our nation and our ideals by keeping the Navy adequate and efficient, and to foster such public interest that our Navy never will be permitted to deteriorate to a point that might endanger our peace and security."

COMMISSION MUST ACT

ANNOUNCEMENT was made at Lansing on Monday of federal approval being accorded to $2,847,000 in road construction projects in Michigan, of which $409,000 will be allocated to the upper peninsula. Included in the list of projects finally approved is an appropriation of $25,000 for completing 1.7 miles of concrete on M-35, within the city of Escanaba, all of the right of way for which was purchased last year and with the grade in readiness for concrete since early in the past summer. In addition to the Escanaba project there is included in list approved a total of $204,000 for a bridge and widening and surfacing 25 miles on M-28 in Chippewa county; $150,000 for two bridges and grading and surfacing 12 miles in Houghton county and $30,000 for grading three miles in Keweenaw county. Announcement was made a few days ago of approval being given to the construction of slightly less than a mile of pavement at Powers, in Menominee county, next year, to provide a new connection between U. S. 41 and U. S. 2, through an underpass the North Western railway will construct during the present winter.

In the announcement made at Lansing on Monday the fact is stressed that although federal approval has been given to $2,847,000 worth of projects in Michigan, contracts cannot be advertised or awarded until plans and specifications for these projects have also been approved by federal authorities.

This statement is in direct contradiction to a statement recently issued by officials of the federal bureau of public roads, who for several weeks have been attempting to correct the mistaken impression that road work financed by federal funds must be done solely by contract. On Oct. 2, Secretary Ickes issued a statement that goes even further in the matter, when he stated that all regulations, which might slow the highway construction program, are abandoned temporarily. Effective at once it was announced that states may begin work without first presenting plans, without awarding contracts and without advertising for bids. In other words the machinery has been definitely set up for the federal government to approve all expenditures on winter highway work, on which welfare labor is employed.

To meet the situation last winter the Michigan state highway department authorized over $2,000,000 in contracts and secured more than $1,000,000 in RFC funds for use in the employment of welfare labor on highways of upper peninsula. In addition to this amount spent by the state highway department, through county highway commissions in the upper peninsula last winter many counties spent large sums derived from local bond issues, weight tax funds and property taxes, in order to as adequately as possible meet the unemployment situation in this section of the state.

In spite of the announcement from Lansing that voluminous red tape must be complied with before winter employment can be provided for jobless men in Michigan, the federal government has set up the machinery by which funds can be secured for immediate work, with greater dispatch than was possible even last winter.

Highway commissions of the upper peninsula where it is now certain that drastic unemployment conditions are to extend through the present winter should immediately take action under the federal machinery now set up, in order that families of jobless men in this section may not be forced to suffer undue privation during the coming winter. Such conditions have been prevented in the past, they cannot be permitted to develop this winter.

GRIM REMINDERS

THE dark and horrible depths which human nature can contain never are revealed more frightfully than in stories of lynchings.

The latest of the affair in Maryland, where a mob broke into a jail, dragged out an accused negro, and hanged him is a case in point.

After the negro had been hanged and the body burned, news dispatches relate, "the rope was cut into small pieces and distributed as souvenirs among members of the mob."

Just what kind of person is it, do you suppose, who would enjoy having a souvenir of that kind?

For a glimpse of human nature at its lowest, that paragraph about the distribution of those bits of rope is about as horrifying as anything the newspapers have printed in a long time.

MARK UP ONE FOR NRA

A STATEMENT issued by George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, says that employment in the textile industry has returned to pre-depression levels under the textile code, with wages increased and working hours reduced. The total weekly payroll has advanced nearly 100 per cent over the payroll averages for March.

It hasn't done as much as some of us hoped it would do, to be sure. It hasn't abolished unemployment or ended industrial strife or restored prosperity.

But it does seem to have accomplished some very important results, just the same. This revival of the textile industry's employment and payroll figures is an achievement worth all the NRA has cost.

FACT OR FANCY?

ARE there monsters in the deep such as lived there during those countless centuries before human history began? There have been occasional stories of sea monsters that might have been passed from lip to lip to keep daring boys from swimming out too far, but F. W. Kemp, a member of the Archives Staff of the Province of British Columbia, told a story of a sea monster that he and his family had kept quiet because of fear of public ridicule. And he told the story only after Major Langley, clerk of the British Columbia legislature told only two weeks ago of having seen a beast that answered the same description. Here is Mr Kemp's report.

"I was picnicking with my wife and 16-year-old son on Chatham Island. I observed a heavy wash coming down the Gulf of Georgia from the north. I though at first it was just a tide rip. Then I was amazed to see huge coils come out of the top of the water like a snake. . . . The total length of these coils must have been at least 50 ft. and they were five feet thick, I should think. They came twisting out of the water so high that I could see right under them.

"They seemed a bluish green color, but shone in the sun like aluminum. The rear part of the creature was agitated with propulsions like diesel fins. The extreme end of this lied about 6 the water like a propeller.

"My wife and son both saw it and stood dumb with amazement then to our horror the thing reared up to a high rock and thrust its great head and neck a full 10 feet out of the water and waved it about as if it were nothing. Its head was some 500 yard away and I could not see the exact shape of its head but it was much thicker than the body. Then it sank down into the water again and shot away, making a great wash of white foam."

Is it a matter for the usual incredulous smile? Science has pretty well satisfied everyone that monsters of the future described must have once roamed this world in great numbers. The fossil remains that have dotted the ravages of time indicate that pretty clearly. Is it any more daring to believe that they still exist than that they have become obliterated?

Forgotten Sweetheart

(By NEA Service) BY MARY RAYMOND

CHAPTER XXII

It was a little before 10 o'clock that evening when Lois Clayton, who shared the tiny apartment with Pat, heard the latch key in the hall door. Pat entered, her eyes shining queerly, her cheeks flushed.

"Why, Pat!" Lois' voice was amazed. "What are you doing back so early?"

"That's what I said."

"You'll probably be fired."

"I thought of that, too."

"Good heavens, Pat," Lois said soberly, "couldn't you have stayed just an hour or so longer?"

"No," Pat said. "I couldn't. Not for a hundred jobs. He got fresh." Her face flamed suddenly. "Oh, Lois, he tried to kiss me in the taxi! He called me 'girlie,' and thought I was stalling when I pulled away."

"The old sap!" said Lois. "But you don't find a new job every day."

Pat was silent. There was something she couldn't tell Lois. About the taxi stopping in front of a speakeasy. She couldn't say "Once I tried being a good sport, Lois," because then she would have to explain about Jerry and the tragic climax to that night. Tonight had been an opportunity to justify herself, though she had not analyzed it in that way. "I couldn't have looked myself in the face if I'd gone to a place like that to save my job," Pat thought.

"What in the world did you do?" Lois queried.

Pat laughed. "Well, when he stepped out of the taxi to the sidewalk I made up my mind I wouldn't get out. I slammed the door and said to the driver 'Drive on please.' I think he was so astonished that he started the car without thinking. Thank goodness, I had enough to pay the taxi bill! I wish you could have seen Mr. Brentford standing there with his mouth open, like a surprised old fish!"

"Gosh, Pat, I'm afraid it will cost you your job."

"Anyway," Pat said, "I'm glad I did it." She was slipping out of gown, her blond curls loosened, she sat on the edge of the bed. "What business had the manager to fix a date up for me, anyway?"

"Why didn't you beg off then? You might have said your fiance was in town. Or that you were sick."

"Tried it," Pat said grimly, "but it didn't work. I had a feeling something was up when I walked into that office and saw this old fellow waiting in the next room. So I said to Mr. Livingston 'I hope everything was all right this afternoon. If anything was wrong, you'll have to excuse me because I've been feeling ill all day.'"

"I call that smooth," Lois said.

"Well, he just smiled, Lois, and said, "I didn't notice anything wrong. I thought you looked swell in the white evening dress. Mr. Brentford, one of our best customers, thought so too.' Then he went on about how he was sure I was going to prove myself a valuable employe and before long he'd have to speak to the cashier about a little raise. And some more hokum about expecting co-operation from all the employes and how we were all like one big family. Then he said this Brentford wanted to run out for dinner and a show and he knew he could count on me to entertain such a good friend of the firm for a few hours."

"Smooth, too," said Lois. "And then he dated you up with the old gink. Maybe this Brentford's a good scout, after all, and won't tell. Maybe he's so vain he'll be ashamed to tell your boss he didn't make a hit with you."

"Maybe." But Pat's tone was doubtful.

Nothing unusual happened during the next morning. Pat became more hopeful as the customary routine progressed. Lunch hour came and still there were no signs of a storm brewing. But a little later Jane drew Pat to one side. The look on her face warned that trouble was on the way.

* * *

"What happened last night?" Jane asked.

"I couldn't go through with it."

"There wasn't any reason for you to get the jitters. Lots of girls have let Tony Brentford pay for a swell dinner for them. When he found they wer n't ambitious, that was all there wa to it. All Mr Livingston expects is tact, so there'll be no hard feelings."

"Break the bad news," Pat said abruptly.

"Well, you cost the firm a nice order. And nice orders aren't picked up very often these days. Brentford cancelled everything. You haven't a chance to stay. Anything in sight?"

Pat shook her head. "Only Mulligan stews for awhile."

"I'm sorry, Pat." Admiration and pity were mingled in Jane's eyes. "Mr. Livingston told me to ask you to stop by the cashier's desk this afternoon."

"Thanks, Jane."

Well, that was that. At five Pat got her envelope. Inside were several crisp bills her salary to date, and a brief memorandum attached. "After today your services will not be needed."

Pat read it with a wry little smile about her mouth, reached up to pull her small hat to a more nonchalant angle, and bravely walked out of the building.

She would have to find a cheaper place to live at once. Lois could get someone else to come in to the apartment. And Pat would have to find a job.

She located the cheaper place without trouble—a fairly large room with a cubby-hole and gas plate where she could prepare her meals. The two windows would be a comfort and compensate for many other defects and deficiences, Pat decided. There were faded curtains at the windows, a faded rug and mismatched furniture, but the place was clean and it was at the rear of the building. That was desirable because it made it quieter.

* * *

"Just a little," Joan confessed.

"No need. You'll go over all right." He was smiling, pleased with her appearance, confident, already savoring success. He reached forward, caught her hands in his and patted them reassuringly.

Manistique, Mich., Oct. 24: (Special) — Proving that J. What will Michigan do about the latest slaps adminstered to it by the "Big Nine" colleges? Will the Wolverines cease all negotiations to return to the conference this year, because western leaders are treating their latest advances as a joke, or will they suggest new terms of reconciliation and come to terms with their former neighbors at next month's meeting of the conference faculty representatives?

Mrs. Conrad Kieller yesterday afternoon entertained a number of friends at her home, on South Norris street, at a tea from 2 to 5 o'clock, in honor of Miss Ethel Valentine who is to be married next month to Everett Stewart.

LYRICS OF LIFE

TAKE TIME

The flow'rs that quickly bloom most quickly fade
While patriarchal trees still spread their shade.
Success too swiftly won we swiftly lose.
For they who build for time some time must use

And so it is with all the things of life
Maid becomes bride, but not the bride a wife
Until the years have tested and have proved
She was by love and not by fancy moved

And so with friendship: call me not a friend
Until I succor, counsel and defend
The dandelions blossom for a day,
Acquaintances that bloom and blow away

And even faith, whatever faith appears
Is not a thing of days but things of years
Alone becomes the fixed and firm belief

The flow'r must bear the fruit, and love can't last
And friendship serve, and faith survive the blast,
And thus success a man must mould and make,
For they who build for time some time must take.

NOT LICKED, YET

IT IS good to learn that the federal government has not yet thrown in its hand in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Attorney General Cummings says that "the case will never die until we get our men"; and the ordinary citizen will undoubtedly applaud this statement, and hope that the federal investigators will eventually be able to solve that tragic puzzle.

There have been, probably, more "important" crimes in America than the kidnaping of Baby Lindbergh. There has never been any that aroused such a wave of public indignation, or that made people realize so fully the immunity with which some types of criminals can operate. One of the best bits of news we could get would be an announcement that the men who committed this crime had at last been brought to justice.

COMMISSION MUST ACT

ANNOUNCEMENT was made at Lansing on Monday of federal approval being accorded to $2,847,000 in road construction projects in Michigan, of which $409,000 will be allocated to the upper peninsula. Included in the list of projects finally approved is an appropriation of $25,000 for completing 1.7 miles of concrete on M-35, within the city of Escanaba, all of the right of way for which was purchased last year and with the grade in readiness for concrete since early in the past summer. In addition to the Escanaba project there is included in list approved a total of $204,000 for a bridge and widening and surfacing 25 miles on M-28 in Chippewa county; $150,000 for two bridges and grading and surfacing 12 miles in Houghton county and $30,000 for grading three miles in Keweenaw county. Announcement was made a few days ago of approval being given to the construction of slightly less than a mile of pavement at Powers, in Menominee county, next year, to provide a new connection between U. S. 41 and U. S. 2, through an underpass the North Western railway will construct during the present winter.

In the announcement made at Lansing on Monday the fact is stressed that although federal approval has been given to $2,847,000 worth of projects in Michigan, contracts cannot be advertised or awarded until plans and specifications for these projects have also been approved by federal authorities.

This statement is in direct contradiction to a statement recently issued by officials of the federal bureau of public roads, who for several weeks have been attempting to correct the mistaken impression that road work financed by federal funds must be done solely by contract. On Oct. 2, Secretary Ickes issued a statement that goes even further in the matter, when he stated that all regulations, which might slow the highway construction program, are abandoned temporarily. Effective at once it was announced that states may begin work without first presenting plans, without awarding contracts and without advertising for bids. In other words the machinery has been definitely set up for the federal government to approve all expenditures on winter highway work, on which welfare labor is employed.

To meet the situation last winter the Michigan state highway department authorized over $2,000,000 in contracts and secured more than $1,000,000 in RFC funds for use in the employment of welfare labor on highways of upper peninsula. In addition to this amount spent by the state highway department, through county highway commissions in the upper peninsula last winter, many counties spent large sums derived from local bond issues, weight tax funds and property taxes, in order to as adequately as possible meet the unemployment situation in this section of the state.

In spite of the announcement from Lansing that voluminous red tape must be complied with before winter employment can be provided for jobless men in Michigan, the federal government has set up the machinery by which funds can be secured for immediate work, with greater dispatch than was possible even last winter.

Highway commissions of the upper peninsula, where it is now certain that drastic unemployment conditions are to extend through the present winter, should immediately take action under the federal machinery now set up, in order that families of jobless men in this section may not be forced to suffer undue privation during the coming winter. Such conditions have been prevented in the past—they cannot be permitted to develop this winter.

MARK UP ONE FOR NRA

A STATEMENT issued by George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, says that employment in the textile industry has returned to pre-depression levels under the textile code, with wages increased and working hours reduced. The total weekly payroll has advanced nearly 100 per cent over the payroll averages for March.

It hasn't done as much as some of us hoped it would do, to be sure. It hasn't abolished unemployment or ended industrial strife or restored prosperity.

But it does seem to have accomplished some very important results, just the same. This revival of the textile industry's employment and payroll figures is an achievement worth all the NRA has cost.

FACT OR FANCY?

ARE there monsters in the deep such as lived there during those countless centuries before human history began? There have been occasional stories of sea monsters that might have been passed from lip to lip to keep daring boys from swimming out too far, but F. W. Kemp, a member of the Archives Staff of the Province of British Columbia, told a story of a sea monster that he and his family had kept quiet because of fear of public ridicule. And he told the story only after Major Langley, clerk of the British Columbia legislature told only two weeks ago of having seen a beast that answered the same description. Here is Mr. Kemp's report.

"I was picnicking with my wife and 16-year-old son on Chatham Island. I observed a heavy wash coming down the Gulf of Georgia) from the north. I though at first it was just a tide rip. Then I was amazed to see huge coils come out of the top of the water like a snake. . . . The total length of these coils must have been at least 80 ft. and they were five feet thick, I should think. They came twisting out of the water so high that I could see light under them.

"They seemed a bluish green color, but shone in the sun like aluminum. The rear part of the creature was serrated with protuberances like dorsal fins. The extreme end thrashed about in the water like a propeller.

"My wife and son both saw it and stood dumb with amazement; then to our horror the thing rushed up to a high rock and thrust its great head and neck a full ten feet out of the water and waved it about as if it were getting its bearings. It was some 500 yards away and I could not see the exact shape of its head, but it was much thicker than the body. Then it sank down into the water again and sped away, making a great wash of white foam."

Is it a matter for the usual incredulous smile? Science has pretty well satisfied everyone that monsters of the nature described must have once roamed this world in great numbers. The fossil remains that have defied the ravages of time indicate that pretty clearly. Is it any more daring to believe that they still exist than that they have become obliterated?

Forgotten Sweetheart

(By NEA Service) BY MARY RAYMOND

CHAPTER XXII

It was a little before 10 o'clock that evening when Lois Clayton, who shared the tiny apartment with Pat, heard the latch key in the hall door. Pat entered, her eyes shining queerly, her cheeks flushed.

"Why, Pat!" Lois' voice was amazed. "What are you doing back so early?"

"That's what I said."

NOT LICKED, YET

IT IS good to learn that the federal government has not yet thrown in its hand in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Attorney General Cummings says that "the case will never die until we get our men"; and the ordinary citizen will undoubtedly applaud this statement, and hope that the federal investigators will eventually be able to solve that tragic puzzle.

There have been, probably, more "important" crimes in America than the kidnaping of Baby Lindbergh. There has never been any that aroused such a wave of public indignation, or that made people realize so fully the immunity with which some types of criminals can operate. One of the best bits of news we could get would be an announcement that the men who committed this crime had at last been brought to justice.

"I thought of that, too."

"Good heavens, Pat," Lois said soberly, "couldn't you have stayed just an hour or so longer?"

"No," Pat said. "I couldn't. Not for a hundred jobs. He got fresh." Her face flamed suddenly. "Oh, Lois, he tried to kiss me in the taxi! He called me 'girlie,' and thought I was stalling when I pulled away."

"The old sap!" said Lois. "But you don't find a new job every day."

Pat was silent. There was something she couldn't tell Lois. About the taxi stopping in front of a speakeasy. She couldn't say "Once I tried being a good sport, Lois," because then she would have to explain about Jerry and the tragic climax to that night. Tonight had been an opportunity to justify herself, though she had not analyzed it in that way. "I couldn't have looked myself in the face if I'd gone to a place like that to save my job," Pat thought.

"What in the world did you do?" Lois queried.

Pat laughed. "Well, when he stepped out of the taxi to the sidewalk I made up my mind I wouldn't get out. I slammed the door and said to the driver 'Drive on please,' I think he was so astonished that he started the car without thinking. Thank goodness, I had enough to pay the taxi bill! I wish you could have seen Mr. Brentford standing there with his mouth open, like a surprised old fish!"

"Gosh, Pat, I'm afraid it will cost you your job."

"Anyway," Pat said, "I'm glad I did it." She was slipping out of gown, her blond curls loosened, she sat on the edge of the bed. 'What business had the manager to fix a date up for me, anyway?"

"Why didn't you beg off then? You might have said your fiance was in town. Or that you were sick."

"Tried it," Pat said grimly, "but it didn't work. I had a feeling something was up when I walked into that office and saw this old fellow waiting in the next room. So I said to Mr. Livingston 'I hope everything was all right this afternoon. If anything was wrong, you'll have to excuse me because I've been feeling ill all day.'"

"I call that smooth," Lois said.

"Well, he just smiled, Lois, and said, "I didn't notice anything wrong. I thought you looked swell in the white evening dress. Mr. Brentford, one of our best customers, thought so too.' Then he went on about how he was sure I was going to prove myself a valuable employe and before long he'd have to speak to the cashier about a little raise. And some more hokum about expecting co-operation from all the employes and how we were all like one big family. Then he said this Brentford wanted to run out for dinner and a show and he knew he could count on me to entertain such a good friend of the firm for a few hours."

"Smooth, too," said Lois. "And then he dated you up with the old gink. Maybe this Brentford's a good scout, after all, and won't tell. Maybe he's so vain he'll be ashamed to tell your boss he didn't make a hit with you."

"Maybe." But Pat's tone was doubtful.

Nothing unusual happened during the next morning. Pat became more hopeful as the customary routine propressed. Lunch hour came and still there were no signs of a storm brewing. But a little later Jane drew Pat to one side. The look on her face warned that trouble was on the way.

* * *

"What happened last night?" Jane asked.

"I couldn't go tarough with it."

"There wasn't any reason for you to get the jitters. Lots of girls have let Tony Brentford pay for a swell dinner for them. When he found they wersn't ambitious, that was all there was to it. All Mr. Livingston expects is tact, so there'll be no hard feelings."

"Break the bad news," Pat said abruptly.

"Well, you cost the firm a nice order. And nice orders aren't picked up very often these days. Brentford cancelled everything. You haven't a chance to stay. Anything in sight?"

Pat shook her head. "Only Mulligan stews for awhile."

"I'm sorry, Pat." Admiration and pity were mingled in Jane's eyes. "Mr. Livingston told me to ask you to stop by the cashier's desk this afternoon."

"Thanks, Jane."

Well, that was that. At five Pat got her envelope. Inside were several crisp bills, her salary to date, and a brief memorandum attached: "After today your services will not be needed."

Pat read it with a wry little smile about her mouth, reached up to pull her small hat to a more nonchalant angle, and bravely walked out of the building.

She would have to find a cheaper place to live at once. Lois could get someone else to come in to the apartment. And Pat would have to find a job.

She located the cheaper place without trouble—a fairly large room with a cubby-hole and gas plate where she could prepare her meals. The two windows would be a comfort and compensate for many other defects and deficiences, Pat decided. There were faded curtains at the windows, a faded rug and mismatched furniture, but the place was clean and it was at the rear of the building. That was desirable because it made it quieter.

* * *

"Just a little," Joan confessed.

"No need. You'll go over all right." He was smiling, pleased with her appearance, confident, already savoring success. He reached forward, caught her hands in his and patted them reassuringly.

LYRICS OF LIFE

TAKE TIME

The flow'rs that quickly bloom most quickly fade,
While patriarchal trees still spread their shade.
Success too swiftly won we swiftly lose,
For they who build for time some time must use.

And so it is with all the things of life:
Maid becomes bride, but not the bride a wife
Until the years have tested and have proved
She was by love and not by fancy moved.

And so with friendship: call me not a friend
Until I succor, counsel and defend.
The dandelions blossom for a day,
Acquaintances that bloom and blow away.

And even faith, whatever faith appears,
Alone becomes the fixed and firm belief.

The flow'r must bear the fruit, and love must last,
And friendship serve, and faith survive the blast,
And thus success a man must mould and make,
For they who build for time some time must take.

Will the Wolverines cease all negotiations to return to the conference this year, because western leaders are treating their latest advances as a joke, or will they suggest new terms of reconciliation and come to terms with their former neighbors at next month's meeting of the conference faculty representatives?

Usual Snow Removal To Be Maintained, Sparks Reports

The usual snow removal program will be continued this coming winter in the upper peninsula, Ben F. Sparks, district highway engineer, stated yesterday. Last year, more than fifteen hundred miles were kept open for traffic during the snow season.

The Delta county road commission is now getting its snow-fighting equipment in shape, and City Engineer A. V. Aronson announced yesterday that the city's plows and trucks will be put into commission next week. A new two-ton truck has been purchased to replace the one acquired in 1924.

While the snow which fell on the city's streets Monday night and yesterday melted quickly, the fields out in the country were covered with a white blanket. The U. S. weather bureau stated that up to noon the precipitation was seven-tenths of an inch, which is equivalent to more than five inches of snow.

More snowfall this morning and colder weather were forecast.

VOGHT EXPLAINS LAND PROGRAM

Would Put Back on Tax Rolls by Selling to Sportsmen

A plan to put back on the tax rolls several million acres of wild or cutover lands now paying no taxes has been worked out by E. C. Voght, Escanaba conservationist and former member of the state conservation commission, and is described in a recent issue of the Grand Rapids Press.

"Have all of the lumber companies group their cutover, not agricultural, lands with those of the department of conservation into large sections. Legislative action would of course be necessary before the department could do this.

"Such grouping into large tracts would allow the purchase by the public for hunting or recreational purposes of any number of acres any individual or group might desire.

"For example, suppose that there were 25 hunters in any downstate city who desired to own their own hunting ground, which in the near future will be necessary or hunters will have to hunt on privately owned grounds and pay a fee for such hunting. This group could purchase 40 acres apiece, have a central hunting camp with a caretaker, or they could have individual cabins with a caretaker in his cabin. This caretaker could patrol the territory on horseback and keep the tract clear of violators, fires and a considerable number of predators.

"These lands should be sold at not to exceed $1.50 per acre, assuring the man with little an equal chance with those who have plenty. To assure the purchase and to protect the purchaser of these lands it would be necessary for the legislature to enact such laws as would guarantee that so long as these lands were used for hunting or recreational purposes it would be unlawful to put their assessed valuation at more than the purchase price, or $1.50 per acre.

"There appears to be nothing in this plan which smacks of the European or the private preserve idea and the benefits arising to the state in keeping down fires and violations would be of untold value."

CHICAGO PLANS STOCK SHOW

International Exposition To Be Held from Dec. 2 to 9

Chicago—With the approaching International Live Stock Exposition, agriculture is again heading toward the year's largest and most spectacular display of its many industries.

It will be the 34th anniversary of this huge spectacle of prize live stock, crops, and scores of other farming exhibits. The show will be held this year from December 2 to 9 in its permanent home which covers an area of 25 acres of exhibition halls, amphitheatre, and barns at the entrance to the Chicago live stock market.

Predict Large Entries

Entries for the various live stock classes of the Exposition will close on November 1. The large number of early entries, many of them including show herds from the leading live stock farms of this country and Canada, leads B. H. Heide, secretary-manager of the Exposition, to predict that the International Live Stock Show will this year continue its annual custom of outdistancing its predecessors in the size and impressiveness of its displays.

The fact that but slight curtailments have been made in the prize lists over former years is an added attraction to owners of herds and flocks of show ring quality, he asserts. Competition is listed for 29 different breeds of live stock. They include beef cattle, draft horses, sheep and swine.

Big Crop Show Planned

This year will mark the 15th anniversary celebration of the International Grain and Hay Show, a department of the International Live Stock Exposition, but in itself the largest farm crops show in the world. The prize lists will remain substantially the same as in past years, the management announces. Officials of the crops show state that entries will be accepted until November 10th and may be made without cost to the exhibitor.

The 12th annual Boys and Girls Club Congress will be held in connection with the International Live Stock Show. A thousand or more 4-H Club boys and girls, all of them winners in contests at their home state fairs, will come here from 43 states to contest for the national awards of the year.

DELTA METHANOL ANTI-FREEZE RADIATOR ALCOHOL

59c Gallon in Bulk

for low cost Radiator Protection

Methanol (or methyl alcohol) has been used successfully for many years as an anti-freeze for automobile radiators. Delta Methanol, the new and improved grade of this anti-freeze solution, is now achieving amazing popularity because it offers many outstanding advantages.

1. Delta Methanol gives the same protection against freezing as ordinary denatured alcohol. (Formula CD-5, 190 proof.)
2. The boiling point of Delta Methanol radiator solution is approximately the same as that of denatured alcohol, under actual operating conditions, however, there is apparently less evaporation of Delta Methanol.
3. Delta Methanol contains an ingredient which acts as a preventive against rust formation. It does not corrode metal parts.
4. Delta Methanol has no deteriorating effect whatever on rubber hose connections.
5. The distinctive purple color of Delta Methanol clearly distinguishes it from denatured alcohol.
6. Delta Methanol contains a substance which gives it an extremely unpleasant taste, which, together with its characteristic color, is a safeguard against the use of Delta Methanol as a beverage.
7. Delta Methanol, when properly handled and used as an anti-freeze in automobile radiators, does not present a health hazard.
8. Delta Methanol has no greater effect on automobile finishes than denatured alcohol, although both are injurious to lacquer surfaces.
9. Delta Methanol is ECONOMICAL TO USE.

Usual Snow Removal To Be Maintained, Sparks Reports

The usual snow removal program will be continued this coming winter in the upper peninsula, Ben P. Sparks, district highway engineer, stated yesterday. Last year, more than fifteen hundred miles were kept open for traffic during the snow season.

The Delta county road commission is now getting its snow-fighting equipment in shape, and City Engineer A. V. Aronson announced yesterday that the city's plows and trucks will be put into commission next week. A new two-ton truck has been purchased to replace the one, acquired in 1921.

While the snow which fell on the city's streets Monday night and yesterday melted quickly, the fields out in the country were covered with a white blanket. The U. S. weather bureau stated that up to noon the precipitation was seven-tenths of an inch, which is equivalent to more than five inches of snow.

More snowfall this morning and colder weather were forecast.

Would Put Back on Tax Rolls by Selling to Sportsmen

A plan to put back on the tax rolls several million acres of wild or cutover lands now paying no taxes has been worked out by E. C. Voght, Escanaba conservationist and former member of the state conservation commission, and is described in a recent issue of the Grand Rapids Press.

As outlined by Voght the plan calls for the following steps:

"Have all of the lumber companies group their cutover, not agricultural, lands with those of the department of conservation into large sections. Legislative action would of course be necessary before the department could do this.

"Such grouping into large tracts would allow the purchase by the public for hunting or recreational purposes of any number of acres any individual or group might desire.

"For example, suppose that there were 25 hunters in any downstate city who desired to own their own hunting ground, which in the near future will be necessary or hunters will have to hunt on privately owned grounds and pay a fee for such hunting. This group could purchase 40 acres apiece, have a central hunting camp with a caretaker, or they could have individual cabins with a caretaker in his cabin. This caretaker could patrol the territory on horseback and keep the tract clear of violators, fires and a considerable number of predators.

"These lands should be sold at not to exceed $1.50 per acre, assuring the man with little an equal chance with those who have plenty. To assure the purchase and to protect the purchaser of these lands it would be necessary for the legislature to enact such laws as would guarantee that so long as these lands were used for hunting or recreational purposes it would be unlawful to put their assessed valuation at more than the purchase price, or $1.50 per acre.

"There appears to be nothing in this plan which smacks of the European or the private preserve idea and the benefits arising to the state in keeping down fires and violations would be of untold value."

CHICAGO PLANS STOCK SHOW

International Exposition To Be Held from Dec. 2 to 9

Chicago—With the approaching International Live Stock Exposition, agriculture is again heading toward the year's largest and most spectacular display of its many industries.

It will be the 34th anniversary of this huge spectacle of prize live stock, crops, and scores of other farming exhibits. The show will be held this year from December 2 to 9 in its permanent home which covers an area of 25 acres of exhibition halls, amphitheatre, and barns at the entrance to the Chicago live stock market.

Predict Large Entries

Entries for the various live stock classes of the Exposition will close on November 1. The large number of early entries, many of them including show herds from the leading live stock farms of this country and Canada, leads B. H. Heide, secretary-manager of the Exposition, to predict that the International Live Stock Show will this year continue its annual custom of outdistancing its predecessors in the size and impressiveness of its displays.

The fact that but slight curtailments have been made in the prize lists over former years is an added attraction to owners of herds and flocks of show ring quality, he asserts. Competition is listed for 29 different breeds of live stock. They include beef cattle, draft horses, sheep, and swine.

Big Crop Show Planned

This year will mark the 15th anniversary celebration of the International Grain and Hay Show, a department of the International Live Stock Exposition, but in itself the largest farm crops show in the world. The prize lists will remain substantially the same as in past years, the management announces. Officials of the crops show state that entries will be accepted until November 10th and may be made without cost to the exhibitor.

The 12th annual Boys and Girls Club Congress will be held in connection with the International Live Stock Show. A thousand or more 4-H Club boys and girls, all of them winners in contests at their home state fairs, will come here from 43 states to contest for the national awards of the year.

USE DELTA METHANOL . . . .

for low cost Radiator Protection

Methanol (or methyl alcohol) has been used successfully for many years as an anti-freeze for automobile radiators. Delta Methanol, the new and improved grade of this anti-freeze solution, is now achieving amazing popularity because it offers many outstanding advantages.

1. Delta Methanol gives the same protection against freezing as ordinary denatured alcohol. (Formula CD-5, 190 proof.)
2. The boiling point of Delta Methanol radiator solution is approximately the same as that of denatured alcohol, under actual operating conditions, however, there is apparently less evaporation of Delta Methanol.
3. Delta Methanol contains an ingredient which acts as a preventive against rust formation. It does not corrode metal parts.
4. Delta Methanol has no deteriorating effect whatever on rubber hose connections.
5. The distinctive purple color of Delta Methanol clearly distinguishes it from denatured alcohol.
6. Delta Methanol contains a substance which gives it an extremely unpleasant taste, which, together with its characteristic color, is a safeguard against the use of Delta Methanol as a beverage.
7. Delta Methanol, when properly handled and used as an anti-freeze in automobile radiators, does not present a health hazard.
8. Delta Methanol has no greater effect on automobile finishes than denatured alcohol, although both are injurious to lacquer surfaces.
9. Delta Methanol is ECONOMICAL TO USE.

Veils In Favor For Winter Wear

Paris (AP) Veils are back for fall and winter wear. A number of small felt and velvet toques have brief veils just long enough to cover the eyes, while others are covered with circular veils which fall almost to the chin. Several designers have varied the mode, however, by declaring "No veils at all."

Today's Recipe

Scalloped Cheese

4 slices buttered bread
1 cup flaked American cheese
2 beaten eggs
2 cups milk
1 tsp. salt
Paprika

In buttered baking dish place slices of bread and sprinkle with cheese and a dash of paprika. Beat eggs slightly, add milk and salt and pour over all. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake 15 minutes in a moderately hot oven 400 F. Six portions.

Muffins are best when served as soon as possible after baking. If you have any left over however, split them with a sharp knife and toast on both sides.

Place of Pictures in Interior Decoration

Hollywood Gossip

BY HUBBARD KEAVY

La Rocque Point, Lake Arrowhead, Cal. Going "on location" with a movie-making company is monotonous, boresome business. Six young ladies who are making their first camera appearances will testify to that. They anticipated much, much more excitement.

The English version of the German film, "Eight Girls in a Boat," is being filmed on Rod La Rocque's property, a secluded, attractive mountain retreat where, it would seem, anyone would be content for as long as he could stay here.

But making movies is different. Members of the cast must at all times be within call of the assistant director, who in this instance is Marshall Duffield, ex-footballer and Dorothy Lee's new husband. The girls, 10 in addition to those in the title roles, yawn, stretch, walk, sit, and yawn some more.

TIME-KILLERS

One estimated that out of 10 hours spent each day on the set, actual work amounted to only 20 minutes. The rest of the time they killed time. Some read, a few sewed, hardier ones swam in the chilly, mile high lake.

And, after three weeks of mostly waiting, six of the little tole girls decided they didn't care whether they had a movie career or not.

All the girls said they'd stay in Hollywood gladly enough if their contracts were renewed, and one Adele Pearce of San Francisco declared she was determined to be in the movies, contract or not, monotony or excitement.

CHAPERONES, TOO

If you were to visit this location, you'd perhaps wonder why so many people were necessary. The company numbered 130 and it included cameramen, electricians, boatmen, a life guard, a forest ranger, property men, assorted assistants and 12 chaperones.

Yes, chaperones were required. Each had five or six girls to look after. Their principal tasks were to awaken the girls each morning and to see that they were in bed promptly at 10 each night.

No wonder several movie newcomers aren't overly enthusiastic.

Ostrich Muffs New Smart Note

Smart Costume Taupe And Green

Paris (AP) Taupe and jade-green are a striking combination favored by one smart Parisian. With a taupe wool costume she wears a taupe beret and shoes of the same color. The only splash of brilliant color in the ensemble is a scarf of jade green.

Alberto Salvi Started Music Career As A Boy

It is scarcely necessary to introduce Alberto Salvi, known as the world's greatest harpist, who will play in the William W. Oliver Memorial auditorium on Friday night. Many have heard him before, and no doubt many will be hearing him for the first time, both however, will be interested in the story of the artist's life and the gradual progress of circumstances which have helped to shape such a genius as his.

More than 30 years ago, Alberto Salvi was born in Venice, the flower of Italian cities. All the magic, the charm, beauty and passion of that poetic city were his. His father was a celebrated Italian harp maker and the child grew up in the great shadowy reaches of the older Salvi's shop. It seemed like a glimpse of heaven with great golden instruments full of mysterious strings towering high above the little boy. To sweep a hand over their wall of strings was to create a murmuring gentle wind that was like the sound of a breeze in the woods at night. They were beautiful mysterious things, these harps and the child never tired of twanging them for the rich notes that would be his reward. When other children were out bouncing balls or swimming or doing any of the things young boys love to do, Alberto hid away in his father's shop and coaxed lovely sounds from the huge instruments.

His father was an understanding man with the heart of a true artist and he perceived in his young son an affection for the harp, one that could be managed by the young lad and to which he took as the proverbial duck does to water. When only 7 years old, he was mastering the early technique of the instrument and by the time he had reached his fourteenth birthday, he was studying seriously, devoting as many as six and seven hours a day to practice. He did not look upon it as work but as a blessed privilege, which, no doubt, accounts for his magnificent skill.

The harp is an instrument that demands the greatest dexterity in order to produce any of the most ordinary effects and that is probably why there have been so few great harpists. Many men are unwilling to give such unceasing devotion to their work. The size of the instrument, the fact that it must be played with the finger-ends and that there are seven pedals which must be used as skilfully as the fingers (for they form the half-tones) explains as a measure a few of the difficulties. All these problems Salvi mastered in his early youth so that by the time he entered into his teens, he had all the equipment of a virtuoso.

At the age of thirteen Salvi was a tall, slender slip of a boy. "The spirit of the harp" he was then called by his town folk and it was then that he won his first distinction. The Royal Scholarship of the Naples Royal Conservatory, in a nationwide competition. This honor did more than bring esteem to Salvi—it insured his musical education, for all his living expenses and tuition were provided free for a period of eight years. For a family of his limited means, as many of the old Venetian gentry are, this scholarship was like a godsend.

In the fifth year of Salvi's course at the Conservatory the director of that institution wrote to the ministry of arts in Rome about him. "He has acquired all the knowledge, both of the practice and theory of music, that falls within the eight year curriculum," he said. The good man did not want Salvi to waste his time. He realized he was handling unusual talent. Rome sent back special examinations for Salvi, and the result was that he was awarded the eight year diploma at the end of five years.

Though Salvi's public career in Italy was unquestionably successful, there were not enough citizens in his native country where people could afford to hear music. Especially during the past years Europo has scarcely called a happy hunting ground for musicians, so Mr. Salvi decided to try his luck in America. He had a few relatives in Chicago and to them he went, accepting the first position that offered itself, that of a harpist in a theatre orchestra. The management soon discovered that thoy had extraordinary talent in their midst and requested a solo every night.

One evening after Mr. Salvi has been playing there for a month, he was approached by a gentleman whom he had never seen before, the representative of a New York concert management, who realized he had been listening to a genius play and was determined to engage him for a concert tour. Since then Alberto Salvi's career has been a triumphal journey from one state into another.

After his first season of concerting, Salvi realized a desire he had cherished ever since his arrival in America. He sent for a slender, dark-eyed woman who had been his sweetheart in Venice since his college days. They were quietly married, and now they have a little home in Chicago to which the harpist returns whenever he has a few days to spare. When one asks him does he ever intend to leave this country and make his home in Italy, he answers NO very emphatically. "America," he says, "is the land of youth and hope and ambition. Europe is slow and old, a little too slow and old for those who want to give much to many people."

Veils In Favor For Winter Wear

Paris (AP)—Veils are back for fall and winter wear. A number of small felt and velvet toques have brief veils just long enough to cover the eyes, while others are covered with circular veils which fall almost to the chin. Several designers have varied the mode, however, by declaring "No veils at all."

Today's Recipe

Scalloped Cheese

4 slices buttered bread
1 cup flaked American cheese
2 beaten eggs
2 cups milk
1 tsp. salt
Paprika

In buttered baking dish place slices of bread and sprinkle with cheese and a dash of paprika. Beat eggs slightly, add milk and salt and pour over all. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake 15 minutes in a moderately hot oven 400 F. Six portions.

Muffins are best when served as soon as possible after baking. If you have any left over however, split them with a sharp knife and toast on both sides.

Place of Pictures in Interior Decoration

Mrs. Andrew is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Hollywood Gossip

BY HUBBARD KEAVY

La Rocque Point, Lake Arrowhead, Cal.—Going "on location" with a movie-making company is monotonous, boresome business. Six young ladies who are making their first camera appearances will testify to that. They anticipated much, much more excitement.

The English version of the German film, "Eight Girls in a Boat," is being filmed on Rod La Rocque's property, a secluded, attractive mountain retreat where, it would seem, anyone would be content for as long as he could stay here.

But making movies is different. Members of the cast must at all times be within call of the assistant director, who in this instance is Marshall Duffield, ex-footballer and Dorothy Lee's new husband. The girls, 40 in addition to those in the title roles, yawn, stretch, walk, sit, and yawn some more.

TIME-KILLERS

One estimated that out of 10 hours spent each day on the set, actual work amounted to only 20 minutes. The rest of the time they killed time. Some read, a few sewed, hardier ones swam in the chilly, mile-high lake.

And, after three weeks of mostly waiting, six of the title role girls decided they didn't care whether they had a movie career or not.

All the girls said they'd stay in Hollywood gladly enough if their contracts were renewed, and one—Adele Pearce of San Francisco—declared she was determined to be in the movies, contract or not, monotony or excitement.

CHAPERONES, TOO

If you were to visit this location, you'd perhaps wonder why so many people were necessary. The company numbered 130 and it included cameramen, electricians, boatmen, a life guard, a forest ranger, property men, assorted assistants and 12 chaperones.

Yes, chaperones were required. Each had five or six girls to look after. Their principal tasks were to awaken the girls each morning and to see that they were in bed promptly at 10 each night.

No wonder several movie newcomers aren't overly enthusiastic.

Ostrich Muffs New Smart Note

Paris (AP)—Ostrich muffs add a frivolous touch to winter evening costumes. They are generally made of uncurled ostrich in a round melon design. One black crepe evening frock has epaulettes of uncurled black ostrich and is accompanied by a little muff of the same sable feathers.

Smart Costume Taupe And Green

Paris (AP)—Taupe and jade-green are a striking combination favored by one smart Parisian. With a taupe wool costume she wears a taupe beret and shoes of the same color. The only splash of brilliant color in the ensemble is a scarf of jade green.

The most universal stimulant ever found, a growth promoting acid, was recently under discussion by biologists. The name is patothenic acid and it is found in humans, worms, plant molds, oysters, bacteria, algae and milk.

Alberto Salvi Started Music Career As A Boy

It is scarcely necessary to introduce Alberto Salvi, known as the world's greatest harpist, who will play in the William W. Oliver Memorial auditorium on Friday night. Many have heard him before, and no doubt many will be hearing him for the first time, both however, will be interested in the story of the artist's life and the gradual progress of circumstances which have helped to shape such a genius as his.

More than 30 years ago, Alberto Salvi was born in Venice, the flower of Italian cities. All the magic, the charm, beauty and passion of that poetic city were his. His father was a celebrated Italian harp maker and the child grew up in the great shadowy reaches of the elder Salvi's shop. It seemed like a glimpse of heaven with great golden instruments full of mysterious strings towering high above the little boy. To sweep a hand over their wall of strings was to create a murmuring gentle wind that was like the sound of a breeze in the woods at night. They were beautiful mysterious things, these harps and the child never tired of twanging them for the rich notes that would be his reward. When other children were out bouncing balls or swimming or doing any of the things young boys love to do, Alberto hid away in his father's shop and coaxed lovely sounds from the huge instruments.

His father was an understanding man with the heart of a true artist and he perceived in his young son an affection for the harp, one that could be managed by the young lad and to which he took as the proverbial duck does to water. When only 7 years old, he was mastering the early technique of the instrument and by the time he had reached his fourteenth birthday, he was studying seriously, devoting as many as six and seven hours a day to practice. He did not look upon it as work but as a blessed privilege, which, no doubt, accounts for his magnificent skill.

The harp is an instrument that demands the greatest dexterity in order to produce any of the most ordinary effects and that is probably why there have been so few great harpists. Many men are unwilling to give such unceasing devotion to their work. The size of the instrument, the fact that it must be played with the finger-ends and that there are seven pedals which must be used as skilfully as the fingers (for they form the half-tones) explains as a measure a few of the difficulties. All these problems Salvi mastered in his early youth so that by the time he entered into his teens, he had all the equipment of a virtuoso.

At the age of thirteen Salvi was a tall, slender slip of a boy. "The spirit of the harp" he was then called by his town folk and it was then that he won his first distinction.—The Royal Scholarship of the Naples Royal Conservatory, in a nationwide competition. This honor did more than bring esteem to Salvi—it insured his musical education, for all his living expenses and tuition were provided free for a period of eight years. For a family of his limited means, as many of the old Venetian gentry are, this scholarship was like a godsend.

In the fifth year of Salvi's course at the Conservatory the director of that institution wrote to the ministry of arts in Rome about him—"He has acquired all the knowledge, both of the practice and theory of music, that falls within the eight year curriculum," he said. The good man did not want Salvi to waste his time. He realized he was handling unusual talent. Rome sent back special examinations for Salvi, and the result was that he was awarded the eight year diploma at the end of five years.

Though Salvi's public career in Italy was unquestionably successful, there were not enough cities in his native country where people could afford to hear music. Especially during the past years Europe has scarcely called a happy hunting ground for musicians, so Mr. Salvi decided to try his luck in America. He had a few relatives in Chicago and to them he went, accepting the first position that offered itself, that of a harpist in a theatre orchestra. The management soon discovered that they had extraordinary talent in their midst and requested a solo every night.

One evening after Mr. Salvi has been playing there for a month, he was approached by a gentleman whom he had never seen before, the representative of a New York concert management, who realized he had been listening to a genius play and was determined to engage him for a concert tour. Since then Alberto Salvi's career has been a triumphal journey from one state into another.

After his first season of concerting, Salvi realized a desire he had cherished ever since his arrival in America. He sent for a slender, dark-eyed woman who had been his sweetheart in Venice since his college days. They were quietly married, and now they have a little home in Chicago to which the harpist returns whenever he has a few days to spare. When one asks him does he ever intend to leave this country and make his home in Italy, he answers NO very emphatically. "America," he says, "is the land of youth and hope and ambition. Europe is slow and old, a little too slow and old for those who want to give much to many people."

CITY CONSIDERS ELECTRIC PLANT

Preliminary Survey on Project Authorized by Commission

Possible future construction of a municipally owned electric generating plant in Gladstone was foreseen when the city commission in session Monday evening authorized Manager F. R. Buechner to make a preliminary investigation with reference to the building of such a plant.

The survey is to be purely general in scope and will take into consideration types of generating units, the size necessary to adequately serve this city and approximate cost estimates.

Commissioners C. E. Hawkins and J. A. Bredahl were named as a special committee to confer with the city manager regarding procedure to be used. The report of the city manager was requested at an early future meeting of the commission.

The resolution authorizing the preliminary survey came after it was reported to the commission that no answer had been received from the power company, which now furnishes the city with electric current, relative to a request for a decrease in rates which was made last spring.

At that time local officials asked that power rates be cut to a point coinciding with the schedule in effect previous to the last rate increase.

Rehearsals For Legion Show Are Now Under Way

Rehearsals for the amateur stage production, "The World's All Right," to be presented here on Nov. 1-2 under the auspices of August Mattson Post of the American Legion, are going forward under the direction of Miss Kay Duffy, director and announcement of the complete cast will be made within a day or two.

The opening number of the show will be the Children's Story Hour with Miss Maurie McDonald acting as the Tell-Me-A-Story Lady. She is assisted by one hundred young local children between the ages of five and nine. There is also a special part in this number where two groups of children, six little men and six little women are seen in the Tin Pan Parade. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hough preside as father and mother of Nursery Land during the scene.

The first big chorus of the show is supported by the Girls' Glee club of the high school. This number opens with the hit, "Smile, Smile, the World's All Right," and two dancing choruses appear in special costumes doing their routine to "Whistle and Blow Your Blues Away" and "You're In Style when You're Wearing a Smile."

A studio quartet composed of John Spear, R. N. Haskins, Ray Weingartner and Noble Swenson give a special arrangement of quartet songs and ditties and the number is highly pleasing.

Piano Recital To Be Presented Here

Ross Stoakes, Jr., of Escanaba, will be heard in a piano recital at the Gladstone Methodist Episcopal church on the evening of Sunday, Nov. 5, it was announced yesterday by Rev. H. W. Colenso. Mr. Stoakes, assisted by Mr. Swenson, presented a pleasing recital last Sunday evening in the Methodist Episcopal church at Escanaba. The same program will be used here.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Johnson visited on Saturday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Cowell enroute from their home in Sault Ste. Marie to Chicago to attend A Century of Progress exposition. The latter is a niece of Mr. Cowell.

EXPECT GRANT FOR ROAD WORK

Application for $71,000 Completed by State Advisory Board

Application for a grant of $71,725.00, made recently by the Schoolcraft County Road Commission, was completed Monday by the state advisory board of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Work and has been sent to Washington for final approval, according to a communication received yesterday morning by John E. McCarthy, county engineer, from M. E. Cooley, member of the state advisory board.

Approval of the grant is expected to be made in about a week, after which work will be started immediately on the gravel and crushed stone resurfacing of the several township roads in the county. The first project to be started will be the resurfacing of the Calspar road, a stretch of highway about four and one-half miles in length extending to one of the quarries of the Inland Lime & Stone company. Another road on which the money is to be used is the River Road, 13 and one-half miles in length. The work of grading and the construction of necessary drainage structures has already been completed on the above mentioned highways.

The sum of $54,000 of the total grant, a portion of the Horton money allotment to Schoolcraft county for the years 1933 and 1934, is to be handled by the state in the securing of the $17,725 outright federal grant which makes up the balance of the total. The federal grant represents thirty per cent of the cost of labor and materials to be used, as provided under the public works section of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

Only men who have not received employment will be used in the resurfacing work, Mr. McCarthy stated. As provided under the arrangements for the grant, unskilled labor will be paid at a rate of fifty cents per hour and skilled labor at the rate of $1.20 per hour. A possibility of a revision in the wage scale exists, Mr. McCarthy declared, which if made, will also necessitate a revision in the grant.

In using $54,000 of the Horton money for the years 1933 and 1934, the county will still have a balance from this source in which to pay off notes and do a certain amount of relief work, declared Mr. McCarthy. The estimated amount of Horton money, proceeds from the weight tax, averages slightly more than $45,000 per year, he stated.

If approval of the grant is made at Washington, the road commission will be distributing in the county $17,725.57 more than it otherwise would have been available.

Contingent Of 44 C. C. C's Arrive At Camp Manistique

A contingent of 44 new Civilian Conservation Corps members for Camp Manistique arrived here on Saturday afternoon to provide reinforcements caused by the departure of a similar number whose six-month enlistment period had expired and who did not wish to reenlist either because of finding work or because their families were now capable of supporting them.

Personnel of the new contingent which arrived here via the Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Sault Ste. Marie railroad, are all from the lower peninsula, hailing from Jackson, Detroit, Bay City, Lansing, and several other cities. Prior to arriving here they were given a training period at Camp Custer.

Total strength of Camp Manistique now numbers 188, Captain Farlow Burt stated yesterday morning. Full camp strength listed at 212 and a few more may be added before the winter program gets into full swing.

Health Talks Heard By Local Rotarians

Interesting talks on local health work were given before the Manistique Rotary club Monday noon by Dr. Marion Stevenson, of the Children's Fund of Michigan, who has been in charge of the eye clinic which has been in operation in this city for the past two months, and by Miss Emma Johnson, county nurse, who spoke of the activities in crippled children's work in the county.

Miss Johnson, in citing the accomplishments of the past year told of the joint crippled children's clinic in which 32 cases from Schoolcraft county were examined, stating that all of the cases with the exception of two, have had corrective work done.

The speaker reported a total of 20 cases sent to the Northern Michigan Children's Clinic at Marquette; three crippled children to the University hospital at Ann Arbor; and one crippled child to Grace hospital, Detroit.

Dr. Stevenson, who concludes her work in the local clinic Friday noon, told of the methods of treatment and examination. She stated that cross eyes could be corrected in most instances by the use of glasses if treatment were given early enough in life. In England, she stated, corrective measures are used on six-months old children and recently in this country children have been treated at the age of two. To correct this defect by the use of glasses without operation steps must usually be taken prior to twelve years of age, said Dr. Stephenson.

SEWAGE PLANT IS SOUGHT HERE

Initial steps toward the procurement of a modern sewage disposal plant for the city of Manistique under the public works section of the National Industrial Recovery Act which provides for an outright grant of thirty per cent of the labor and materials to be used on an approved construction project, were taken Monday evening by the city council when a resolution was drawn empowering Mayor Harry Eriksen to obtain all preliminary information and to make application to the Federal Emergency administration of Public Works, state advisory board, for the installation of such a plant.

The council voiced strong approval of the construction of a sewage disposal plant inasmuch as there is said to be a law on the statute books which will compel cities to discontinue the flowage of sewage into Lake Michigan to become effective as soon as there is an upward trend in economic conditions. In view of the fact that a thirty per cent federal grant is now available on a project of this nature, council members expressed opinion that steps should be taken immediately before the time expiration.

City sewage is now disposed of into Lake Michigan through three main sewers, one for the Westside which empties into the Manistique river at the slips, and two for the Eastside which flow into the river at the foot of Cedar street and directly into Lake Michigan off of Range street. A smaller sewer takes care of Garden avenue, also emptying into Lake Michigan.

Mayor Harry Eriksen yesterday morning immediately got in touch with manufacturers of sewage disposal plants at Chicago and Ann Arbor. It is expected that two or three members of the council will make a trip to Ann Arbor in the future to inquire into types of plants and costs. Estimates of the cost of a sewage disposal plant for a city of this size do not exceed $50,000.

"Resolved, that the mayor be authorized to investigate and obtain the necessary data to enable the city to make application to the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works of the state advisory board for the installation of a sewage disposal plant for the city of Manistique and incurr such necessary expenses as may be necessary for a survey, and to determine the type of plant best suitable for the city."

Cancel Taxes

It was also resolved by the council that the city cancel property taxes now assessed and unpaid against the Newberry Lumber & Chemical Co., for the years 1930, '31, and '32 upon that part of government lots in section 12, town 41 north, range 16 west. The description is that piece of property on Maple avenue north of Elm street upon which the company houses have been torn down and which was recently deeded to Schoolcraft county.

Monday evening's meeting was adjourned until this evening when the council will consider a reply by the Manistique Pulp & Paper company in regard to the city's request for a reduction in light and power rates. About a month and a half ago, the council granted the Manistique Power & Light company a thirty day extension in which to either accept or reject the reduction in rates submitted by the council.

Other business consummated consisted of the granting of a dance hall permit to E. R. Forrest, giving the latter permission to conduct dances upon payment of the fee as stated in the ordinance.

CITY CONSIDERS ELECTRIC PLANT

Preliminary Survey on Project Authorized by Commission

Possible future construction of a municipally owned electric generating plant in Gladstone was foreseen when the city commission in session Monday evening authorized Manager F. R. Buechner to make a preliminary investigation with reference to the building of such a plant.

The survey is to be purely general in scope and will take into consideration types of generating units, the size necessary to adequately serve this city and approximate cost estimates.

Commissioners C. E. Hawkins and J. A. Bredahl were named as a special committee to confer with the city manager regarding procedure to be used. The report of the city manager was requested at an early future meeting of the commission.

The resolution authorizing the preliminary survey came after it was reported to the commission that no answer had been received from the power company, which now furnishes the city with electric current, relative to a request for a decrease in rates which was made last spring.

At that time local officials asked that power rates be cut to a point coinciding with the schedule in effect previous to the last rate increase.

GARDEN NEWS

The lunch and sale of work given in the Fairport hall Saturday night by members of the Goodwill society of the Fayette Catholic church was largely attended and a substantial sum was realized as a result of the gathering.

Fairport fishermen have been having some hard knocks during the past week on account of continued storms. Not only have nets been badly damaged but the torn nets have allowed a large quantity of fish to escape. One fisherman reports that his large net was so badly damaged that not a single fish remained in it when he went to lift, reminding that "It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good."

Seniors of Garden high school gave a card party in the Kate's Bay school Friday night. Proceeds of the gathering were for the defraying of expenses of graduation next June.

A bear visited the orchard on the Ed Laux farm at Fayette Thursday night. The only damage done was the breaking of some of the trees.

EXPECT GRANT FOR ROAD WORK

Application for $71,000 Completed by State Advisory Board

Application for a grant of $71,725.00, made recently by the Schoolcraft County Road Commission, was completed Monday by the state advisory board of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Work and has been sent to Washington for final approval, according to a communication received yesterday morning by John E. McCarthy, county engineer, from M. E. Cooley, member of the state advisory board.

Approval of the grant is expected to be made in about a week, after which work will be started immediately on the gravel and crushed stone resurfacing of the several township roads in the county. The first project to be started will be the resurfacing of the Calspar road, a stretch of highway about four and one-half miles in length extending to one of the quarries of the Inland Lime & Stone company. Another road on which the money is to be used is the River Road, 13 and one-half miles in length. The work of grading and the construction of necessary drainage structures has already been completed on the above mentioned highways.

The sum of $54,000 of the total grant, a portion of the Horton money allotment to Schoolcraft county for the years 1933 and 1934, is to be handled by the state in the securing of the $17,725 outright federal grant which makes up the balance of the total. The federal grant represents thirty per cent of the cost of labor and materials to be used, as provided under the public works section of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

Only men who have not received employment will be used in the resurfacing work, Mr. McCarthy stated. As provided under the arrangements for the grant, unskilled labor will be paid at a rate of fifty cents per hour and skilled labor at the rate of $1.20 per hour. A possibility of a revision in the wage scale exists, Mr. McCarthy declared, which if made, will also necessitate a revision in the grant.

In using $54,000 of the Horton money for the years 1933 and 1934, the county will still have a balance from this source in which to pay off notes and do a certain amount of [illegible] work, declared Mr. McCarthy. The estimated amount of Horton money, proceeds from the weight tax, averages slightly more than $45,000 per year, he stated.

If approval of the grant is made at Washington, the road commission will be distributing in the county $17,725.57 more than otherwise would have been available.

Mose Anthony pleaded guilty in justice court Monday to a charge of reckless driving and was given a five day sentence in the county jail. Anthony figured in an accident early Sunday evening on Deer street opposite the Schuster Food Market when he collided with a car driven by Bowman Stebbins and slurred around the corner up against the side of the Middlebrook grocery, damaging several boards.

Anthony was located Monday by Chief of Police Peterson after having fled from the scene of the accident. Damage to the Stebbins car was estimated at $20 while Anthony's car was damaged to the extent of about $25.

Both cars were reported to have been going in opposite directions on Deer street well to the center of the road.

A contingent of 44 new Civilian Conservation Corps members for Camp Manistique arrived here on Saturday afternoon to provide reinforcements caused by the departure of a similar number whose six-month enlistment period had expired and who did not wish to reenlist either because of finding work or because their families were now capable of supporting them.

Personnel of the new contingent which arrived here via the Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Sault Ste. Marie railroad, are all from the lower peninsula, hailing from Jackson, Detroit, Bay City, Lansing, and several other cities. Prior to arriving here they were given a training period at Camp Custer.

Total strength of Camp Manistique now numbers 188, Captain Farlow Burt stated yesterday morning. Full camp strength is listed at 212 and a few more may be added before the winter program gets into full swing.

Health Talks Heard By Local Rotarians

Interesting talks on local health work were given before the Manistique Rotary club Monday noon by Dr. Marion Stevenson, of the Children's Fund of Michigan, who has been in charge of the eye clinic which has been in operation in this city for the past two months, and by Miss Emma Johnson, county nurse, who spoke of the activities in crippled children's work in the county.

Miss Johnson, in citing the accomplishments of the past year told of the joint crippled children's clinic in which 32 cases from Schoolcraft county were examined, stating that all of the cases with the exception of two, have had corrective work done.

The speaker reported a total of 20 cases sent to the Northern Michigan Children's Clinic at Marquette; three crippled children to the University hospital at Ann Arbor; and one crippled child to Grace hospital, Detroit.

Dr. Stevenson, who concludes her work in the local clinic Friday noon, told of the methods of treatment and examination. She stated that cross eyes could be corrected in most instances by the use of glasses if treatment were given early enough in life. In England, she stated, corrective measures are used on six-months old children and recently in this country children have been treated at the age of two. To correct this defect by the use of glasses without operation, steps must usually be taken prior to twelve years of age, said Dr. Stephenson.

SEWAGE PLANT IS SOUGHT HERE

Initial steps toward the procurement of a modern sewage disposal plant for the city of Manistique under the public works section of the National Industrial Recovery Act which provides for an outright grant of thirty per cent of the labor and materials to be used on an approved construction project, were taken Monday evening by the city council when a resolution was drawn empowering Mayor Harry Eriksen to obtain all preliminary information and to make application to the Federal Emergency administration of Public Works, state advisory board, for the installation of such a plant.

The council voiced strong approval of the construction of a sewage disposal plant inasmuch as there is said to be a law on the statute books which will compel cities to discontinue the flowage of sewage into Lake Michigan to become effective as soon as there is an upward trend in economic conditions. In view of the fact that a thirty per cent federal grant is now available on a project of this nature, council members expressed opinion that steps should be taken immediately before the time expiration.

City sewage is now disposed of into Lake Michigan through three main sewers, one for the Westside which empties into the Manistique river at the slips, and two for the Eastside which flow into the river at the foot of Cedar street and directly into Lake Michigan off of Range street. A smaller sewer takes care of Garden avenue, also emptying into Lake Michigan.

Mayor Harry Eriksen yesterday morning immediately got in touch with manufacturers of sewage disposal plants at Chicago and Ann Arbor. It is expected that two or three members of the council will make a trip to Ann Arbor in the future to inquire into types of plants and costs. Estimates of the cost of a sewage disposal plant for a city of this size do not exceed $50,000.

"Resolved, that the mayor be authorized to investigate and obtain the necessary data to enable the city to make application to the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works of the state advisory board for the installation of a sewage disposal plant for the city of Manistique and incurr such necessary expenses as may be necessary for a survey, and to determine the type of plant best suitable for the city."

Cancel Taxes

It was also resolved by the council that the city cancel property taxes now assessed and unpaid against the Newberry Lumber & Chemical Co., for the years 1930, '31, and '32 upon that part of government lots in section 12, town 41 north, range 16 west. The description is that piece of property on Maple avenue north of Elm street upon which the company houses have been torn down and which was recently deeded to Schoolcraft county.

Monday evening's meeting was adjourned until this evening when the council will consider a reply by the Manistique Pulp & Paper company in regard to the city's request for a reduction in light and power rates. About a month and a half ago, the council granted the Manistique Power & Light company a thirty day extension in which to either accept or reject the reduction in rates submitted by the council.

Other business consummated consisted of the granting of a dance hall permit to E. R. Forrest, giving the latter permission to conduct dances upon payment of the fee as stated in the ordinance.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Active buying in the last hour carried stocks up 1 to 6 points or more today after earlier hesitancy.

With the dollar sharply depressed against foreign currencies and gold mining issues on the stock exchange consistently strong as traders expectantly awaited the price at which the government would make its first gold purchase under the new plan, sentiment again seemed to have veered toward inflationary possibilities in the forthcoming dollar control. Wheat was down 1 to 1½ cents net after an erratic session, but stocks put on their best display after grain markets had colsed. Cotton was up a dollar or more and the minor staples strengthened.

Profit-taking held shares in check during the morning and early afternoon. Another factor in the sluggishness of the early market was undoubtedly the uncertainty which financial circles felt as to just how the prospective monetary program should be interpreted.

On the side of business and trade, news was rather negative. The American Iron & Steel Institute, in the first of what is to be a weekly announcement on operating ratios, placed the national steel production average, as of Monday, at 31.8 percent of capacity, which was below the estimate of trade reviews. "American Metal Market," however, said that although demand for steel was still declining, "the decrease is slow and total tonnage really makes a fair showing considering the dullness in business generally and the almost complete absence of demand for capital goods."

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Oct. 24—Wheat today excelled all its recent high price records, but succeeded in the end in scaring buyers to the extent that government relief purchases had been ended.
Options in wheat values carried the market to finish 2c to 4c above the season's low points and were associated with expectation that the new departure in United States gold control tomorrow would prove a stimulus. Reports that crop estimates from Canada and prospects of stoppage of rye imports into the United States were also helpful temporarily in lifting values.
Wheat closed unsettled, 1 to 1 5-8c net under yesterday's finish, corn 1c to 1 1-4c down, oats 3-8c off to 1-8c up and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 37 cents.
Corn and oats chiefly reflected the behavior of wheat.
Provisions were responsive to indications of some export business in lard.

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Slumping international dollar rates brought a revival of inflationary psychology in the bond market today and prices of prime investment and secondary issues generally moved in opposite directions.

Trading volume expanded under the conflicting trends and sales totaled $12,016,000, par value, against $9,039,000 yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced one-tenth of a point.

The sharp rally of European currencies gave some foreign bonds another substantial lift. French government 7s and 7½s were exceptionally active with gains of around 4 points each and most of the French municipals were up 2 to 3. Swiss government 5½s jumped 4¼. Norwegian issues gained 1 to 5, and British, German, Polish and Japanese maturities rallied 1 to 3 or more.

The inflationary wave had a depressing effect on United States government securities, with losses in this group ranging from 1-32nd to 8-32nds of a point.

Metal and Repeal Shares In Demand; Curb Closes Firm

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Curb stocks closed firmly today under heavy late demand for metals and repeal shares. Utilities and oils responded less enthusiastically. Volume increased sharply in the last hour following the market's earlier indecision.

Metals forged higher most of the day despite periodic easiness in other groups, particularly alcohols which lagged in the late forenoon. The "wets," however, cast off their lethargy in the final hour and bounded sharply upward, Hiram Walker soaring nearly 7 points.

Issues closing 2 to around 3 points higher included Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A", Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Lake Shore Mines, New Jersey Zinc, Newmont and Sherwin Williams. American Gas & Electric, Hollinger Gold, Hudson Bay, Mining, National Distillers new and Tublze Cratillon added about a point or more.

Transfers approximated 352,000 shares compared with 281,000 for the previous session.

by MARY RAYMOND

They were Barney and Joan now. In the week acquaintance had ripened into an almost unbelieveable friendship. Barney had taken the initiative, saying simply, "I'm going to call you Joan. It would be foolish to call you Miss Waring when I feel I know you better than any girl I've ever met." And then with the same directness, he had said, "You'll call me Barney, too, won't you?" Joan, to her amazement, had found it surprisingly easy.

Barney was simply irresistible. He was genuine, Joan realized. And fineness and honesty were coupled with a strong, personal magnetism. She was more attracted to him than she had been to any man in a long while.

There had been several dinners at a charming English type inn, tucked away along the countryside, not far from Greenwich. And two long drives through green hills with sudden glimpses of blue lakes.

They had been friends from the beginning and Joan knew she was happier because of it. Barney liked her. She liked him. That was enough. His interest, his devotion, if she were honest, was spicing the days for her and had become an anchor in the great city where she had been so unutterably lonely.

She had told Barney about Pat—little, lost Pat, who was working as a model here in New York, with some queer idea of working out her own problems unaided. She had told him of the tragic accident that had sent Pat, heartsick and bewildered, out into the world.

"The kid had spirit," Barney had said sympathetically. He had accompanied Joan to a model exchange to see if they could find any trace of Pat. There was always the chance, Barney said, that Pat might be using an assumed name. But Joan thought not. She was sure it would never occur to matter-of-fact Pat to resort to such tricks.

Joan was to appear in two numbers tonight. First as a sailor lad, wearing stiff ducks and a jaunty cap. In the other, a lilting Gypsy song, she would be costumed in gay red and yellow satin with a scarf around her head.

The crowd outside at the tables was unusually large. A young pianist, billed as the "Southern Syncopator," played first. The Banjo Boys, old favorites, gave a modern interpretation of operatic selections and Bea, who had already danced her way into the hearts of the Jigsaw patrons, had taken her encores and returned. Joan stood quietly, listening to the applause gradually die away.

"All right, Joan!" Barney told her. He looked excited and some of that excitement was communicated to her. He was counting on her, believing in her!

U. P. Briefs

Bagley Boy Hurt

Menominee—Leonard Talonen, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Talonen, Bagley farmers, was seriously injured at 2 p. m., yesterday when struck by a car driven by Theodore Nylund of Daggett on a county highway at the Finnish church three miles northwest of Daggett.

Camp Buildings Started

Menominee—E. F. Potter Lumber company of Stephenson, awarded the contract for construction of 14 semi-permanent buildings at Wells camp of the Civilian Conservation Corps in John W. Wells state park, Cedar River, began construction of the camp buildings yesterday morning, according to announcement of Maj. Robert V. K. Harris, camp commandant.

The Potter company's bid for construction of the buildings approximates $13,500, but total cost of providing winter quarters and heating, lighting and water service for the C. C. C. camp at Cedar River will be approximately $20,000.

Bus Company Quits

Iron Mountain With receipts practically at the vanishing point, bus line service in Iron Mountain and Kingsford will be suspended in a few days, it was stated yesterday by William D. Cochran, manager of the Iron Range Transportation company, and the company will surrender its permit to the state public utilities commission.

Thus ends an enterprise that thrived during the Ford boom period, but which fell upon evil days with the increasing use of automobiles and the sharp reduction in Ford employment. The company, as a corporation, has been dormant for a considerable period restricted service being continued by Cochran, who also operates the Cochran Freight Lines. This he did in order to retain the public utilities permit in the hope that this would be warranted by improved business conditions later. However, the income has now fallen so low, Cochran said, that it is no longer advisable to retain the permit or attempt to give service.

Young Lawyer Admitted

Iron Mountain—Ernest W. Brown, age 25 years, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Brown, formerly of this city and now residing in Hancock, was formally admitted to practice law in the state of Michigan by Judge Frank A. Bell at the opening of the term of circuit court here yesterday morning.

He came here to explain the plan to eastern holders.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Active buying in the last hour carried stocks up 1 to 6 points or more today after earlier hesitancy.

With the dollar sharply depressed against foreign currencies and gold mining issues on the stock exchange consistently strong as traders expectantly awaited the price at which the government would make its first gold purchase under the new plan, sentiment again seemed to have veered toward inflationary possibilities in the forthcoming dollar control. Wheat was down 1 to 1½ cents net after an erratic session, but stocks put on their best display after grain markets had colsed. Cotton was up a dollar or more and the minor staples strengthened.

Profit-taking held shares in check during the morning and early afternoon. Another factor in the sluggishness of the early market was undoubtedly the uncertainty which financial circles felt as to just how the prospective monetary program should be interpreted.

On the side of business and trade, news was rather negative. The American Iron & Steel Institute, in the first of what is to be a weekly announcement on operating ratios, placed the national steel production average, as of Monday, at 31.8 percent of capacity, which was below the estimate of trade reviews. "American Metal Market," however, said that although demand for steel was still declining, "the decrease is slow and total tonnage really makes a fair showing considering the dullness in business generally and the almost complete absence of demand for capital goods."

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Oct. 24—Wheat today excelled all its recent high price records, but turned off at the last owing largely to assertions that government relief purchases had been ended.

Upturns in wheat values carried the market to almost 20 cents above the season's low point, and were associated with expectation that the new departure in United States gold control tomorrow would prove a stimulus. Bullish wheat crop estimates from Canada and prospects of stoppage of rye imports into the United States were also helpful temporarily in lifting values.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1 to 1 5-8 cents under yesterday's finish, corn 1-8 to 3-4 down, oats 3-8 off to ½ up, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 27 cents.

Corn and oats chiefly reflected the behavior of wheat.

BY VICTOR EUBANK
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Slumping international dollar rates brought a revival of inflationary psychology in the bond market today and prices of prime investment and secondary issues generally moved in opposite directions.

Trading volume expanded under the conflicting trends and sales totaled $12,016,000, par value, against $9,039,000 yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced one-tenth of a point.

The sharp rally of European currencies gave some foreign bonds another substantial lift. French government 7s and 7½s were exceptionally active with gains of around 4 points each and most of the French municipals were up 2 to 3. Swiss government 5½s jumped 4¼, Norwegian issues gained 1 to 5, and British, German, Polish and Japanese maturities rallied 1 to 3 or more.

The inflationary wave had a depressing effect on United States government securities, with losses in this group ranging from 1-32nd to 8-32nds of a point.

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Curb stocks closed firmly today under heavy late demand for metals and repeal shares. Utilities and oils responded less enthusiastically. Volume increased sharply in the last hour following the market's earlier indecision.

Metals forged higher most of the day despite periodic easiness in other groups, particularly alcohols which lagged in the late forenoon. The "wets," however, cast off their lethargy in the final hour and bounded sharply upward, Hiram Walker soaring nearly 7 points.

Issues closing 2 to around 3 points higher included Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A", Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Lake Shore Mines, New Jersey Zinc, Newmont and Sherwin Williams. American Gas & Electric, Hollinger Gold, Hudson Bay, Mining, National Distillers new and Tubize Cratillon added about a point or more.

Transfers approximated 352,000 shares compared with 281,000 for the previous session.

New York, Oct. 24—Foreign exchange buoyant. Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain demand, 4.77 3-4; cables, 4.77 3-4; 60-day bills, 4.77½; France demand, 5.85; cables, 5.85; Italy demand, 7.89; cables, 7.89.

Forgotten Sweetheart

They were Barney and Joan now. In the week acquaintance had ripened into an almost unbelieveable friendship. Barney had taken the initiative, saying simply, "I'm going to call you Joan. It would be foolish to call you Miss Waring when I feel I know you better than any girl I've ever met." And then with the same directness, he had said, "You'll call me Barney, too, won't you?" Joan, to her amazement, had found it surprisingly easy.

Barney was simply irresistible. He was genuine, Joan realized. And fineness and honesty were coupled with a strong, personal magnetism. She was more attracted to him than she had been to any man in a long while.

There had been several dinners at a charming English type inn, tucked away along the countryside, not far from Greenwich. And two long drives through green hills with sudden glimpses of blue lakes.

They had been friends from the beginning and Joan knew she was happier because of it. Barney liked her. She liked him. That was enough. His interest, his devotion, if she were honest, was spicing the days for her and had become an anchor in the great city where she had been so unutterably lonely.

She had told Barney about Pat—little, lost Pat, who was working as a model here in New York, with some queer idea of working out her own problems unaided. She had told him of the tragic accident that had sent Pat, heartsick and bewildered, out into the world.

"The kid had spirit," Barney had said sympathetically. He had accompanied Joan to a model exchange to see if they could find any trace of Pat. There was always the chance, Barney said, that Pat might be using an assumed name. But Joan thought not. She was sure it would never occur to matter-of-fact Pat to resort to such tricks.

Joan was to appear in two numbers tonight. First as a sailor lad, wearing stiff ducks and a jaunty cap. In the other, a lilting Gypsy song, she would be costumed in gay red and yellow satin with a scarf around her head.

The crowd outside at the tables was unusually large. A young pianist, billed as the "Southern Syncopator," played first. The Banjo Boys, old favorites, gave a modern interpretation of operatic selections and Bea, who had already danced her way into the hearts of the Jigsaw patrons, had taken her encores and returned. Joan stood quietly, listening to the applause gradually die away.

"All right, Joan!" Barney told her. He looked excited and some of that excitement was communicated to her. He was counting on her, believing in her!

Bagley Boy Hurt

Menominee—Leonard Talonen, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Talonen, Bagley farmers, was seriously injured at 2 p. m., yesterday when struck by a car driven by Theodore Nylund of Daggett on a county highway at the Finnish church three miles northwest of Daggett.

Camp Buildings Started

Menominee—E. F. Potter Lumber company of Stephenson, awarded the contract for construction of 14 semi-permanent buildings at Wells camp of the Civilian Conservation Corps in John W. Wells state park, Cedar River, began construction of the camp buildings yesterday morning, according to announcement of Maj. Robert V. K. Harris, camp commandant.

The Potter company's bid for construction of the buildings approximates $13,500, but total cost of providing winter quarters and heating, lighting and water service for the C. C. C. camp at Cedar River will be approximately $20,000.

Bus Company Quits

Iron Mountain—With receipts practically at the vanishing point, bus line service in Iron Mountain and Kingsford will be suspended in a few days, it was stated yesterday by William D. Cochran, manager of the Iron Range Transportation company, and the company will surrender its permit to the state public utilities commission.

Thus ends an enterprise that thrived during the Ford boom period, but which fell upon evil days with the increasing use of automobiles and the sharp reduction in Ford employment. The company, as a corporation, has been dormant for a considerable period restricted service being continued by Cochran, who also operates the Cochran Freight Lines. This he did in order to retain the public utilities permit in the hope that this would be warranted by improved business conditions later. However, the income has now fallen so low, Cochran said, that it is no longer advisable to retain the permit or attempt to give service.

Young Lawyer Admitted

Iron Mountain—Ernest W. Brown, age 25 years, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Ernest Brown, formerly of this city and now residing in Hancock, was formally admitted to practice law in the state of Michigan by Judge Frank A. Bell at the opening of the term of circuit court here yesterday morning.

Hot Stovers Wonder Who'll Succeed Phil Ball

HORNSBY STAYS ON AS MANAGER

St. Louis, Oct. 24 (AP)—The question of what's to become of the St. Louis Browns, now that their "angel," Phil De Catesby Ball, is dead, has given baseball's hot stove league a large supply of material for speculation.

Prospects are that the answer will not be forthcoming until Ball's will is filed for probate, probably late this week. In the meantime, L. C. McEvoy, vice president of the club, is in charge of the Browns, as well as Ball's other baseball properties, the Milwaukee (American Association) and the San Antonio (Texas League) clubs.

Funeral services for Ball, prominent St. Louis industrialist to whom baseball was a sincere hobby, were held here this afternoon. He died Sunday from blood poisoning at the age of 69.

Baseball leaders in attendance included Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, and Will Harridge, president of the American League. All American League clubs except New York and Chicago were represented.

Unless Ball made provisions in his will for the future ownership of the money-losing Browns, the executors of the estate, probably together with the directors of the club, will decide what disposition is to be made of the American League franchise. Ball owned 87 per cent of the stock in the club.

Among rumors is one that Ball had made an agreement with Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, giving him first chance to buy the club in event of Ball's death, but McEvoy said he knew nothing of such an agreement. Ball and Sinclair have been friends ever since the Federal League days, when Ball owned a team here and Sinclair a club at Newark.

While Ball's death has given rise to many rumors concerning the future ownership of the Browns, Rogers Hornsby, the turbulent Texan, is almost cerain to remain as manager, since the contract Ball gave him toward the fag end of the last season has two years to run.

Ball, who died without realizing his 18 year dream of bringing an American League pennant winner to St. Louis, thought so well of Hornsby as the man to lift the Browns out of the ruck that he gave him much more authority than other of his managers, but, as always, reserved the final say on all deals.

THEY MAY CHANGE GRID HISTORY SATURDAY

BETS ARE EASY IN THE BIG TEN

Just Select Michigan And You Seldom Go Wrong

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP)—Football experting, a hazardous pastime for a man that can't take it, is the next best thing to a cinch in the Big Ten.

All you have to do to quality as a keen critic of the college pigskin industry along this salient is to pick Michigan and then sit back and accept congratulations. The Wolverines seldom make you or their superlative singing grads look foolish.

The rest of the Big Ten teams know full well what the "Wolf at the door" means. Over 25 years of competition in the conference wars, the "Wolves" have truged away with 14 championships in football. Exclusive of this year, they have emerged with 80 victories, 26 defeats, and only three ties, one of the most remarkable records in college gridiron lore. That's a winning average of .755 for strictly conference games. Outside the Big Ten, they rarely lose a battle.

An this season looks like another championship for the Michigan forces coached by the youthful Harry Kipke. In showing Ohio State out of their way last Saturday, the Wolverines displayed one of the smoothest pieces of football machinery ever exhibited on a Big Ten field. To date, the machine hasn't been extended, piling up 73 points in three conquests to their opponents' six. They have five conference engagements left, but their toughest two, against Iowa and Minnesota, will be played on their home field.

There have been only 3 really dark years for Michigan on the Big Ten football field. They were in 1919, when the "Wolves" won but one and lost four; 1928, when they won one, lost three, and tied one. Since then they have been beaten only once—by Ohio State in 1931—and tied twice—by Michigan State in 1930 and 1931. These same years they tied for the championship; last year, they were undisputed champs. Since Kipke's coaching regime began in 1929, they have scored 597 points to 144 by the opposition in and out of the Big Ten.

Michigan's lead in harvesting Big Ten football champoinships unquestionably would have been even more decisive if its athletic officials hadn't withdrawn the university from the conference in the squabble over the training table. From 1906 to 1917, inclusive, the Wolverines played only two Big Ten games and undoubtedly would have been undefeated champions in 1914, '15, and '17.

In other sports, notably track and baseball, the "Wolves" long have been the ones to beat although their records in those sports cannot compare with their football reputation.

So along the Big Ten sports trail, the motto is "string along with Michigan" and its making experts expert.

Pure hydrogen does not have any odor, taste or color.

So Kink Richards Got Job With The Giants

Dynamite Gustaf Can't Sell Beer At His Barbecue

Reno, Nev., Oct. 24 (AP)—"Dynamite Gus" Sonnenberg, former champion of the heavyweight wrestlers, was wondering today how the Reno divorce colony would enjoy his pork and beef sandwiches without the 3.2 per cent beer he had planned would go with them.

The city council refused Sonnenberg a permit to sell beer in his recently-opened barbecue shack, after pastors of churches in the neighborhood had protested "We want this particular district to remain clean."

Said the Rev. Brewster Adams, of the Baptist church, to the council:

"We are not dumb. We know that the granting of a beer permit to this place is just incidental to an invasion of this district by similar hurdy gurdy establishments.

"We have been tolerant in the past, but if the council should see fit to grant this permit it would constitute a direct challenge to us to clean up the rest of this town. You will just turn Reno upside down for a pork sandwich."

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—During the past summer, when the sun was hot and the beaches crowded, Steve Owen, coach of the New York Giants professional football team, got a letter, post marked "Garden Grove, Ia.," from probably the only other fellow in the country who was also thinking about football.

"I think I could be a pretty good back," the letter said, "x x x weight 190 x x x Simpson college past three years x x x led Iowa conference in scoring two years x x x I'll pay my own expenses east for a tryout x x x name is Elvin Richards."

Steve comes from out that way and he has seen football giants blooming unnoticed in many a small college way station, far from the beaten track of the All-America selectors. He wrote back briefly, "Come on along."

So Elvin "Kink" Richards, a stocky, quiet, drawly kind of a boy from Iowa, came along east and has been coming hard and fast ever since. Last Sunday, when the Giants beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, "Kink" came along from his own goal line to the 30 with a kickoff, then meandered the remaining 70 to the opposite goal line on the next play. He has already been reimbursed for his expenses east.

"Kink" talked about it today in a sort of a tooth-pulling way because he naturally has little to say and in addition he's still a bit awed by it all. He's only 22.

"I get a bigger thrill out of pro-football than I did in college. It's a grown-up thrill. The crowds are bigger, and this is New York.

"It's harder than college football, and yet it's easier, too, in a way," he went on. "You have to run harder because you don't need to save yourself. There are plenty more on the bench just as good. It's easier because every man playing with you is a star, or he wouldn't be there. When you get into the clear you know they're down the field ahead of you mopping up. They don't miss."

It doesn't seem strange to "Kink," who taught last year in a high school in Stuart, Ia., and played semi-pro football on the side, that the unknowns from the small schools provide the backbone of the professional game.

"The best football player I ever saw was Lin King, Drake quarterback in 1929," he said. "He could do anything with football, though he only scored 155 points. But you never beat him in the end. The greatest thrill I ever got from a game was to see me watching him run 80 yards in the last couple of minutes of play to beat Iowa State 21 to 20. They kept hitting him, but he kept going."

Richards plans to study physical education here while playing football so that in three years time he'll be able to go back home to an important post. In the meantime he's seeing all the eastern colleges, and college football, he can. Princeton and Columbia did not impress him last Saturday.

"Maybe," he said, "I'm getting spoiled a little."

ROCK CLOSES GRID SEASON

Little Giants Complete Schedule Unbeaten and Unscored On

Rock, Mich.—Rock's Little Giant grid machine closed an impressive undefeated and unscored on season Saturday, when they defeated Stephenson high school by a 12-0 score.

The Stephenson game was raggedly played by the locals and they were required to do their utmost to stem several potential 2nd line thrusts and keep their final marker uncrossed. Lauri and Kulju, junior backs, did the scoring act for the Little Giants.

The season just closed can be classed as a distinct success and the team will go down as one of the best in Rock's history. In five successive victories, they scored 189 points, nearly 38 points per game while holding their opponents scoreless. The victims were Stephenson twice and Escanaba, Manistique and Gladstone 6 once each. The team also played a 6-6 tie with the Gladstone varsity in a practice game.

Six seniors have played their last football game for Rock, namely: Capt. Vilho Kaukola, Leslie Viitala, William Rosdet, Tolvo Maki, LeRoy Utt and Wilbur Gibbs. The remaining members, who expect to return and form the neucleus of next year's team, are: Lauri, Brehmer, Osterberg, Kulkka, H. Brukardt, Bailey, Hakanen, Kulju, V. Kaukola, O. Brukardt, Huff, Lusardi, Sharkey, Chenail, Sayen and Pilon.

Winooka Sprints Test Race Today

Laurel, Md., Oct. 24 (AP)—The test race for Winooka, Australian sprint star, is to be run over the laurel track tomorrow, with four of America's fastest thoroughbred horses opposing.

Winooka's opponents in the special three-quarters-of-a-mile dash, which carries a purse of $2,500 added, are:

The race is a test and tune-up for the expected match with the American champion, C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, to be run November 7 in New York.

Whitney has declined to allow his champion to run unless Winooka can prove his worth in a race with a group of outstanding stars. Difficulties about the distance for the race are being smoothed out.

Governor Urges Navy Day Rites

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—Governor Comstock in a proclamation today urged citizens to observe Friday as "Navy Day" and the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt.

"Recognition of the magnificent record consistently maintained by the American navy throughout the hundred and fifty-eight years of its existence is fittingly made contemporaneous with the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt because of his appreciation of the necessity of preserving the traditions of our navy and of keeping it on fighting edge," the proclamation said in part.

Eskymos Well Primed For Mountaineer Team

Fully determined to wipe out the sting of the only defeat they have suffered this season, that at the hands of Menominee, Coach Carl Nordberg and his Eskymo athletes are making plans for the invasion of the Eskymos into Iron Mountain next Saturday.

Iron Mountain laced Menominee to the tune of 23 to 0 last Saturday and naturally will rule favorite over the Eskymos who went down before the Maroons by a 14 to 8 count.

However, Coach Nordberg never finds it difficult to whip his squad into fighting shape when they are making ready to play the Mountaineers and the familiar "Beat Iron Mountain" spirit which permeates the Escanaba camp about this time every year is keenly felt on the local campus and athletic field these days.

Iron Mountain, after a slow start, reached the peak for the Menominee game last Saturday and the Chard coached gridders played the Maroons off their feet from the start. The Eskymos, on the other hand, while showing up exceptionally well in portions of the Menominee and Soo games, admittedly have no yet reached the peak of their training, the point every coach strives to reach for his team when the athletes play their best brand of ball for the entire game.

Lust for Battle

The Eskymos and Coach Nordberg feel that the apex will be met Saturday at Iron Mountain. The lust for battle which accompanies a team's form peak is certainly evident in the Eskymo training quarters this week and from Captain Finman down to the lowliest sophomore scrub the desire to beat the Mountaineers is innermost.

Especially for Captain Finman who has provided the Eskymos' principal offensive weapon this year, the Iron Mountain game means something more than just another football game. Finman was one of the staunchest men in the Eskymo drive on the Mountaineers in 1931 when the local gridders went over to Iron Mountain to paste the Dickinson county team down to the tune of 14 to 12 in the face of an avalanche of predictions that the Nordmen would be lucky to hold Iron Mountain to anything less than a half dozen touchdowns.

That 1931 Escanaba-Iron Mountain game proved what fight can do to a football team. It was a lesson in football etiquette that indelibly impressed the sophomore scrubs of that year who now are the senior stars of the 1933 Eskymo team.

Escanaba fans while making no optimistic predictions that the Eskymos will repeat their 1931 upset victory over the Mountaineers are confident that the Nordmen will give an exhibition of fight that will surprise their foe and a fighting team is always a dangerous team.

NO WEATHER PROPHET

Iron Mountain, Oct. 24 (Special)—Unlike his coaching colleague, John Possi, of Kingsford, Dick Chard, Iron Mountain athletic director, does not consider himself a weather prophet. So today the Iron Mountain gridders had to work out in the snow that covered the high school stadium.

Informed Kingsford was working indoors on Possi's belief the snow would be gone by Saturday, Chard jokingly remarked he had not been taking correspondence lessons from the United States weather bureau, so his charges would have to go outdoors. Then seriously, "We are not overlooking a thing in our preparation for this game that means the championship of the Northern Nine conference and revenge for two straight defeats Escanaba had plastered on Iron Mountain.

"If we are going to have snow Saturday, I want our boys to be prepared for those conditions, so out they go."

Warned About Esky

Work this week will stress defense against off tackle smashes and end runs, two means of attack in which Escanaba is reputedly very strong. Chard came away from Menominee with plenty of warnings about Escanaba, many of the Maroon fans frankly telling him Menominee was lucky to win.

Iron Mountain was "at tops" against Menominee and it apparently is the duty of the coaches to get the boys up to peak again Saturday if they are to knock off Escanaba and take the 1933 conference championship.

Big Primo Booked To Box Schmeling

Rome, Oct. 24 (AP)—Managers of Primo Carnera, world's heavyweight champion, told newspapermen tonight that Primo would fight Max Schmeling, of Germany, former holder of the crown in Rome next year. They said the match had been arranged definitely but that the exact date still was to be decided upon.

They said Carnera would fight a title match in Rome once a year so long as he holds the championship.

Twenty-two of this year's freshman football candidates at the University of Missouri were found to be on the ineligible list.

In College Grid Camps

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP)—There seemed to be a great deal of confidence around Northwestern regarding the Wildcats chances against Ohio State Saturday after today's workout.

The Cats showed up well in scrimmage particularly the reserve backs. The aerial game was stressed.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP)—While the University of Illinois reserves resumed practice today the varsity players continued to rest from the effects of the Army game. The first stringers will start working out tomorrow and will play the freshman Saturday.

South Bend, Ind., Oct. 24 (AP)—A drastic shakeup that saw five of the seven string linemen shifted back to the second team took place at Notre Dame today.

For a time it was feared that Seel's leg was broken, but X-rays showed the injury was only a severe bruise.

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP)—Coach Clark Shaughnessy scrimmaged his University of Chicago varsity squad today. The Maroons worked mostly on offense, trying the new plays which are planned for Michigan. After the scrimmage there was a short session of blocking and tackling on the dummies.

Bloomington, Ind., Oct. 24 (AP)—In an effort to whip a presentable offense into shape, Coach Billy Hayes of Indiana today shifted Bob Jones, senior guard who played fullback in 1931 and 1932 back to his old post, and the big fellow who does the punting for the Hoosiers responded by breaking away for substantial gains against the freshmen.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 24 (AP)—The air was full of footballs in a short Purdue scrimmage session today as Purvis, Hecker and Carter tossed long and short forward passes preparing an aerial attack for use against Wisconsin. A freshman team using the single wing back, was unable to gain against the varsity defense.

Columbus, O., Oct. 24 (AP)—Ohio State's Big Ten grid squad resumed practice today after a day off to recuperate from Saturday's defeat at the hands of Michigan. Coach Sam Willaman lined up the same team that started aaginst the Wolverines but indicated several changes are planned. The workout was brief with a kicking drill preceding a scrimmage between the freshmen and the varsity.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 24 (AP)—The varsity eleven with several changes in both line and backfield, tore the frosh to shreds today as Wisconsin began preparation for its clash with Purdue. Coach Spears used a new back field combination that brought surprising results on offense.

Hot Stovers Wonder Who'll Succeed Phil Ball

HORNSBY STAYS ON AS MANAGER

St. Louis, Oct. 24 (AP)—The question of what's to become of the St. Louis Browns, now that their "angel," Phil De Catesby Ball, is dead, has given baseball's hot stove league a large supply of material for speculation.

Prospects are that the answer will not be forthcoming until Ball's will is filed for probate, probably late this week. In the meantime, L. C. McEvoy, vice president of the club, is in charge of the Browns, as well as Ball's other baseball properties, the Milwaukee (American Association) and the San Antonio (Texas League) clubs.

Funeral services for Ball, prominent St. Louis industrialist to whom baseball was a sincere hobby, were held here this afternoon. He died Sunday from blood poisoning at the age of 69.

Baseball leaders in attendance included Kenesaw Mountain Landis, commissioner of baseball, and Will Harridge, president of the American League. All American League clubs except New York and Chicago were represented.

Unless Ball made provisions in his will for the future ownership of the money-losing Browns, the executors of the estate, probably together with the directors of the club, will decide what disposition is to be made of the American League franchise. Ball owned 87 per cent of the stock in the club.

Among rumors is one that Ball had made an agreement with Harry F. Sinclair, oil magnate, giving him first chance to buy the club in event of Ball's death, but McEvoy said he knew nothing of such an agreement. Ball and Sinclair have been friends ever since the Federal League days, when Ball owned a team here and Sinclair a club at Newark.

While Ball's death has given rise to many rumors concerning the future ownership of the Browns, Rogers Hornsby, the turbulent Texan is almost cerain to remain as manager, since the contract Ball gave him toward the fag end of the last season has two years to run.

Ball, who died without realizing his 18 year dream of bringing an American League pennant winner to St. Louis, thought so well of Hornsby as the man to lift the Browns out of the ruck that he gave him much more authority than other of his managers, but, as always, reserved the final say on all deals.

THEY MAY CHANGE GRID HISTORY SATURDAY

BETS ARE EASY IN THE BIG TEN

Just Select Michigan And You Seldom Go Wrong

BY PAUL MICKELSON
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, Oct. 24 (AP)—Football experting, a hazardous pastime for a man that can't take it, is the next best thing to a cinch in the Big Ten.

All you have to do to qualify as a keen critic of the college pigskin industry along this salient is to pick Michigan and then sit back and accept congratulations. The Wolverines seldom make you or their superlative singing grads look foolish.

The rest of the Big Ten teams know full well what the "Wolf at the door" means. Over 25 years of competition in the conference wars, the "Wolves" have truged away with 14 championships in football. Exclusive of this year, they have emerged with 80 victories, 26 defeats, and only three ties, one of the most remarkable records in college gridiron lore. That's a winning average of .755 for strictly conference games. Outside the Big Ten, they rarely lose a battle.

An this season looks like another championship for the Michigan forces coached by the youthful Harry Kipke. In showing Ohio State out of their way last Saturday, the Wolverines displayed one of the smoothest pieces of football machinery ever exhibited on a Big Ten field. To date, the machine hasn't been extended, piling up 73 points in three conquests to their opponents' six. They have five conference engagements left, but their toughest two, against Iowa and Minnesota, will be played on their home field.

There have been only 3 really dark years for Michigan on the Big Ten football field. They were in 1919, when the "Wolves" won but one and lost four; 1928, when they won one, lost three, and tied one. Since then they have been beaten only once—by Ohio State in 1931—and tied twice—by Michigan State in 1930 and 1931. These same years they tied for the championship; last year, they were undisputed champs. Since Kipke's coaching regime began in 1929, they have scored 597 points to 144 by the opposition in and out of the Big Ten.

Michigan's lead in harvesting Big Ten football champoinships unquestionably would have been even more decisive if its athletic officials hadn't withdrawn the university from the conference in the squabble over the training table. From 1906 to 1917, inclusive, the Wolverines played only two Big Ten games and undoubtedly would have been undefeated champions in 1914, '15, and '17.

In other sports, notably track and baseball, the "Wolves" long have been the ones to beat although their records in those sports cannot compare with their football reputation.

So along the Big Ten sports trail, the motto is "string along with Michigan" and its making experts expert.

So Kink Richards Got Job With The Giants

Dynamite Gustaf Can't Sell Beer At His Barbecue

Reno, Nev., Oct. 24 (AP)—"Dynamite Gus" Sonnenberg, former champion of the heavyweight wrestlers, was wondering today how the Reno divorce colony would enjoy his pork and beef sandwiches without the 3.2 per cent beer he had planned would go with them.

The city council refused Sonnenberg a permit to sell beer in his recently-opened barbecue shack, after pastors of churches in the neighborhood had protested "We want this particular district to remain clean."

Said the Rev. Brewster Adams, of the Baptist church, to the council:

"We are not dumb. We know that the granting of a beer permit to this place is just incidental to an invasion of this district by similar hurdy gurdy establishments.

"We have been tolerant in the past, but if the council should see fit to grant this permit it would constitute a direct challenge to us to clean up the rest of this town. You will just turn Reno upside down for a pork sandwich."

BY EDWARD J. NEIL
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—During the past summer, when the sun was hot and the beaches crowded, Steve Owen, coach of the New York Giants professional football team, got a letter, post marked "Garden Grove, Ia.," from probably the only other fellow in the country who was also thinking about football.

"I think I could be a pretty good back," the letter said, "x x x weight 190 x x x Simpson college past three years x x x led Iowa conference in scoring two years x x x I'll pay my own expenses east for a tryout x x x name is Elvin Richards."

Steve comes from out that way and he has seen football giants blooming unnoticed in many a small college way station, far from the beaten track of the All-America selectors. He wrote back briefly, "Come on along."

So Elvin "Kink" Richards, a stocky, quiet, drawly kind of a boy from Iowa, came along east and has been coming hard and fast ever since. Last Sunday, when the Giants beat the Brooklyn Dodgers, "Kink" came along from his own goal line to the 36 with a kickoff, then meandered the remaining 70 to the opposite goal line on the next play. He has already been reimbursed for his expenses east.

"Kink" talked about it today, in a sort of a tooth-pulling way because he naturally has little to say and in addition he's still a bit awed by it all. He's only 22.

"I get a bigger thrill out of pro-football than I did in college. It's a grown-up thrill. The crowds are bigger, and this is New York.

"It's harder than college football, and yet it's easier, too, in a way," he went on. "You have to run harder because you don't need to save yourself. There are plenty more on the bench just as good. It's easier because every man playing with you is a star, or he wouldn't be there. When you get into the clear you know they're down the field ahead of you mopping up. They don't miss."

It doesn't seem strange to "Kink," who taught last year in a high school in Stuart, Ia., and played semi-pro football on the side, that the unknowns from the small schools provide the backbone of the professional game.

"The best football player I ever saw was Lin King, Drake quarterback in 1929," he said. "He could do anything with a football, though he only weighed 155 pounds. But you never heard of him in the east. The biggest thrill I ever got from a game he gave me watching him run 70 yards in the last couple of minutes of play to beat Iowa State 21 to 20. They kept hitting him, but he kept going."

Richards plans to study physical education here while playing football so that in three years time he'll be able to go back home to an important post. In the meantime he's seeing all the eastern colleges, and college football, he can. Princeton and Columbia did not impress him last Saturday.

"Maybe," he said, "I'm getting spoiled a little."

Rock, Mich.—Rock's Little Giant grid machine closed an impressive undefeated and unscored on season Saturday, when they defeated Stephenson high school by a 12-0 score.

The Stephenson game was raggedly played by the locals and they were required to do their utmost to stem several potential goal line thrusts and keep their final marker uncrossed. Lauri and Kulju, junior backs, did the scoring acts for the Little Giants.

The season just closed can be classed as a distinct success and the team will go down as one of the best in Rock's history. In five successive victories, they scored 189 points, nearly 40 points per game while holding their opponents scoreless. The victims were Stephenson twice and Escanaba, Manistique and Gladstone B once each. The team also played a 6-6 tie with the Gladstone varsity in a practice game.

Six seniors have played their last football game for Rock, namely: Capt. Vilho Kaukola, Leslie Viitala, William Rosdet, Toivo Maki, LeRoy Utt and Wilbur Gibbs. The remaining members, who expect to return and form the neucleus of next year's team, are: Lauri, Brehmer, Osterberg, Kulkka, H. Brukardt, Bailey, Hakanen, Kulju, V. Kaukola, O. Brukardt, Huff, Lusardi, Sharkey, Chenail, Sayen and Pilon.

Winooka Sprints Test Race Today

Laurel, Md., Oct. 24 (AP)—The test race for Winooka, Australian sprint star, is to be run over the laurel track tomorrow, with four of America's fastest thoroughbred horses opposing.

Winooka's opponents in the special three-quarters-of-a-mile dash, which carries a purse of $2,500 added, are:

The race is a test and tune-up for the expected match with the American champion, C. V. Whitney's Equipoise, to be run November 7 in New York.

Whitney has declined to allow his champion to run unless Winooka can prove his worth in a race with a group of outstanding stars. Difficulties about the distance for the race are being smoothed out.

Governor Urges Navy Day Rites

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—Governor Comstock in a proclamation today urged citizens to observe Friday as "Navy Day" and the seventy-fifth anniversary of the birth of Theodore Roosevelt.

"Recognition of the magnificent record consistently maintained by the American navy throughout the hundred and fifty-eight years of its existence is fittingly made contemporaneous with the birthday of Theodore Roosevelt because of his appreciation of the necessity of preserving the traditions of our navy and of keeping it on fighting edge," the proclamation said in part.

The San Diego, Cal., Marines received their football togs just a few hours before their first game against Santa Barbara Athletic club. They were rushed by airplane from the east when a hurry order was sent out the night before the game.

Bachman Has Two Back Combinations To Meet Syracuse

East Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—Charley Bachman, Michigan State's new gridiron coach, will attempt to match Syracuse's manpower Saturday with speed and counter-power, it was indicated today as regulars returned to uniform to open preparations for the Orange team.

The plan calls for the use of four halfback stars to put two widely different backfields on the field against Syracuse.

Starting in the backfield probably will be Alton Kircher at quarterback; Jim McCrary, negro, at fullback, and Bernard McNutt and Bob Armstrong at the halfback posts. This line-up will give Bachman the maximum amount of power out of his backfield and a great deal of speed.

Should this combination fail to function against the heavy Syracuse line, Bachman is expected to insert his two sophomore stars, Kurt Warmbein and Dick Colina, at the halfback berths.

The latter combination will give Bachman added speed and a greater passing threat. Warmbein is the best passer on the squad. Colina, who has been bothered with injuries for two weeks, is a 148-pound package of nervous energy that consistently worried Michigan in the Wolverines' opening game of the season.

The Syracuse game offers Bachman and Michigan State the first opportunity this year for eastern recognition and coaches are not taking any chances of entering the contest with injuries to worry about.

New Management To Run Olympia

Detroit, Oct. 24 (AP)—Olympia Arena, this city's huge sports palace, where professional hockey holds sway in winter time, is about to be placed under a new organization, headed by James Norris, Chicago grain magnate and hockey fan.

Bondholders of the arena have taken over the building and the franchise of the two pro hockey clubs, paying $660,000 for the building and $75,000 for the franchise, at a foreclosure sale. Under the terms of the sale, they will pay the amount by turning in their bonds.

Norris owns the contracts for several star hockey players. He came here last year to interest himself in the Detroit Red Wings and the Detroit Olympics.

Hockey games are scheduled to open November 12, when the Red Wings start the 1933 season.

Eskymos Well Primed For Mountaineer Team

Fully determined to wipe out the sting of the only defeat they have suffered this season, that at the hands of Menominee, Coach Carl Nordberg and his Eskymo athletes are making plans for the invasion of the Eskymos into Iron Mountain next Saturday.

Iron Mountain laced Menominee to the tune of 23 to 0 last Saturday and naturally will rule favorite over the Eskymos who went down before the Maroons by a 14 to 8 count.

However, Coach Nordberg never finds it difficult to whip his squad into fighting shape when they are making ready to play the Mountaineers and the familiar "Beat Iron Mountain" spirit which permeates the Escanaba camp about this time every year is keenly felt on the local campus and athletic field these days.

Iron Mountain, after a slow start, reached the peak for the Menominee game last Saturday and the Chard coached gridders played the Maroons off their feet from the start. The Eskymos, on the other hand, while showing up exceptionally well in portions of the Menominee and Soo games, admittedly have not yet reached the peak of their training, the point every coach strives to reach for his team when the athletes play their best brand of ball for the entire game.

Lust for Battle

The Eskymos and Coach Nordberg feel that the apex will be met Saturday at Iron Mountain. The lust for battle which accompanies a team's form peak is certainly evident in the Eskymo training quarters this week and from Captain Finman down to the lowliest sophomore scrub the desire to beat the Mountaineers is innermost.

Especially for Captain Finman who has provided the Eskymos' principal offensive weapon this year, the Iron Mountain game means something more than just another football game. Finman was one of the staunchest men in the Eskymo drive on the Mountaineers in 1931 when the local gridders went over to Iron Mountain to paste the Dickinson county team down to he tune of 14 to 12 in the face of an avalanche of predictions that the Nordmen would be lucky to hold Iron Mountain to anything less than a half dozen touchdowns.

That 1931 Escanaba-Iron Mountain game proved what fight can do to a football team. it was a lesson in football etiquette that indelibly impressed the sophomore scrubs of that year who now are the senior stars of the 1933 Eskymo team.

Escanaba fans while making no optimistic predictions that the Eskymos will repeat their 1931 upset victory over the Mountaineers are confident that the Nordmen will give an exhibition of fight that will surprise their foe and a fighting team is always a dangerous team.

NO WEATHER PROPHET

Iron Mountain, Oct. 24 (Special)—Unlike his coaching colleague, John Possi, of Kingsford, Dick Chard, Iron Mountain athletic director, does not consider himself a weather prophet. So today the Iron Mountain gridders had to work out in the snow that covered the high school stadium.

Informed Kingsford was working indoors on Possi's belief the snow would be gone by Saturday, Chard jokingly remarked he had not been taking correspondence lessons from the United States weather bureau, so his charges would have to go outdoors. Then seriously, "We are not overlooking a thing in our preparation for this game that means the championship of the Northern Nine conference and revenge for two straight defeats Escanaba had plastered on Iron Mountain.

"If we are going to have snow Saturday, I want our boys to be prepared for those conditions. So out they go."

Warned About Esky

Work this week will stress defense against off-tackle smashes and end runs, two means of attack in which Escanaba is reputedly very strong. Chard came away from Menominee with plenty of warnings about Escanaba, many of the Maroon fans frankly telling him Menominee was lucky to win.

Iron Mountain was "at tops" against Menominee and it apparently is the duty of the coaches to get the boys up to peak again Saturday if they are to knock off Escanaba and take the 1933 conference championship.

Big Primo Booked To Box Schmeling

Rome, Oct. 24 (AP)—Managers of Primo Carnera, world's heavyweight champion, told newspapermen tonight that Primo would fight Max Schmeling, of Germany, former holder of the crown in Rome next year. They said the match had been arranged definitely but that the exact date still was to be decided upon.

They said Carnera would fight a title match in Rome once a year so long as he holds the championship.

Twenty-two of this year's freshman football candidates at the University of Missouri were found to be on the ineligible list.

In College Grid Camps

Evanston, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP)—There seemed to be a great deal of confidence around Northwestern regarding the Wildcats chances against Ohio State Saturday after today's workout.

Champaign, Ill., Oct. 24 (AP)—While the University of Illinois reserves resumed practice today the varsity players continued to rest from the effects of the Army game. The first stringers will start working out tomorrow and will play the freshman Saturday.

GOOD SEASON FOR ORE SEEN

Lake Superior Region to Ship 22,000,000 Tons in 1933

This season's iron ore shipments from the Lake Superior region will run into the neighborhood of 22,000,000 tons, information from authoritative sources indicates. This is quite a satisfactory season when compared with 3,567,985 tons, which was the total shipped in 1932. The tonnage in 1931 amounted to 23,167,786 tons.

One boat loaded at the Escanaba docks yesterday, and 14 more are scheduled to arrive before the end of the month. Shipments up to yesterday from this port totaled 1,390,488 tons, 972,258 of which was from the North Western railway and 418,230 from the Milwaukee Road.

Shipments of ore from the Lake Superior mines during the present season up to Oct. 1 totaled 16,301,573 tons, and the loadings for the first half of October indicates that shipments for this month will approximate 5,000,000 tons and the estimates for November vary from 5,000,000 to 1,500,000 tons.

Rural Enumerators Allowed Five Cents

County clerks serving in rural sections of the state will be allowed five cents a name for taking the old age pension act census, it was announced by Miss Evelyn S. Mershon, state welfare director, who has the administration of the act.

The price of four cents a name originally established will apply to the urban areas only.

The state administrative board has advanced the money for taking the census and will be repaid when head tax collections come in to the state treasurer.

City workmen have graded this piece of highway on South Fourteenth street, from Eleventh Avenue South to Lake Shore Drive near the Athletic field. It is now all in readiness for concrete paving, but as the season is far advanced now this work will have to be held over until next spring.

No word has been received at the district highway office here as to when the propect will be advertised for bids.

AMUSEMENTS

The author of "Rain" has again written of the little known by-places the "narrow corners" of the earth, where men spin out their lives pretty much as they please. The present story is laid in the Malay Archipelago, on one of the islands of the Dutch East Indies, after opening in Sidney, Australia.

Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Patricia Ellis, Ralph Bellamy and Dudley Digges have the leading roles in this all-star production. Miss Ellis, a newcomer to the screen, is not only an exquisite beauty, but a very able actress who played for years on the New York stage with her father, the musical comedy producer, Alexander Leftwich.

But it is the colorful background, the unusual situations, the strong delineation of the picturesque characters which are said to make this one of the most appealing pictures of the year.

GOOD SEASON FOR ORE SEEN

Lake Superior Region to Ship 22,000,000 Tons in 1933

This season's iron ore shipments from the Lake Superior region will run into the neighborhood of 22,000,000 tons, information from authoritative sources indicates. This is quite a satisfactory season when compared with 3,567,985 tons, which was the total shipped in 1932. The tonnage in 1931 amounted to 23,467,786 tons.

One boat loaded at the Escanaba docks yesterday, and 14 more are scheduled to arrive before the end of the month. Shipments up to yesterday from this port totaled 1,390,488 tons, 972,258 of which was from the North Western railway and 418,230 from the Milwaukee Road.

Shipments of ore from the Lake Superior mines during the present season up to Oct. 1 totaled 16,301,573 tons, and the loadings for the first half of October indicates that shipments for this month will approximate 5,000,000 tons and the estimates for November vary from 5,000,000 to 1,500,000 tons.

HULL PLANNING SOUTHERN TRIP

BY JOHN F. CHESTER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Oct. 23 (AP)—Simultaneous trade expansion drives along both the Russian and South American front appeared the goal of the United States today with the disclosure by Secretary Hull of plans for a good-will tour below the Equator during the Soviet recognition discussions here.

The secretary said he hoped to sail by the end of next week on a trip that would take him down the west coast of South America to Santiago, Chile. He would then cross by train to Buenos Aires and head the American delegation at the Pan American conference at Montevideo, Uruguay.

Expand Trade Ties

Just as the recognition conversations between President Roosevelt and Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet commissar of foreign affairs, will lean heavily upon trade and credit matters between the two countries, so Hull will seek to cement relationships prior to the Montevideo meeting in December.

At the Uruguay conference, the administration hopes to expand trade ties between the two continents. Privately the officials most concerned here have disclosed a desire to build up into a complete structure the materials now being fashioned in the bilateral tariff and trade discussions with the South American powers. The larger aim is to rival the agreements reached at Ottawa between Great Britain and her dominions.

Although Hull said today the state department had not yet been informed when Litvinoff would reach Washington, it appeared likely he would arrive just about the time Hull plans to sail.

The secretary today designated R. Walton Moore, recently appointed assistant secretary of state, and William C. Bullitt, special assistant to the secretary of state, to handle the preparatory work for the Roosevelt-Litvinoff conversations.

Three more minor codes, bringing the total to 62, were promulgated by the chief executive. They covered the plumbago crucible, steel tubular and fire box boiler industries, and the industrial supplies and distributors trade.

Answers Critics

Johnson reported that the buying campaign was progressing very well—"I don't want it to go too fast"—and that he expected much from it when the release of bank funds and other aid measures now getting under way became fully felt.

The farm opposition, he started by saying, was not responsible for pulling the industrial control program out of the small towns. Actually the step had been decided upon two weeks ago and it was coincidence that some farm spokesmen made demands which were in line with the plan. The reason for pulling out, he said, was that 90 percent of the enforcement difficulties came from the small towns where merchants could not pay the code wages. Retail trade heads, themselves, he argued, had wanted this step taken.

As for criticism of NRA from the farm lands, said Johnson, "when we got through analyzing it I had a clean bill of health."

The gist of the complaints, he said, was that public works money was being spent to slowly, that benefits from the farm program were small, both things outside his unit. He added that he would not modify the NRA pace:

Not a "Fizzle"

The complaint that NRA had moved too fast, and that the Blue Eagle program had proved a fizzle—voiced frequently of late—was especially challenged by the administration. It would not have been possible to move slowly, he argued. If one industry were put under a code months ahead of a competitive line, the first comer would have been injured irreparably. So it had to move forward in one wave under the Blue Eagle.

Likewise, he said, except for the Blue Eagle campaign and popular sentiment, NRA would have reached only business of definite interstate character and the program would have failed. Now intrastate trade has been swung in.

Sixteen states, he added, already have adopted statutes to parallel NRA's program so as to furnish enforcement for trade that is not interstate, "and a lot more states will follow."

As for specific re-employment achieved, he said the Blue Eagle agreements positively had made more than two million and less than four million new jobs—the exact figure will be known soon from the count being made by the census bureau.

The retail trade authority set up today will have not only to determine the markup, defined by the code as "allowance for actual wages of store labor" which is to be included in the selling price of merchandise, but its personnel will be members without vote of the retail trade council set up by the trades themselves to administer the code. Johnson, for the time being, will take personal charge of the work.

VANDENBERG TALKS

Big Rapids, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg declared in an address here tonight that the NRA must not be permitted to create "a high cost of living crisis."

The Republican United States senator from Michigan addressed a revival of the old time Republican rally, the Austin Blair banquet in honor of Michigan's Civil war time governor. He prefaced his remarks with the assertion that "I have no sympathy for Republicanism that assails the Democratic program for the mere sake of partisan strategy. The Democrats themselves did entirely too much of that under President Hoover."

"But neither have I any sympathy with Republicanism which thinks that national co-operation requires party paresis and party paralysis," he added.

Pleading for a close watch on the "gigantic and unprecedented experiments upon which we are so bravely launched," Vandenberg asserted that the NRA "must not be permitted to drive small business to the wall and deliver us to the monopolies; it must not put prices up faster than wages and faster than agriculture gets relief and stabilization; it must not precipitate a high cost of living crisis."

The senator pointed to what he termed the centralization of all authority in Washington bureaucrats and which he said "is threatening progress both in public works and the reopening of banks and the release of impounded deposits." He urged a prompt decentralization of this authority and said that "we must take pains not to be permanently saddled with this new and gigantic bureaucracy."

The new Roosevelt drive to reopen the banks, announced this month, Vandenberg said, is "emphatically different from the formula which closed most of the banks last March," and "proves that this administration responds to constructive criticism."

Vandenberg said of General Hugh S. Johnson, NRA chief, after first complimenting some of his work: "When he starts to ostracize newspaper writers for not writing just what he wants written he is entirely too much like Dr. Goebbels who put Hitler's yoke on a free press in Germany the same week and in much the same way."

Vandenberg concluded his address with the prediction that "if the Republican party does its full patriotic duty under Roosevelt as it did under Wilson, the elections in 1934 and 1936 will take care of themselves precisely as they did in 1918 and 1920. If such shall prove to be our deserts."

Actor Mantell, 21, Suicide At Mirror

He was dead a moment later when his mother having heard the shot rushed to the room. She is Genevieve Hamper, one time favorite in Shakespearean roles and widow of the eminent tragedian.

The "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune" were too much for the young man.

Mother and son had just returned from a rehearsal of "The Merchant of Venice." Mrs. Mantell was seeking a return to the stage in the role of Portia, billed for tomorrow night. Her son had brooded over failure to find success on the stage.

Pre-Primary Again Up To Legislature

Lansing, Oct. 24. (AP)—The legislature, in its coming special session, will be given another chance to make pre-primary political conventions compulsory. A sub-committee of the legislative council, meeting here today, agreed to draft a bill to that effect.

Governor Comstock favors the pre-primary system, which has been employed by the Democrats for several years. Howard C. Lawrence, chairman of the Republican state central committee and a member of the sub-committee, also declared he is "heartily in favor of the proposal."

The committee also probably will recommend that county political committees be elected rather than chosen by party candidates. Lawrence believed such a law would promote party discipline.

State Accounting All In Hands Of Auditor General

Lansing, Oct. 24. (AP)—The state administrative board voted today to wipe out the centralized accounting system established by former Governor Alex J. Groesbeck 12 years ago and place all accounting in the hands of the auditor general.

The central accounting division, which has been under the control of the state administrative board secretary, probably will be maintained in its present quarters but it will be merged with the auditor general's department.

The board's action today was taken on motion by John K. Stack Jr., auditor general. He declared wo accounting systems cause confusion.

"There is no way of getting a true picture of the state's financial condition under the dual accounting system," he said. "The central accounting division has one report and the auditor general another. If the state were called upon to give the exact status of any of its accounts it would take several hours to compile the facts."

German Agitator May Be Deported

New York, Oct. 24. (AP)—A protest meeting before Mayor John P. O'Brien over his cancellation of a German patriotic celebration today brought announcement from the house immigration committee's chairman that he would seek deportation of a member of the "Steel Helmets."

It also brought the mayor's promise of a public hearing tomorrow on his ban.

Rep. Samuel Dickstein, chairman of the house immigration committee, said he would urge immediately that the department of labor deport Heinz Spanknoebel, a member of the German "Steel Helmets" and a delegate to the protest meeting.

"It is agitators of the sort of this Spanknoebel," Dickstein said, "that we are going to get rid of—and about 40 others like him."

Deadline On 1932 Taxes November 1

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—The deadline for paying 1932 taxes in only a week away, officials of the auditor general's department warned today.

The last legislature decreed that last year's taxes may be paid without penalties or interest up to November 1. Failure to meet the obligation means that 10¾ per cent immediately will be addd to tax bills, representing a four per cent penalty for delinquency plus a charge of three-fourths of one per cent a month since last March, the time when taxes normally became due.

PAROLE PROMISED

Lansing, Oct. 24. (AP)—Parole Commissioner W. Alfred Debo has announced that Otto Sachse, of Pontiac, former school board president serving a five to ten year sentence in the Michigan state prison for obtaining $15,000 from the school board by fraud, will be released on parole Nov. 1. Debo said that Sachse's minimum term, less good time, expires on that date.

ROBBERIES LAID TO FELON GANG

Indianapolis, Oct. 24 (AP)—Indiana authorities, agitated over a series of depredations attributed to the gang of convicts that escaped Sept. 26 from the Michigan City state prison, today welcomed an offer of aid from the federal government in rounding up the felons.

Capt. Matt Leach of the state police this afternoon conferred with agents of the justice department's bureau of investigation who tendered their assistance at the direction of Edgar Hoover, director of the bureau.

The offer of federal aid came as an aftermath of two bank robberies, one at Greencastle yesterday in which approximately $75,000 in currency and bonds was stolen, and another today at South Bend where the robbers obtained $1,500 in cash and $1,000 worth of bonds.

Men Identified

Officers said the men who participated in the Greencastle holdup had been definitely identified as members of the Dillinger-Pierpont gang, headed by Harry Pierpont, one of the escaped convicts, and John Dillinger, alleged bank robber who was released from the Lima, O., jail recently by three men who shot and killed Sheriff Jess Sarber.

William Schaeffer, living near New Haven in the northeastern portion of the state, reported yesterday that he was held up and robbed near his home by two men, one of whom resembled Joseph Burns, a member of the band that broke prison.

Frank Grube, Chicago White Sox catcher, motoring across northern Indiana, reported being robbed last night near Laporte by two bandits traveling in a car bearing an Illinois license plates. The ball player said he was robbed of $100.

Crimes attributed by police to the Dillinger-Pierpont gang in addition to the slaying of the Lima, O., sheriff include the $12,000 holdup of a bank at St. Mary's, O., on Oct. 6; the holdup of a bank mesenger at Gas City, Ind., on Oct. 6; the looting of a police station at Auburn, Ind., Oct. 14 when several machine guns, rifles and pistols were taken; and a similar raid on the police station at Peru, Ind., Oct. 21.

Wreck In France Claims 30 Dead And 36 Injured

Evreux, France, Oct. 24 (AP)—Thirty persons are known to be dead and 36 injured in the wreck of the Paris-Cherbourg express train near Saint Elier, nine miles from here, today.

At least twelve of the dead were women. No American names appeared on the casualty list.

The express was rounding a sharp turn when the accident occurred. The engine and four coaches hurtled from the tracks, off a 33-foot viaduct, and into the Rouloir river.

The fireman and engineer died in their cab. The derailed coaches were crushed on the river bed. Many of the deaths were caused by drowning.

Ironwood Pioneer Dies

Ironwood—John W. Mullen, 84, retired merchant, died at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at his home at 514 North Lowell street. Death was caused by infirmities of old age. He had been ailing for two months.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning, with services at St. Ambrose church at 10:30 o'clock. The Rev. J. B. Moriarty will officiate. Burial will be in Riverside cemetery.

Mr. Mullen was one of the early settlers of Ironwood, coming here in 1886 and retiring from business in 1918. For many years he and his brother, Pat, were in business under the firm name of Mullen Brothers.

French girls, wishing to avoid being "old maids," pay prices ranging from $25 to $2500 to men in temporary marriages so that they may add Madame to their names. French courts are doing a rushing business granting divorces to these women.

the price of an ounce of gold they expected to influence the price of commodities and send them upward as well.

Putting the proposition another way, both gold and, for instance wheat, might be classed as commodities. If, theoretically, an ounce of gold were the equivalent in value of a certain quantity of wheat and the number of dollars that gold represented were increased, there would be, it was argued, an increase in the number of dollars that particular quantity of wheat would command in the markets.

While dissenting views have been expressed, Mr. Roosevelt and his advisors evidenced belief that the results would be what they were hoping for.

Expansion Urged

Thus far, there had been no announcement of plans for direct operations by the RFC in the world's gold markets. Such activities were announced by Mr. Roosevelt as a part of his monetary plan and presumably might be expected later. Buying gold abroad, it has been suggested, might be the tool with which he would keep the dollar depressed in terms of foreign currencies, for, it was contended in some quarters, there is still difference between foreign gold with dollars and selling dollars for foreign exchange.

While Washington continued to argue over just how inflationary the Roosevelt move might be expected to be, a group of inflationists, including members of congress, farm organization and industrial leaders adopted a resolution urging the president to expand the currency immediately.

The measure also urged government control of all monetary gold, payments to depositors in closed banks by January 1 and the widest practicable use of silver in currency expansion. It asserted that the "substitution of credits or debts for currency cannot restore prosperity."

Silver Wants Help

The group that approved the resolution included Senator Thomas (D. Okla.) a leader of the inflation bloc, who previously had expressed himself as well pleased with the Roosevelt monetary move. Others who participated were John F. Hylan, former mayor of New York, James H. Rand, Jr., chairman of the committee for the nation, E. E. Kennedy of Kankakee, Ill., of the National Farmers Union, and former Senator Robert L. Owen of Oklahoma.

With the gold program underway, some congressional exponents of silver monetization said they expected Mr. Roosevelt to direct his attention to some means of helping the producers of the white metal. Senator Pittman, (D. Nev.), said the gold plan would further depress the price of silver unless some action to avoid this result were taken.

Snowfall Heralds Arrival Of Winter In Upper Peninsula

Petoskey, Mich., Oct. 24. (AP)—Snow fell in many sections of Michigan today, the first of the season, and the weatherman looked into overcast skies to predict more of the white flakes as advance guard for the approach of winter.

At Petoskey a white blanket covered the city and surrounding sections, before the snowfall turned to a light rain. The temperature was 35 above zero. Cheboygan, Big Rapids, and other cities of the northern part of the lower peninsula, also reported snow.

In upper Michigan, where winter arrives at an earlier date—and stays longer — snowplows were used in some sections as a heavy wind drifted snow across highways. From Copper Harbor to Houghton snow was reported in varying quantities, along with chilly weather.

Bones Of Woman Sought In Ruins Of Jackson Fire

Jackson, Mich., Oct. 24 (AP)—Sheriff's deputies tonight were examining charred bones found in the ruins of the basement of 76-year-old Joe Tasker's home northwest of here, trying to determine whether they were part of the remains of Evelyn Morris, 30, believed to have been in the home when it burned Monday.

Tasker is in a hospital here suffering from critical burns, in too serious a condition to be interviewed. The fact that he has a head wound, however, has led to an official investigation to determine the circumstances of the fire.

The officials said that Miss Morris, a housekeeper for James Gibbons of Jackson, was taken to Tasker's home Sunday night by a friend. The fire occurred early Monday, and after Tasker was brought to the hospital, semi conscious, he inquired anxiously if the woman "got out all right." A search of the debris was begun at once.

Corn Processing Tax Fixed At 28 Cents Per Bushel

Washington, Oct. 24 (AP)—A processing tax of 28 cents per bushel on corn was fixed today by Secretary Wallace with the approval of President Roosevelt.

The fifth to be levied on one of the seven basic commodities defined by the farm adjustment act, it becomes effective November 5, the same date that the hog processing levy applies.

The tax on corn and hogs is depended upon to finance the production control program for corn and hogs at a maximum cost of approximately $350,000,000.

In making the announcement, Wallace said the rate of 28 cents per bushel of 56 pounds was the difference between the average farm price for field corn and "the fair exchange value of field corn."

The fair exchange value is the amount which corn must bring to have the purchasing power it had in the period from 1909 to 1914.

Corn products which will be taxed as "floor stocks" include corn meal, corn flakes (breakfast food type), peal or table hominy, cornstarch, dextrines, glucose syrups and sugars, corn oil, corn glutten feed and corn glutten meal.

Oakland County Delegation Asks For School Help

Lansing, Oct. 24 (AP)—The state again was asked to guaranteed school aid when a delegation of more than 100 persons from Oakland county appeared before the administrative board today. Petitions urging action in this direction in the forthcoming special session of the legislature were left with Frank D. Fitzgerald, secretary of state, who presided over the board in the absence of Governor Comstock.

John K. Stack, auditor general, told the delegation he was certain the sales tax will produce $45,000,000 a year. This would leave $14,000,000 for the schools, he said. School leaders have insisted $15,000,000 is the least they can get along with. So far the sales tax has netted less than $3,000,000 a month.

Thieves Start Fire

Iron Mountain — Two cars, owned respectively by William D. Cochran and Arthur Koehler, of this city, were badly damaged by fire Saturday evening when gasoline in the tank of one car was ignited by a match used by thieves who were attempting to steal some of the fuel.

About 6,248,800 George Washington quarters were issued by the United States government in 1932.

Reason For Stack Economy Revealed

The reason Auditor General Stack pays out state money with such reluctance has become known, according to Guy H. Jenkins, Lansing correspondent of the Grand Rapids Press.

Jenkins tells the following story about the aditor general:

In his younger days John was working in a western state. The outgo was more rapid than the income. He got behind in his room and board bill. Finally he wrote his father seeking a loan to get himself out of his financial difficulties.

The father replied with good advice but the requested check of $50 was not forthcoming. In substance, the elder Stack wrote the present auditor general:

"Do your own laundry. Move into a cheaper room and then live within your income.

"Affectionately,

Mayer To Address Scout Troop '60'

Howard Mayer, formerly deputy commissioner of the Boy Scout Council of Detroit, will deliver a talk on Scouting at the meeting of Troop 60 at the St. Patrick's parish hall Thursday evening.

The Scouts will also hold a Beano party at the meeting.

The council with which Mr. Mayer was affiliated in Detroit had a membership of 1600 Boy Scouts. He is now associated with the Fair Store here.

All members of the troop and other boys who wish to join are urged to attend.

COMMISSION MUST ACT

ANNOUNCEMENT was made at Lansing on Monday of federal approval being accorded to $2,847,000 in road construction projects in Michigan, of which $409,000 will be allocated to the upper peninsula. Included in the list of projects finally approved is an appropriation of $25,000 for completing 1.7 miles of concrete on M-35, within the city of Escanaba, all of the right of way for which was purchased last year and with the grade in readiness for concrete since early in the past summer. In addition to the Escanaba project there is included in list approved a total of $204,000 for a bridge and widening and surfacing 25 miles on M-28 in Chippewa county; $150,000 for two bridges and grading and surfacing 12 miles in Houghton county and $30,000 for grading three miles in Keweenaw county. Announcement was made a few days ago of approval being given to the construction of slightly less than a mile of pavement at Powers, in Menominee county, next year, to provide a new connection between U. S. 41 and U. S. 2, through an underpass the North Western railway will construct during the present winter.

In the announcement made at Lansing on Monday the fact is stressed that although federal approval has been given to $2,847,000 worth of projects in Michigan, contracts cannot be advertised or awarded until plans and specifications for these projects have also been approved by federal authorities.

This statement is in direct contradiction to a statement recently issued by officials of the federal bureau of public roads, who for several weeks have been attempting to correct the mistaken impression that road work financed by federal funds must be done solely by contract. On Oct. 2, Secretary Ickes issued a statement that goes even further in the matter, when he stated that all regulations, which might slow the highway construction program, are abandoned temporarily. Effective at once it was announced that states may begin work without first presenting plans, without awarding contracts and without advertising for bids. In other words the machinery has been definitely set up for the federal government to approve all expenditures on winter highway work, on which welfare labor is employed.

To meet the situation last winter the Michigan state highway department authorized over $2,000,000 in contracts and secured more than $1,000,000 in RFC funds for use in the employment of welfare labor on highways of upper peninsula. In addition to this amount spent by the state highway department, through county highway commissions in the upper peninsula last winter, many counties spent large sums derived from local bond issues, weight tax funds and property taxes, in order to as adequately as possible meet the unemployment situation in this section of the state.

In spite of the announcement from Lansing that voluminous red tape must be complied with before winter employment can be provided for jobless men in Michigan, the federal government has set up the machinery by which funds can be secured for immediate work, with greater dispatch than was possible even last winter.

Highway commissions of the upper peninsula, where it is now certain that drastic unemployment conditions are to extend through the present winter, should immediately take action under the federal machinery now set up, in order that families of jobless men in this section may not be forced to suffer undue privation during the coming winter. Such conditions have been prevented in the past—they cannot be permitted to develop this winter.

GRIM REMINDERS

THE dark and horrible depths which human nature can contain never are revealed more frightfully than in stories of lynchings.

The latest—the affair in Maryland, where a mob broke into a jail, dragged out an accused negro, and hanged him—is a case in point.

After the negro had been hanged and the body burned, news dispatches relate, "the rope was cut into small pieces and distributed as souvenirs among members of the mob."

Just what kind of person is it, do you suppose, who would enjoy having a souvenir of that kind?

For a glimpse of human nature at its lowest, that paragraph about the distribution of those bits of rope is about as horrifying as anything the newspapers have printed in a long time.

MARK UP ONE FOR NRA

A STATEMENT issued by George A. Sloan, president of the Cotton Textile Institute, says that employment in the textile industry has returned to pre-depression levels under the textile code, with wages increased and working hours reduced. The total weekly payroll has advanced nearly 100 per cent over the payroll averages for March.

It hasn't done as much as some of us hoped it would do, to be sure. It hasn't abolished unemployment or ended industrial strife or restored prosperity.

But it does seem to have accomplished some very important results, just the same. This revival of the textile industry's employment and payroll figures is an achievement worth all the NRA has cost.

FACT OR FANCY?

ARE there monsters in the deep such as lived there during those countless centuries before human history began? There have been occasional stories of sea monsters that might have been passed from lip to lip to keep daring boys from swimming out too far, but F. W. Kemp, a member of the Archives Staff of the Province of British Columbia, told a story of a sea monster that he and his family had kept quiet because of fear of public ridicule. And he told the story only after Major Langley, clerk of the British Columbia legislature told only two weeks ago of having seen a beast that answered the same description. Here is Mr. Kemp's report.

"I was picnicking with my wife and 16-year-old son on Chatham Island. I observed a heavy wash coming down the Gulf of Georgia) from the north. I though at first it was just a tide rip. Then I was amazed to see huge coils come out of the top of the water like a snake. . . . The total length of these coils must have been at least 50 ft. and they were five feet thick, I should think. They came twisting out of the water so high that I could see light under them.

"They seemed a bluish green color, but shone in the sun like aluminum. The rear part of the creature was serrated with protuberances like dorsal fins. The extreme end thrashed about in the water like a propeller.

"My wife and son both saw it and stood dumb with amazement; then to our horror the thing rushed up to a high rock and thrust its great head and neck a full ten feet out of the water and waved it about as if it were getting its bearings. It was some 500 yards away and I could not see the exact shape of its head, but it was much thicker than the body. Then it sank down into the water again and sped away, making a great wash of white foam."

Is it a matter for the usual incredulous smile? Science has pretty well satisfied everyone that monsters of the nature described must have once roamed this world in great numbers. The fossil remains that have defied the ravages of time indicate that pretty clearly. Is it any more daring to believe that they still exist than that they have become obliterated?

Forgotten Sweetheart

(By NEA Service) BY MARY RAYMOND

CHAPTER XXII

It was a little before 10 o'clock that evening when Lois Clayton, who shared the tiny apartment with Pat, heard the latch key in the hall door. Pat entered, her eyes shining queerly, her cheeks flushed.

"Why, Pat!" Lois' voice was amazed. "What are you doing back so early?"

"That's what I said."

NOT LICKED, YET

IT IS good to learn that the federal government has not yet thrown in its hand in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Attorney General Cummings says that "the case will never die until we get our men"; and the ordinary citizen will undoubtedly applaud this statement, and hope that the federal investigators will eventually be able to solve that tragic puzzle.

There have been, probably, more "important" crimes in America than the kidnaping of Baby Lindbergh. There has never been any that aroused such a wave of public indignation, or that made people realize so fully the immunity with which some types of criminals can operate. One of the best bits of news we could get would be an announcement that the men who committed this crime had at last been brought to justice.

"I thought of that, too."

"Good heavens, Pat," Lois said soberly, "couldn't you have stayed just an hour or so longer?"

"No," Pat said. "I couldn't. Not for a hundred jobs. He got fresh." Her face flamed suddenly. "Oh, Lois, he tried to kiss me in the taxi! He called me 'girlie,' and thought I was stalling when I pulled away."

"The old sap!" said Lois. "But you don't find a new job every day."

Pat was silent. There was something she couldn't tell Lois. About the taxi stopping in front of a speakeasy. She couldn't say "Once I tried being a good sport, Lois," because then she would have to explain about Jerry and the tragic climax to that night. Tonight had been an opportunity to justify herself, though she had not analyzed it in that way. "I couldn't have looked myself in the face if I'd gone to a place like that to save my job," Pat thought.

"What in the world did you do?" Lois queried.

Pat laughed. "Well, when he stepped out of the taxi to the sidewalk I made up my mind I wouldn't get out. I slammed the door and said to the driver 'Drive on please,' I think he was so astonished that he started the car without thinking. Thank goodness, I had enough to pay the taxi bill! I wish you could have seen Mr. Brentford standing there with his mouth open, like a surprised old fish!"

"Gosh, Pat. I'm afraid it will cost you your job."

"Anyway," Pat said, "I'm glad I did it." She was slipping out of gown, her blond curls loosened, she sat on the edge of the bed. "What business had the manager to fix a date up for me, anyway?"

"Why didn't you beg off then? You might have said your fiance was in town. Or that you were sick."

"Tried it," Pat said grimly, "but it didn't work. I had a feeling something was up when I walked into that office and saw this old fellow waiting in the next room. So I said to Mr. Livingston 'I hope everything was all right this afternoon. If anything was wrong, you'll have to excuse me because I've been feeling ill all day.'"

"I call that smooth," Lois said.

"Well, he just smiled, Lois, and said, "I didn't notice anything wrong. I thought you looked swell in the white evening dress. Mr. Brentford, one of our best customers, thought so too.' Then he went on about how he was sure I was going to prove myself a valuable employe and before long he'd have to speak to the cashier about a little raise. And some more hokum about expecting co-operation from all the employes and how we were all like one big family. Then he said this Brentford wanted to run out for dinner and a show and he knew he could count on me to entertain such a good friend of the firm for a few hours."

"Smooth, too," said Lois. "And then he dated you up with the old gink. Maybe this Brentford's a good scout, after all, and won't tell. Maybe he's so vain he'll be ashamed to tell your boss he didn't make a hit with you."

"Maybe." But Pat's tone was doubtful.

Nothing unusual happened during the next morning. Pat became more hopeful as the customary routine propressed. Lunch hour came and still there were no signs of a storm brewing. But a little later Jane drew Pat to one side. The look on her face warned that trouble was on the way.

* * *

"What happened last night?" Jane asked.

"I couldn't go through with it." There wasn't any reason for you to get the jitters. Lots of girls have let Tony Brentford pay for a swell dinner for them. When he found they weren't ambitious, that was all there was to it. All Mr. Livingston expects is tact, so there'll be no hard feelings."

"Break the bad news," Pat said abruptly.

"Well, you cost the firm a nice order. And nice orders aren't picked up very often these days. Brentford cancelled everything. You haven't a chance to stay. Anything in sight?"

Pat shook her head. "Only Mulligan stews for awhile."

"I'm sorry, Pat." Admiration and pity were mingled in Jane's eyes. "Mr. Livingston told me to ask you to stop by the cashier's desk this afternoon."

"Thanks, Jane."

Well, that was that. At five Pat got her envelope. Inside were several crisp bills, her salary to date, and a brief memorandum attached: "After today your services will not be needed."

Pat read it with a wry little smile about her mouth, reached up to pull her small hat to a more nonchalant angle, and bravely walked out of the building.

She would have to find a cheaper place to live at once. Lois could get someone else to come in to the apartment. And Pat would have to find a job.

She located the cheaper place without trouble—a fairly large room with a cubby-hole and gas plate where she could prepare her meals. The two windows would be a comfort and compensate for many other defects and deficiences, Pat decided. There were faded curtains at the windows, a faded rug and mismatched furniture, but the place was clean and it was at the rear of the building. That was desirable because it made it quieter.

* * *

"Just a little," Joan confessed.

LYRICS OF LIFE

By Douglas Malloch

TAKE TIME

The flow'rs that quickly bloom most quickly fade,
While patriarchal trees still spread their shade.
Success too swiftly won we swiftly lose.
For they who build for time some time must use.

And so it is with all the things of life:
Maid becomes bride, but not the bride a wife
Until the years have tested and have proved
She was by love and not by fancy moved.

And so with friendship: call me not a friend
Until I succor, counsel and defend.
The dandelions blossom for a day,
Acquaintances that bloom and blow away.

And even faith, whatever faith appears,
Alone becomes the fixed and firm belief.

The flow'r must bear the fruit, and love must last.
And friendship serve, and faith survive the blast,
And thus success a man must mould and make.
For they who build for time some time must take.

Manistique, Mich., Oct. 24: (Special) — Proving that J. Frank Burke, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League in Michigan, is a discredited lobbyist who has been expelled from the floor of the New Jersey state assembly for making unfair charges against members of that body and that he has been publicly denounced by Joseph Tumulty, secretary to President Woodrow Wilson, Senator James C. Wood of the Thirtieth Michigan district, tonight delivered a verbal lacing to the former New Jerseyite that he will not soon forget, when the two met in a debate here.

Miss Lucile Clement entertained a number of friends at a theater party complimentary to Miss Charron, of Crystal Falls and Miss Florence Mulligan, of Columbis, Wis., who are visiting with friends in the city.

Mr and Mrs. John McCarthy who were married here on Monday have arrived at Marquette after a short wedding trip and will make their home in the Lake Superior City.

What will Michigan do about the latest slaps adminstered to it by the "Big Nine" colleges? Will the Wolverines cease all negotiations to return to the conference this year, because western leaders are treating their latest advances as a joke, or will they suggest new terms of reconciliation and come to terms with their former neighbors at next month's meeting of the conference faculty representatives?

Mrs. Conrad Kieller yesterday afternoon entertained a number of friends at her home, on South Norris street, at a tea from 2 to 5 o'clock, in honor of Miss Ethel Valentine who is to be married next month to Everett Stewart.

Veils In Favor For Winter Wear

Paris (AP)---Veils are back for fall and winter wear. A number of small felt and velvet toques have brief veils just long enough to cover the eyes, while others are covered with circular veils which fall almost to the chin. Several designers have varied the mode, however, by declaring "No veils at all."

Today's Recipe

Scalloped Cheese

4 slices buttered bread
1 cup flaked American cheese
2 beaten eggs
2 cups milk
1 tsp. salt
Paprika

In buttered baking dish place slices of bread and sprinkle with cheese and a dash of paprika. Beat eggs slightly, add milk and salt and pour over all. Sprinkle with paprika. Bake 15 minutes in a moderately hot oven 400 F. Six portions.

Muffins are best when served as soon as possible after baking. If you have any left over however, split them with a sharp knife and toast on both sides.

Place of Pictures in Interior Decoration

Mrs. Andrew is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Smith.

Hollywood Gossip

BY HUBBARD KEAVY

La Rocque Point, Lake Arrowhead, Cal.—Going "on location" with a movie-making company is monotonous, boresome business. Six young ladies who are making their first camera appearances will testify to that. They anticipated much, much more excitement.

The English version of the German film, "Eight Girls in a Boat," is being filmed on Rod La Rocque's property, a secluded, attractive mountain retreat where, it would seem, anyone would be content for as long as he could stay here.

But making movies is different. Members of the cast must at all times be within call of the assistant director, who in this instance is Marshall Duffield, ex-footballer and Dorothy Lee's new husband. The girls, 10 in addition to those in the title roles, yawn, stretch; walk, sit, and yawn some more.

TIME-KILLERS

One estimated that out of 10 hours spent each day on the set, actual work amounted to only 20 minutes. The rest of the time they killed time. Some read, a few sewed, hardier ones swam in the chilly, mile-high lake.

And, after three weeks of mostly waiting, six of the title role girls decided they didn't care whether they had a movie career or not.

All the girls said they'd stay in Hollywood gladly enough if their contracts were renewed, and one—Adele Pearce of San Francisco—declared she was determined to be in the movies, contract or not, monotony or excitement.

CHAPERONES, TOO

If you were to visit this location, you'd perhaps wonder why so many people were necessary. The company numbered 130 and it included cameramen, electricians, boatmen, a life guard, a forest ranger, property men, assorted assistants and 12 chaperones.

Yes, chaperones were required. Each had five or six girls to look after. Their principal tasks were to awaken the girls each morning and to see that they were in bed promptly at 10 each night.

No wonder several movie newcomers aren't overly enthusiastic.

Ostrich Muffs New Smart Note

Paris (AP)—Ostrich muffs add a frivolous touch to winter evening costumes. They are generally made of uncurled ostrich in a round melon design. One black crepe evening frock has epaulettes of uncurled black ostrich and is accompanied by a little muff of the same sable feathers.

Smart Costume Taupe And Green

Paris (AP)—Taupe and jade-green are a striking combination favored by one smart Parisian. With a taupe wool costume she wears a taupe beret and shoes of the same color. The only splash of brilliant color in the ensemble is a scarf of jade green.

The most universal stimulant ever found, a growth promoting acid, was recently under discussion by biologists. The name is patothenic acid and it is found in humans, worms, plant molds, oysters, bacteria, algae and milk.

Alberto Salvi Started Music Career As A Boy

It is scarcely necessary to introduce Alberto Salvi, known as the world's greatest harpist, who will play in the William W. Oliver Memorial auditorium on Friday night. Many have heard him before, and no doubt many will be hearing him for the first time, both however, will be interested in the story of the artist's life and the gradual progress of circumstances which have helped to shape such a genius as his.

More than 30 years ago, Alberto Salvi was born in Venice, the flower of Italian cities. All the magic, the charm, beauty and passion of that poetic city were his. His father was a celebrated Italian harp maker and the child grow up in the great shadowy reaches of the older Salvi's shop. It seemed like a glimpse of heaven with great goldon instruments full of mysterious strings towering high above the little boy. To sweep a hand over their wall of strings was to create a murmuring gentle wind that was like the sound of a breeze in the woods at night. They were beautiful mysterious things. these harps and the child never tired of twanging them for the rich notes that would be his reward. When other children were out bouncing balls or swimming or doing any of the things young boys love to do, Alberto hid away in his father's shop and coaxed lovely sounds from the huge instruments.

His father was an understanding man with the heart of a true artist and he perceived in his young son an affection for the harp, one that could be managed by the young lad and to which he took as the proverbial duck does to water. When only 7 years old, he was mastering the early technique of the instrument and by the time he had reached his fourteenth birthday, he was studying seriously, devoting as many as six and seven hours a day to practice. He did not look upon it as work but as a blessed privilege, which, no doubt, accounts for his magnificent skill.

The harp is an instrument that demands the greatest dexterity in order to produce any of the most ordinary effects and that is probably why there have been so few great harpists. Many men are unwilling to give such unceasing devotion to their work. The size of the instrument, the fact that it must be played with the finger-ends and that there are seven pedals which must be used as skilfully as the fingers (for they form the half-tones) explains as a measure a few of the difficulties. All these problems Salvi mastered in his early youth so that by the time he entered into his teens, he had all the equipment of a virtuoso.

At the age of thirteen Salvi was a tall, slender slip of a boy. "The spirit of the harp" he was then called by his town folk and it was then that he won his first distinction.—The Royal Scholarship of the Naples Royal Conservatory, in a nationwide competition. This honor did more than bring esteem to Salvi—it insured his musical education, for all his living expenses and tuition were provided free for a period of eight years. For a family of his limited means, as many of the old Venetian gentry are, this scholarship was like a godsend.

In the fifth year of Salvi's course at the Conservatory the director of that institution wrote to the ministry of arts in Rome about him—"He has acquired all the knowledge, both of the practice and theory of music, that falls within the eight year curriculum," he said. The good man did not want Salvi to waste his time. He realized he was handling unusual talent. Rome sent back special examinations for Salvi, and the result was that he was awarded the eight year diploma at the end of five years.

Though Salvi's public career in Italy was unquestionably successful, there were not enough cities in his native country where people could afford to hear music. Especially during the past years Europe has scarcely called a happy hunting ground for musicians, so Mr. Salvi decided to try his luck in America. He had a few relatives in Chicago and to them he went, accepting the first position that offered itself, that of a harpist in a theatre orchestra. The management soon discovered that they had extraordinary talent in their midst and requested a solo every night.

One evening after Mr. Salvi has been playing there for a month, he was approached by a gentleman whom he had never seen before, the representative of a New York concert management, who realized he had been listening to a genius play and was determined to engage him for a concert tour. Since then Alberto Salvi's career has been a triumphal journey from one state into another

After his first season of concerting, Salvi realized a desire he had cherished ever since his arrival in America. He sent for a slender- dark-eyed woman who had been his sweetheart in Venice since his college days. They were quietly married, and now they have a little home in Chicago to which the harpist returns whenever he has a few days to spare. When one asks him does he ever intend to leave this country and make his home in Italy, he answers NO very emphatically. "America," he says, "is the land of youth and hope and ambition. Europe is slow and old, a little too slow and old for those who want to give much to many people."

CITY CONSIDERS ELECTRIC PLANT

Preliminary Survey on Project Authorized by Commission

Possible future construction of a municipally owned electric generating plant in Gladstone was foreseen when the city commission in session Monday evening authorized Manager F. R. Buechner to make a preliminary investigation with reference to the building of such a plant.

The survey is to be purely general in scope and will take into consideration types of generating units, the size necessary to adequately serve this city and approximate cost estimates.

Commissioners C. E. Hawkins and J. A. Bredahl were named as a special committee to confer with the city manager regarding procedure to be used. The report of the city manager was requested at an early future meeting of the commission.

The resolution authorizing the preliminary survey came after it was reported to the commission that no answer had been received from the power company, which now furnishes the city with electric current, relative to a request for a decrease in rates which was made last spring.

At that time local officials asked that power rates be cut to a point coinciding with the schedule in effect previous to the last rate increase.

Rehearsals For Legion Show Are Now Under Way

Rehearsals for the amateur stage production, "The World's All Right," to be presented here on Nov. 1-2 under the auspices of August Mattson Post of the American Legion, are going forward under the direction of Miss Kay Duffy, director and announcement of the complete cast will be made within a day or two.

The opening number of the show will be the Children's Story Hour with Miss Maurie McDonald acting as the Tell-Me-A-Story Lady. She is assisted by one hundred young local children between the ages of five and nine. There is also a special part in this number where two groups of children, six little men and six little women are seen in the Tin Pan Parade. Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hough preside as father and mother of Nursery Land during the scene.

The first big chorus of the show is supported by the Girls' Glee club of the high school. This number opens with the hit, "Smile, Smile, the World's All Right," and two dancing choruses appear in special costumes doing their routine to "Whistle and Blow Your Blues Away" and "You're In Style when You're Wearing a Smile."

A studio quartet composed of John Spear, R. N. Haskins, Ray Weingartner and Noble Swenson give a special arrangement of quartet songs and ditties and the number is highly pleasing.

The lunch and sale of work given in the Fairport hall Saturday night by members of the Goodwill society of the Fayette Catholic church was largely attended and a substantial sum was realized as a result of the gathering.

Fairport fishermen have been having some hard knocks during the past week on account of continued storms. Not only have nets been badly damaged but the fish nets have allowed a large quantity of fish to escape. One fisherman reports that his large net was so badly damaged that not a single fish remained in it when he went to lift, reminding that "It's an ill wind that blows nobody any good."

Seniors of Garden high school gave a card party in the Kate's Bay school Friday night. Proceeds of the gathering were for the defraying of expenses of graduation next June.

A bear visited the orchard on the Ed Laux farm at Fayette Thursday night. The only damage done was the breaking of some of the trees.

EXPECT GRANT FOR ROAD WORK

Application for $71,000 Completed by State Advisory Board

Application for a grant of $71,725.00, made recently by the Schoolcraft County Road Commission, was completed Monday by the state advisory board of the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Work and has been sent to Washington for final approval, according to a communication received yesterday morning by John E. McCarthy, county engineer, from M. E. Cooley, member of the state advisory board.

Approval of the grant is expected to be made in about a week, after which work will be started immediately on the gravel and crushed stone resurfacing of the several township roads in the county. The first project to be started will be the resurfacing of the Calspar road, a stretch of highway about four and one-half miles in length extending to one of the quarries of the Inland Lime & Stone company. Another road on which the money is to be used is the River Road, 13 and one-half miles in length. The work of grading and the construction of necessary drainage structures has already been completed on the above mentioned highways.

The sum of $54,000 of the total grant, a portion of the Horton money allotment to Schoolcraft county for the years 1933 and 1934, is to be handled by the state in the securing of the $17,725 outright federal grant which makes up the balance of the total. The federal grant represents thirty per cent of the cost of labor and materials to be used, as provided under the public works section of the National Industrial Recovery Act.

Only men who have not received employment will be used in the resurfacing work, Mr. McCarthy stated. As provided under the arrangements for the grant, unskilled labor will be paid at a rate of fifty cents per hour and skilled labor at the rate of $1.20 per hour. A possibility of a revision in the wage scale exists, Mr. McCarthy declared, which if made, will also necessitate a revision in the grant.

In using $54,000 of the Horton money for the years 1933 and 1934, the county will still have a balance from this source in which to pay off notes and do a certain amount of relief work, declared Mr. McCarthy. The estimated amount of Horton money, proceeds from the weight tax, averages slightly more than $45,000 per year, he stated.

If approval of the grant is made at Washington, the road commission will be distributing in the county $17,725.57 more than otherwise would have been available.

Contingent Of 44 C. C. C's Arrive At Camp Manistique

A contingent of 44 new Civilian Conservation Corps members for Camp Manistique arrived here on Saturday afternoon to provide reinforcements caused by the departure of a similar number whose six-month enlistment period had expired and who did not wish to reenlist either because of finding work or because their families were now capable of supporting them.

Personnel of the new contingent which arrived here via the Minneapolis, St. Paul, and Sault Ste. Marie railroad, are all from the lower peninsula, hailing from Jackson, Detroit, Bay City, Lansing, and several other cities. Prior to arriving here they were given a training period at Camp Custer.

Total strength of Camp Manistique now numbers 188, Captain Farlow Burt stated yesterday morning. Full camp strength is listed at 212 and a few more may be added before the winter program gets into full swing.

Health Talks Heard By Local Rotarians

Interesting talks on local health work were given before the Manistique Rotary club Monday noon by Dr. Marion Stevenson, of the Children's Fund of Michigan, who has been in charge of the eye clinic which has been in operation in this city for the past two months, and by Miss Emma Johnson, county nurse, who spoke of the activities in crippled children's work in the county.

Miss Johnson, in citing the accomplishments of the past year told of the joint crippled children's clinic in which 32 cases from Schoolcraft county were examined, stating that all of the cases with the exception of two, have had corrective work done.

The speaker reported a total of 26 cases sent to the Northern Michigan Children's Clinic at Marquette; three crippled children to the University hospital at Ann Arbor; and one crippled child to Grace hospital, Detroit.

Dr. Stevenson, who concludes her work in the local clinic Friday noon, told of the methods of treatment and examination. She stated that cross eyes could be corrected in most instances by the use of glasses if treatment were given early enough in life. In England, she stated, corrective measures are used on six-months old children and recently in this country children have been treated at the age of two. To correct this defect by the use of glasses, without operation, steps must usually be taken prior to twelve years of age, said Dr. Stephenson.

SEWAGE PLANT IS SOUGHT HERE

Initial steps toward the procurement of a modern sewage disposal plant for the city of Manistique under the public works section of the National Industrial Recovery Act which provides for an outright grant of thirty per cent of the labor and materials to be used on an approved construction project, were taken Monday evening by the city council when a resolution was drawn empowering Mayor Harry Eriksen to obtain all preliminary information and to make application to the Federal Emergency administration of Public Works, state advisory board, for the installation of such a plant.

The council voiced strong approval of the construction of a sewage disposal plant inasmuch as there is said to be a law on the statute books which will compel cities to discontinue the flowage of sewage into Lake Michigan to become effective as soon as there is an upward trend in economic conditions. In view of the fact that a thirty per cent federal grant is now available on a project of this nature, council members expressed opinion that steps should be taken immediately before the time expiration.

City sewage is now disposed of into Lake Michigan through three main sewers, one for the Westside which empties into the Manistique river at the slips, and two for the Eastside which flow into the river at the foot of Cedar street and directly into Lake Michigan off of Range street. A smaller sewer takes care of Garden avenue, also emptying into Lake Michigan.

Mayor Harry Eriksen yesterday morning immediately got in touch with manufacturers of sewage disposal plants at Chicago and Ann Arbor. It is expected that two or three members of the council will make a trip to Ann Arbor in the future to inquire into types of plants and costs. Estimates of the cost of a sewage disposal plant for a city of this size do not exceed $50,000.

"Resolved, that the mayor be authorized to investigate and obtain the necessary data to enable the city to make application to the Federal Emergency Administration of Public Works of the state advisory board for the installation of a sewage disposal plant for the city of Manistique and incurr such necessary expenses as may be necessary for a survey, and to determine the type of plant best suitable for the city."

Cancel Taxes

It was also resolved by the council that the city cancel property taxes now assessed and unpaid against the Newberry Lumber & Chemical Co., for the years 1930, '31, and '32 upon that part of government lots in section 12, town 41 north, range 16 west. The description is that piece of property on Maple avenue north of Elm street upon which the company houses have been torn down and which was recently deeded to Schoolcraft county.

Monday evening's meeting was adjourned until this evening when the council will consider a reply by the Manistique Pulp & Paper company in regard to the city's request for a reduction in light and power rates. About a month and a half ago, the council granted the Manistique Power & Light company a thirty day extension in which to either accept or reject the reduction in rates submitted by the council.

Other business consummated consisted of the granting of a dance hall permit to E. R. Forrest, giving the latter permission to conduct dances upon payment of the fee as stated in the ordinance.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Active buying in the last hour carried stocks up 1 to 6 points or more today after earlier hesitancy.

With the dollar sharply depressed against foreign currencies and gold mining issues on the stock exchange consistently strong as traders expectantly awaited the price at which the government would make its first gold purchase under the new plan, sentiment again seemed to have veered toward inflationary possibilities in the forthcoming dollar control. Wheat was down 1 to 1½ cents net after an erratic session, but stocks put on their best display after grain markets had colsed. Cotton was up a dollar or more and the minor staples strengthened.

Profit-taking held shares in check during the morning and early afternoon. Another factor in the sluggishness of the early market was undoubtedly the uncertainty which financial circles felt as to just how the prospective monetary program should be interpreted.

On the side of business and trade, news was rather negative. The American Iron & Steel Institute, in the first of what is to be a weekly announcement on operating ratios, placed the national steel production average, as of Monday, at 31.8 percent of capacity, which was below the estimate of trade reviews. "American Metal Market," however, said that although demand for steel was still declining, "the decrease is slow and total tonnage really makes a fair showing considering the dullness in business generally and the almost complete absence of demand for capital goods."

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, Oct. 24—Wheat today excelled all its recent high price records, but tumbled at the last owing largely to assertions that government relief purchases had been ended.
Upturns in wheat values carried the market to almost 20 cents above the season's low point, and were associated with expectation that the new departure in United States gold control tomorrow would prove a stimulus. Bullish wheat crop estimates from Canada and prospects of stoppage of rye imports into the United States were also helpful temporarily in lifting values.
Wheat closed unsettled, 1 to 1 5-8 cents under yesterday's finish, corn 1-8 to 3-4 down, oats 3-8 off to ¼ up, and provisions varying from 2 cents decline to a rise of 37 cents.
Corn and oats chiefly reflected the behavior of wheat.

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Slumping international dollar rates brought a revival of inflationary psychology in the bond market today and prices of prime investment and secondary issues generally moved in opposite directions.
Trading volume expanded under the conflicting trends and sales totaled $12,016,000, par value, against $9,039,000 yesterday. The average for 60 domestic corporate loans advanced one-tenth of a point.
The sharp rally of European curroncies gave some foreign bonds another substantial lift. French government 7s and 7½s were exceptionally active with gains of around 4 points each and most of the French municipals were up 2 to 3. Swiss government 5⅛s jumped 4¼. Norwegian issues gained 1 to 5, and British, German, Polish and Japanese maturities rallied 1 to 3 or more.
The inflationary wave had a depressing effect on United States government securities, with losses in this group ranging from 1-32nd to 8-32nds of a point.

Metal and Repeal Shares In Demand; Curb Closes Firm

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, Oct. 24 (AP)—Curb stocks closed firmly today under heavy late demand for metals and repeal shares. Utilities and oils responded less enthusiastically. Volume increased sharply in the last hour following the market's earlier indecision.
Metals forged higher most of the day despite periodic easiness in other groups, particularly alcohols which lagged in the late forenoon. The "wets," however, cast off their lethargy in the final hour and bounded sharply upward, Hiram Walker soaring nearly 7 points.
Issues closing 2 to around 3 points higher included Canadian Industrial Alcohol "A", Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, Lake Shore Mines, New Jersey Zinc, Newmont and Sherwin Williams. American Gas & Electric, Hollinger Gold, Hudson Bay, Mining, National Distillers new and Tubize Cratillon added about a point or more.
Transfers approximated 352,000 shares compared with 281,000 for the previous session.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE
New York, Oct. 24—Foreign exchange buoyant. Great Britain in dollars, others in cents. Great Britain demand, 4.77 3-4, cables, 4.77 3-4; 60-day bills, 4.74½; France demand, 5.85, cables, 5.85; Italy demand, 7.89, cables, 7.89.

Forgotten Sweetheart

They were Barney and Joan now. In the week acquaintance had ripened into an almost unbelieveable friendship. Barney had taken the initiative, saying simply, "I'm going to call you Joan. It would be foolish to call you Miss Waring when I feel I know you better than any girl I've ever met." And then with the same directness, he had said, "You'll call me Barney, too, won't you?" Joan, to her amazement, had found it surprisingly easy.
Barney was simply irresistible. He was genuine, Joan realized. And fineness and honesty were coupled with a strong, personal magnetism. She was more attracted to him than she had been to any man in a long while.
There had been several dinners at a charming English type inn, tucked away along the countryside, not far from Greenwich. And two long drives through green hills with sudden glimpses of blue lakes.
They had been friends from the beginning and Joan knew she was happier because of it. Barney liked her. She liked him. That was enough. His interest, his devotion, if she were honest, was spicing the days for her and had become an anchor in the great city where she had been so unutterably lonely.
She had told Barney about Pat—little, lost Pat, who was working as a model here in New York, with some queer idea of working out her own problems unaided. She had told him of the tragic accident that had sent Pat, heartsick and bewildered, out into the world.
"The kid had spirit," Barney had said sympathetically. He had accompanied Joan to a model exchange to see if they could find any trace of Pat. There was always the chance, Barney said, that Pat might be using an assumed name. But Joan thought not. She was sure it would never occur to matter-of-fact Pat to resort to such tricks.
Joan was to appear in two numbers tonight. First as a sailor lad, wearing stiff ducks and a jaunty cap. In the other, a lilting Gypsy song, she would be costumed in gay red and yellow satin with a scarf around her head.
The crowd outside at the tables was unusually large. A young pianist, billed as the "Southern Syncopator," played first. The Banjo Boys, old favorites, gave a modern interpretation of operatic selections and Bea, who had already danced her way into the hearts of the Jigsaw patrons, had taken her encores and returned. Joan stood quietly, listening to the applause gradually die away.
"All right, Joan!" Barney told her. He looked excited and some of that excitement was communicated to her. He was counting on her, believing in her!

Bagley Boy Hurt
Menominee—Leonard Talonen, 13-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Talonen, Bagley farmers, was seriously injured at 2 p. m., yesterday when struck by a car driven by Theodore Nylund of Daggett on a county highway at the Finnish church three miles northwest of Daggett.

Camp Buildings Started
Menominee—E. F. Potter Lumber company of Stephenson, awarded the contract for construction of 14 semi-permanent buildings at Wells camp of the Civilian Conservation Corps in John W. Wells state park, Cedar River, began construction of the camp buildings yesterday morning, according to announcement of Maj. Robert V. K. Harris, camp commandant.

Bus Company Quits
Iron Mountain—With receipts practically at the vanishing point, bus line service in Iron Mountain and Kingsford will be suspended in a few days, it was stated yesterday by William D. Cochran, manager of the Iron Range Transportation company, and the company will surrender its permit to the state public utilities commission.
Thus ends an enterprise that thrived during the Ford boom period, but which fell upon evil days with the increasing use of automobiles and the sharp reduction in Ford employment. The company, as a corporation, has been dormant for a considerable period restricted service being continued by Cochran, who also operates the Cochran Freight Lines. This he did in order to retain the public utilities permit in the hope that this would be warranted by improved business conditions later. However, the income has now fallen so low, Cochran said, that it is no longer advisable to retain the permit or attempt to give service.
